Ike Hearts Report On Floods

Hagerty Ssets Up Wyoming Center

DENVER (AP) — President Eisenhower, no longer troubled, said in a chat in the Rose Garden of the White House that the bad news from Texas and Florida should not cause alarm.

"We have had some very serious storms in the past," he said. "But we're not going to panic over them."

Eisenhower's assistant, Sherman Adams, added that the President was aware of the flood situation. "The President is fully aware of the situation," Adams said. "He's been watching it all day."

"We have had some very serious storms in the past," he said. "But we're not going to panic over them."

WILLIAMSBURG (AP) — President Eisenhower, the small butt on the New York State's starting eleven at 174 pounds, sprayed a bit of high-kicking powder to a most proper man on the field Saturday as he paraded in front of his voting unit of the state's 21,727 voters.

Help Wanted: Petition Now

"Do not choose to run," the old Cal Coolidge punch line has been the motto of many students these days.

With student government's primary fall elections only three days away, there is still a dearth of petitions for several vacant seats in Student Congress and the Provost Council. For that reason, petitioning, which was supposed to have closed Friday, has been extended until 6 p.m. today.

In several districts, only one petition has been received for the vacant seat in question. In the case of other vacancies, no petitions have been received at all.

Before chasing their shoulders and slamming "The Hall" over the news, Spartans had better understand how it will affect them.

Where only one person petitions for a vacancy by today's deadline, it will automatically be filled. Where two or more people petition, the first person to turn in his petition will be seated. The second person to turn in his petition will be seated only if there are no other vacancies. If there are no other vacancies, he will be seated. If there are any other vacancies, he will be seated if he can show that he is the most qualified for the position.

Where no petitioners present themselves, the first person to turn in his petition will be seated. If there are any other vacancies, he will be seated if he can show that he is the most qualified for the position.

There is nothing democratic about that procedure. Every resident is being deprived of voting for his choice in the election, because there aren't enough candidates.

Student Congress has often been blamed for being a worthless, unimportant organization, staffed by people who play politics to pass the time like some people play tie-tar-toe or samba. That isn't true, fortunately. Our Congress has done more for the students than most people realize. To keep up our efforts, Student Congress must be made up of people who can handle the job.

The letters "Cap and Gown" or "AAUW Fellowships" will properly be used. "Cap and gown" is the proper title of one person, and "AAUW Fellowships" is the proper title of the program. There is no need to use these terms in any other context.
