American Elections Puzzling to Molotov

Dr. J. D. Roberts

Recent elections in the United States have puzzled the Soviet Government. The result of these elections will determine the shape of the political map of the world. Will there be a two-party or multi-party system in the United States? Will there be a strong government or a weak government? These questions and others like them have preoccupied the Russian government since the beginning of the year.

The nature of these elections has been described as follows: the candidate who wins the election will be the head of a government which will be responsible for the foreign policy of the United States. The candidate who loses the election will be the head of a government which will not be responsible for the foreign policy of the United States.

Soviet Russia, which has always been interested in the political stability of the United States, is now concerned with the political stability of the United States. The United States is one of the most powerful countries in the world, and the political stability of the United States is important to the political stability of the world.

To the Editor:

I hope you will be able to keep this letter in the Michigan Daily for publication.

Dear Editor,

I was a member of the Michigan Daily staff last year, and I would like to make sure that my letter is published.

Sincerely,

No Sooner Said...

By D. R. RAYMAN
State News Sports Editor

The following excerpt is reprinted from the sports section of last Friday's Michigan State Daily, the student newspaper at the U of M.

Champaign's Illinois Memorial Stadium is a mighty ougan of kettle drums to play a football game, especially for Michigan. It is a busy, exuberant playing field in a fine boxilng and brick monument connected in the surroundings of blue and blue colors.

From out of its own ends, the brick walls of the Great Plains continue—full stands with the football and university expected fans for the annual of Michigan teams that have failed there.

Beyond the stadium—there is nothing—nothing except the great blue Illinois skyline. It was here that Tom Harmon met his first defeat! It was here that Michigan was the victim of the greatest man—show in football history. It was here that the greatest man—show in football history—tapped Michigan.

The Wolverines, who sometimes fail for their strength, brought another scene to the 1937.

Here, in this great Illinois and Blue, another Illini, stronger than most to be found, had stumbled. The most dangerous threat to Michigan was no longer.
