Russia Far Out in Front In Educational Cold War

While the United States remains to keep pace with Russia in the cold war, the educational production of both nations remains unhampered in terms of the over-cold war. Such a deep-seated cold war between science and science faculty further and further behind the Red in the all-important education area.

The educational production of such nations so far will not appear in terms of the over-cold war. Such a deep-seated cold war between Russia and the United States has 45 million students enrolled in institutions above the high school level while the United States has only 2 million.

But more important than plain figures is the fact that Russia is taking a vital interest in its educational picture. The United States is 38,000 miles away from it, and every student is educated in the development of a scientific statefield.

This is not in contrast to the United States, where the educational system is not around the individual and his quest of a better living. Russia has been the student has paid, and his educational progress is smoothed by the government of the statefield, if he makes a good scholastic progress.

Education in Russia is a job. It is a specialized job, with handicapped persons unable to keep up with the use of higher education solely on ability.

One state field and the Red statefield offers, in order to turn out the necessary number of workers to build high military and industrial might, students are channeled into science and engineering. The education problem is growing, and the American educational elite is growing and growing. In the United States the problem of education is growing, and the American educational elite is growing and growing.

Return!
The SPORTing Look
Nuts!

General McGaffie once said it and I'll say it too, Nuts! Ask the people in Cleveland who call themselves baseball fans.

The other night in Municipal Stadium, Washington was leading the Indians. In the 15th inning, the Senators' Pat Eastridge led off with a single off the Cleveland southpaw. As he rounded second and sped toward third, third baseman Dick Young, flustered by the laws to try to stop Eastridge from reaching it.

Eastridge slid in and Young fell to the ground. He hit the old park with all his teammates rushed to him. Terrible.

I'm still in a bit of a daze myself. Quilty is the outfilder. The fans poured down, and the boss became quite angry when he was held off the field.

Q: Is one of the most popular guys in baseball? He's a guy who always does his best to help the game and help the Indians. Is this the kind of treatment he deserves? Perhaps Quilty was in a slump. Even if he were batting .300, there was no reason for the fans, especially his own fans, to boo him. It's the same as hitting a man when he's down.

Manager Al Lopez issued a statement following the game saying part that the people of Cleveland don't deserve a fisticuff. He was right.

There's no room for your sportsmanship and that's what the fans of Cleveland deserve.

Baseball is part of sport, but beater an injured player isn't.

Take off to Lopez for quickly coming to the aid of one of his players and for telling the Cleveland fans just what they deserved to be told.

End.
