$1 Billion Cut From Foreign Aid Bill

House Considers Ike's Request For $1 Billion 'Too High'

WASHINGTON (AP)—By a 273-122 vote, the House Monday passed and sent to the Senate a $3,800,000,000 foreign aid measure chopped more than a billion dollars below President Eisenhower's request.

$3 Billion Requested For SAC

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. LeMay, worried about Russian strength making long range attacks, Monday requested $3,800,000,000 for his Strategic Command.

SAC has the assignment to build a new, devastating nuclear war should come. Much of the extra money is to build more B52s, the long-range all-jet bombers.

Chavez (D-NM), chairman of the Senate Appropriations sub-committee, considered LeMay's request. Chavez said that SAC already had received about five billion dollars in the budget under consideration for the year ending July 1.

Chavez said LeMay asks for extra money mainly for aircraft, with emphasis on B52s and also included requests for more bases and men.

Argentine Rebels' Fate Deliberated

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Military courts deliberated in secret settings Monday on the fate of more than 300 rebels arrested in the weekend revolt by followers of Juan D. Peron.

Many rebels may meet with the same end as the 32 already executed by government forces firing squads before the uprising was crushed Sunday.

Provisional President Pedro Aramburu, a major general charged at a news conference Monday the rebels had plotted to murder or hold as hostages himself, Vice President Adm. Isaac Rojas and about 1,000 other government officials and then set up a hybrid Communist-Peronist-National regime.

"The brutal plans included a terror wave, with the burning of churches, newspapers and embassies," he charged.

The government was tipped off to the plans, he said, when police ran into a rebel courier Saturday night. The courier carried a big brown bag stuffed with papers. The courier, Aramburu said, enabled the government to act with unusual speed when the rebels later that night began simultaneous uprisings here and in La Plata, Santa Rosa and Rosario.

Aramburu said the plan had ramifications in many countries, including financing "from Panama." Peron, whose dictatorship was overthrown last September, is in exile in Panama.

Martial law was declared Saturday night, when the government moved swiftly to stamp out the revolt with bombers, infantry and cavalry.

Although jet planes and heavy navy bombers smashed into smoking ruins the last rebel points at La Plata, 15 miles southeast of Buenos Aires, and Santa Rosa, the 12-hour revolt was reported unofficially to have resulted in only about 100 dead and wounded. Government sources said the entire country was calm Monday.

Psychologists Say Delinquents Unconcerned With Future

By BILL KEOUGH

In a recent study MSU psychologists have found that delinquents appear to prefer "a bird in the hand to two in the bush." According to Dr. Donald M. Johnson, professor of psychology, "Living in the here and now, unconcerned about rewards and punishments in the future, appears to be part of the pattern of delinquency."

Working with graduate student, Robert J. Barnet, Professor Johnson tested 26 delinquents from the Boys Vocational School in Lansing, and 29 non-delinquents from a small Michigan high school. The boys were, between the ages of 15 and 17, and intelligence, school achievement, and social class of the two groups were matched.

Ike Rejects Soviet Bid For Joint Chiefs Visit

Ike Seeks 'Free Rein' For Twining

On Upcoming Visit To Soviet Union

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower pressed the Soviets Monday to give Gen. Nathan F. Twining a free rein during the air chief's June 24 visit to Russia at Moscow's invitation.

The White House announced Eisenhower, in a decision taken as he lay abed in the Army's Walter Reed Hospital, rejected an informal Soviet suggestion that the Army and Navy chiefs go along with Twining.

But James C. Hagerty, the President's press secretary, emphasized that under certain conditions the invitation might be accepted.

"If an invitation should be issued at some subsequent time," Hagerty told newsmen, "the reply would depend on the circumstances at the time and on the report of Gen. Twining upon his return."

Hagerty said the Russians were informed of this when they were told Monday "it would be impracticable now to give a favorable reply" to their proposal that Adm. Arleigh A. Burke and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, the Navy and Army chiefs of staff, accompany Twining on his eight-day Soviet visit this month.

Twining has been formally invited and has accepted with Eisenhower's approval.

The most significant part of the President's statement, Monday Hagerty said, was the secret outlining conditions under which an invitation to all the chiefs of staff might be accepted. This emphasis, by Hagerty, underscored what already has been reported about the situation: the United States is anxious to develop contacts with Russia, but on a strictly reciprocal basis which gives some promise of being useful.

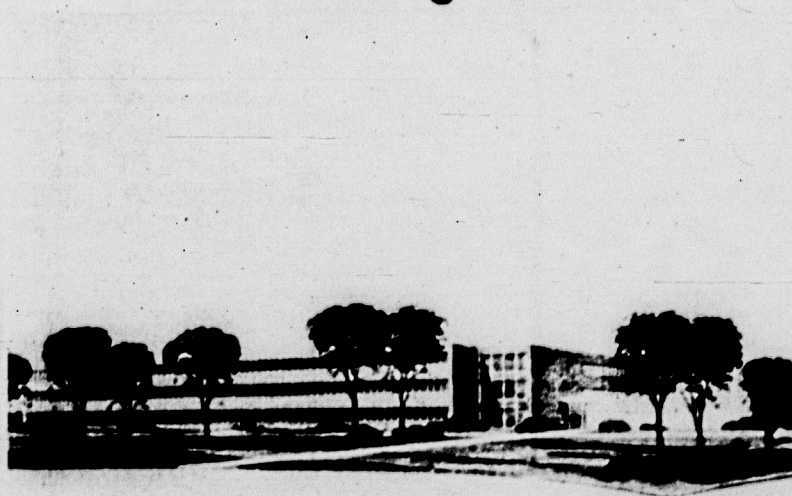

Eisenhower has strongly indicated and other officials have stressed, that guided tours would be of little value.

Hagerty emphasized this point when he said:

"Any acceptance by the joint chiefs would be with the understanding that their schedules within the Soviet Union be so arranged as to permit maximum time outside of Moscow for visits to those activities of special interest to their own services."

Chairman Russell (D-Ga.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee said he was sorry Eisenhower had turned down the idea.

High Court Ousts Smith Case

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court ruled Monday that civilian dependents—wives, mothers and children—who accompany military personnel overseas are subject to military trial for crimes committed while there.

Dividing 5-4, the court dashed the hopes of freedom for Mrs. Dorothy Krueger Smith, daughter of Gen. Walter Krueger, and similarly upset the hopes of another husband's effort to escape a second military trial.

The court upheld the right of military tribunals to try Mrs. Smith for slaying her husband, Army Col. Aubrey D. Smith, 45, by plunging a knife into him as he slept in their Tokyo home Oct. 4, 1952 and to try Mrs. Clark.

In the Smith case, Clark said, the military had not relinquished jurisdiction over Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Clark.

Chief Justice Warren wrote a brief dissenting opinion in which Justices Black and Douglas joined. Justice Frankfurter abstained from voting, saying he wanted more time for reflection before expressing his views.

In the Smith case, Clark said Congress had the power to provide for military trials for civilian dependents who accompany military personnel to stations abroad.

Under the principles of international law, Clark said, each nation has jurisdiction over offenses committed within its own territory. This being so, he wrote, the essential choice involved is between an American and a foreign trial.

Clark, in explaining the difference, said both had returned to the United States and had been honorably discharged months before he was charged with implication in the slaying of a civilian in South Korea.

Clarice B. Covert, formerly of Augusta, Ga., for the as slaying of her husband, Air Force Sgt. Edward E. Covert, in England.

In comment on the Covert case, Justice Clark said it was "clearly distinguishable" from that of Mrs. Dorothy Krueger Smith, daughter of Gen. Walter Krueger, and similarly upset the hopes of another husband's effort to escape a second military trial.

Clark, in explaining the difference, said both had returned to the United States and had been honorably discharged months before he was charged with implication in the slaying of a civilian in South Korea.

Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Covert received life sentences. Mrs. Smith is serving her sentence at the federal reformatory for women at Alderson, W. Va.

Mrs. Covert was taken to Alderson to serve her sentence, but she won a new trial on technical grounds and her case was carried to the U. S. Court of Military Appeals.

The court's decision in the Covert case left the way open for the Air Force to bring her to trial for a second time.

Justices Rule on Deportation

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court, with four dissenting judges using such language as "un-American," ruled Monday the attorney general may consider secret information in deciding whether to suspend a deportation order.

Chief Justice Warren, one of the dissenters, said he could not "in conscience" agree with the majority because "it sacrifices to form too much of the American spirit of fair play in both our judicial and administrative processes."

Justice Reed, speaking for the majority, said suspension of deportation is not given "as a right, and by congressional direction, it is dispensed according to the unfettered discretion of the attorney general."

Reed said the court was "constrained to construe the statute as permitting decisions based upon matters outside the administrative record, at least when such act would be reasonable."

Justices Black, Frankfurter and Douglas, in addition to Warren, wrote sharply critical dissenting opinions.

The ruling was in the case of Cecil Reginald Jay, 50, native of England who was ordered deported in 1952 as an alien who had been a member of the Communist party after his entry into this country in 1921.

Jay asked for suspension of deportation. The Board of Immigration Appeals informed him the request was denied "on the basis of confidential information."

Jay then began court action in Seattle. He lost in federal district court there and in the U. S. Court of Appeals in San Francisco.

Declines Invitation to Top Brass

First Policy Move Since Operation

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower, continuing his "excellent" recovery from major surgery, Monday rejected an informal Russian invitation to send the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff on a visit to the Soviet Union this month.

It was the President's first announced policy move since his scheduled recovery from major surgery, which he is expected to complete by the end of the month.

Meanwhile, the medical reports on Eisenhower continued favorable.

The last bulletin, issued Monday, said:

"The President's progress continues to be satisfactory. His pulse, blood pressure, temperature and respiration remain stable and essentially normal."

He has slept a good portion of the day. He requires little medication.

The doctors said Eisenhower made two round trips from his bed to an easy chair and back again—for a total of 80 feet—and needed very little assistance in his walking.

During the morning he was permitted to have a 15-minute talk with Sherman Adams, White House assistant.

The last day of his convalescence, starting from the President's second major illness in 1955, but not the prime political question, whether he will change his mind about seeking reelection.

Press secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen that the President had been in the hospital only three hours Friday when he was advised of the new Russian proposal, just received at the Pentagon.

It was an informal sounding-out of what this government's reaction would be if Moscow should invite the three other members of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff to accompany Air Force Gen. Nathan F. Twining to the Russian Aviation Day Observance June 24. Twining's trip already has been approved.

In the reply—the President left the door open for future visits to Russia by members of the Joint Chiefs if they should be invited. They are Adm. Arthur W. Radford, Chairman, Adm. Arthur W. Radford, Chief of Naval Operations, and Gen. Nathan F. Twining.

Dorm Advisors

A revised system of resident advisors will go into effect in men's residence halls next September.

Male dormitory residents will be provided with a total of 92 counselors, at least eight of whom will be professionals trained in counseling, guidance or personnel work.

Under present men's dormitory organization, each dorm is provided with a social hostess, two junior advisors, and a resident assistant and his assistant in each precinct. The social hostess and assistant resident assistant will be eliminated under the new system.

A head resident advisor will replace the social hostess. He will be a full-time employee and must be majoring in or have majored in administrative and educational services with training in counseling and guidance.

In addition, two junior advisors will assist the head advisor. These men must be graduate students preferably with some training in counseling and guidance service.

Finally, there will be a resident assistant in each precinct an undergraduate under full-time employment.

The new system is designed to provide the men with more professional guidance service within the living unit.

Officials say a man with proper training in this field should be able to stimulate greater interest in dorm activities. He should be quick to recognize an unhealthy situation and weed it out before trouble starts. He should be able to give greater help to the poorly adjusted student and greater guidance to student leaders.

The program is a step in the right direction. The living unit is the basic organization for adjustment to college life. Proper guidance in the dormitory will aid the student in finding his way in other college activities.

A similar system is desirable in coed dormitories, but lack of personnel blocks its adoption. It is difficult to find enough qualified women to fill all the positions that would be available if such a program were adopted.

Officials hope, however, to start a slow changeover. As present housemothers retire, they will be replaced by women with professional guidance experience, whenever possible.

growing demands, needs and techniques, the College of Agriculture has embarked on a long-range plan to acquire approximately 25 of the nation's top agricultural research scientists.

Dean Thomas Cowden disclosed the plan at a recent day-long press conference with newspaper farm editors.

The program will cover a number of years—Cowden says he hopes the ideal will be "well along" by the time he is eligible to retire, 18 years hence.

The plan is to explore bold, new ideas in agriculture and related fields—to "get off the beaten track."

Some of the subjects to be researched include food preservation, marketing, agricultural chemistry and automation. Investigation into the methods by which atomic energy can be applied to farming will be explored.

Concomitant with the acquisition of research specialists is a movement to provide the kind of environment conducive to advanced study and research.

An example is the almost completed Animal Industries Building. To be called Anthony Hall after former Dean of Agriculture Ernest L. Anthony, the building will house poultry husbandry, dairy production and manufacturing centers, and a meat processing laboratory.

Long term plans include buildings for research in food technology, conservation and agronomy.

The use of better laboratory equipment and additional greenhouses are immediate improvements planned to aid research.

Such a wide-spread research project, including both the gathering of men and the acquiring of suitable material and equipment for their work, is not as expensive as it appears.

According to Cowden, it is the good men who are relatively inexpensive, producing more in relation to salary than the average scientist.

One member of the staff completed 18 publications in the past year and in the past two years, 10 books have been written by staff members.

With its research scientist recruitment program, additional renown will come to the College of Agriculture.

More important, however, will be the benefits that will accrue to the American farmer as a result of the program.

Interpreting The News

By J. M. Roberts

People can hardly be blamed this week if they feel about America's policy toward the neutral nations something like the man who found himself on a train after a brief spell of amnesia.

He didn't know where he was going or what he was going to do when he got there.

President Eisenhower made a statement last week that sounded as if he felt some sympathy and understanding for nations which wish to remain neutral under present world conditions. He said the United States used to feel that way when it was younger.

Next day the White House "amplified" The President didn't mean to say that a nation could find a better way than to be allied with the United States.

That night Vice President Nixon said the neutrals couldn't be bought, they had to be converted.

Saturday night Secretary Dulles attacked the moral validity of neutrality.

Several of America's allies were disturbed by what the President said. He was actually saying that by joining American and American-sponsored alliances, they were sticking their necks out?

Several of the neutrals were disturbed by the Dulles reference to immortality. Was it official that the United States considered everyone who wasn't formally lined up with her to be against her? The President had seemed to be talking against that attitude.

Underlying this confusion is a situation mentioned recently in this column, caused by the effort of the United States to be friends with everybody.

Eisenhower and Dulles have run before into this difficulty of saying, or seeming to say, contradictory things. It usually stems not from actual disagreement, but from the fact that they are addressing themselves to different factors simultaneously.

The President doesn't want the neutrals to get the idea that the United States considers them outcasts. Dulles doesn't want them to get the idea they can always play both ends against the middle, as Tito is doing. The President was plugging the forthcoming Dulles speech. Dulles was plugging foreign aid but reminding both the foreigners and Congress that America expected certain qualifications to be met.

Both were talking about a policy which hasn't yet jelled. Russia is following America's original example in adopting politico-economic warfare, and doing so at a time when the United States was beginning to slow it down. It's caused confusion like trying to get a car into forward gear while moving backward.

Allied Weapons Grow Obsolete

Type of Korean Arms Frozen by Armistice

TOKYO (AP)—American military leaders in the Far East say they are in effect being slowly disarmed in Korea. They say the weapons of the Allied forces—frozen by type under the 1953 armistice—are growing obsolete as military science and production sweep ahead.

This fear may force the United Nations Command to ask for revision of the armistice agreement.

When the armistice was signed July 27, 1953, everyone believed a Korean peace conference would follow in a few months.

No one expected the armistice agreement would have to last for three years, let alone indefinitely, as it has a good chance of doing now, following the failure of every attempt to arrange a peace conference.

The armistice provided only for replacing worn or broken weapons. The long-range problem of obsolescence was not tackled.

Monday the problem was realized only too well on the U. S. side. Allied officers cite unending reports of a Red weapons buildup in North Korea, backed by the evidence of radar tracks, testimony of refugees, and what is considered to be Communist sabotage of the inspection system.

To the best of belief, the Communists have actually reduced their manpower in Korea to a rough equality with the Allied forces there. But intelligence evidence indicates most of the withdrawn troops are massed in Manchuria.

Intelligence estimates of new Communist weapons power in North Korea includes the following:

1. A five-wing, balanced jet air force of from 350 to 500 planes, including both Russian-built MIGs and IL-28 light bombers—where there was none before the armistice.

2. Waterside military airfield construction—where none was operating before the armistice.

3. A complete reorganization, retraining and re-equipment of the North Korean peopled army, little more than a shattered militia at war's end.

The situation is aggravated by the fact that the U. S. Army, and to some extent the Air Force, fought the Korean War with second-hand weapons from World War II.

Gen. Lee B. Washburne, Air Force assistant chief of operations, testified the U. S. considered a vital air defense of the nation's air defense.

He said the Air Force still is building it in Kalkaska by word of Manatee County.

By adding the Air Force request for more planes, the need for more planes is clear.

John N. Eshank, one of America's ablest jet instructors in the general area of the city, is needed to help defense in depth to help defend Chicago and Detroit against possible air attacks.

Washburne and Eshank both said they are at a closed session before a House Appropriations Subcommittee. Their testimony is being made public today.

Blood Test Detects Heart Ills

CHICAGO (AP)—A simple new blood test for detecting hidden heart attacks was hailed Monday as the most important forward step in diagnosis since the electrocardiograph was introduced early in the century.

Dr. Frank P. Foster of the Lakes Clinic, Boston, described the test—called transaminase—as a simple blood test.

Quick and accurate diagnosis is and proper treatment often can mean the difference between life and death.

The electrocardiograph has been the chief tool for diagnosing heart disease, but the new test can play a key role in diagnosis.

Dr. Foster said the electrocardiograph may be completely absent or appear. Such changes also may be noted when heart disease is not involved.

The blood test is based on the fact that dying heart muscle cells release the enzyme transaminase into the blood stream.

This enzyme is measured photoelectrically.

The test is designed to detect incidents of heart damage known as myocardial infarction. This occurs when blood supply to a portion of the heart muscle is blocked off by a clot or narrowing of an artery. The affected portion of the heart then dies.

Dr. Foster said the test is simple and can be done in a doctor's office.

Sergeants Accused of Conspiracy

Businessmen Share in Theft

NEWARK, N. J. (AP)—An Army sergeant and two East Orange businessmen Monday pleaded guilty to conspiracy charges in the theft of a secret government document.

Asst. U. S. Atty. Gen. William F. Tompkins has described the paper as "of the utmost intelligence significance" because, he said, it contained a directory of all the U. S. Air Force bases and organizations throughout the world.

The three, Sydney M. Stern, 39, Seymour S. Hindman, 39, both of East Orange, and Sgt. Harold E. Brill, 28, stationed at the Brooklyn Army Terminal, entered guilty pleas before federal Judge Alfred E. Modarelli.

No date for sentencing was fixed by the court. The maximum penalty on the charges is five years in prison and $10,000 fine.

The three were charged with conspiring to steal and possess a document filed in a federal public building. No espionage charges were involved.

Following their arrest by FBI agents May 17, attorneys for the men said the document was a listing of military personnel intended to be used for business soliciting purposes.

Money Slated for Jet Base

Patterson Plans to Fight Despite Injury

NEW YORK (AP)—Floyd Patterson's manager said Monday he was going ahead with plans for a heavyweight title fight with Archie Moore in September despite Patterson's broken right hand.

"I'm operating on the theory we'll fight in September until I get medical authority to the contrary," said Manager Gus D'Amato.

"The doctors told me Floyd had youth and good health on his side and those factors may bring about a more rapid healing. They said they'll watch the calcium forms then, at some given time, will be able to give me a definite answer on when he will be ready."

"They do say the average is about two or three months for a broken bone to heal but each case is different."

Patterson suffered the broken bone in defeating Tommy Hurricane Jackson in a slam-bang bout Friday night.

D'Amato said he was not in favor of an operation at the present time.

Patterson, taking a short vacation, will return to the city Thursday when further X-rays will be taken to determine how the break in the fourth metacarpal bone of the right hand is healing.

Hogan Calls Oak Hill Easy

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Steady Ben Hogan confounded listeners Monday by calling Oak Hill "one of the easiest Open courses I've ever played" and in the next breath adding:

"I'm playing pretty rotten. Unless I improve, my chances don't look very good."

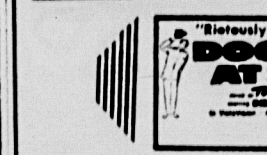

Early arrivals for the 56th annual National Open Golf Championship, beginning Thursday, immediately accused the Texas master of launching a campaign of "confusion warfare."

"That's Ben," doubly said one of his longtime rivals. "He's talking about how easy the course is so they'll toughen it. He knows he has a better chance on a tougher course."

"Don't let him kid you about his golf," added another contender. "On Thursday, Ben will be two to one the best golfer in the field."

Hogan said he believed the fairways were 10 to 15 yards wider than in recent Open tournaments.

Clemente Challenges Top Batters

NEW YORK (AP)—Dale Long and Bob Friend have been getting most of the rave notices for Pittsburgh's phenomenal rise this season, but, of late, Roberto Clemente also has been making his presence felt in the Pirate lineup.

The 21-year-old sophomore outfielder currently is on a batting rampage and has lifted his average to .360, third best in the National League. Clemente gained 44 points during the week with 14 hits in 27 times at bat—a better than .500 clip.

Repulski of the St. Louis Cardinals continues to top the National League batsmen with a .478 mark, while the Yankees' Mickey Vernon still is the American League leader with .394. Averages include games through Sunday.

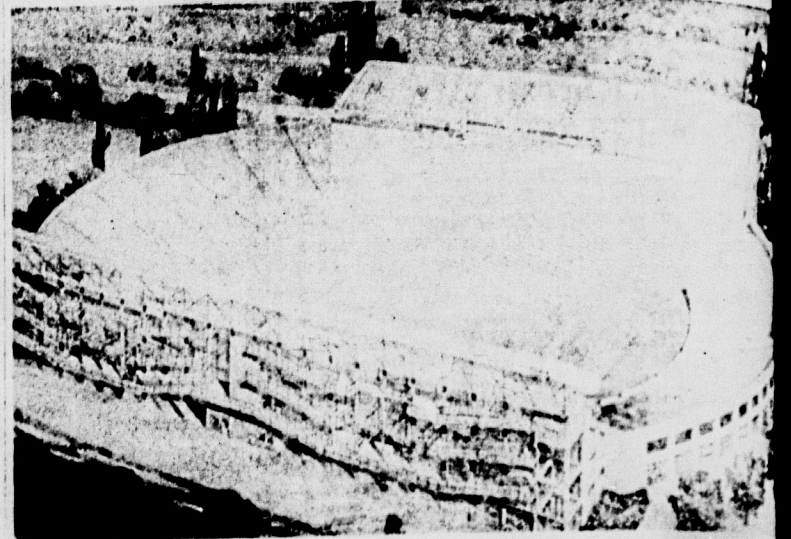

Repulski, still bothered by a wrist injury, saw limited service last week. He went 2-for-11 and lost 22 points. Long maintained the runner-up spot at .370 despite a 10-point dip on 7-for-23.

In the American League batting race, Mantle slumped 17 points with 7 hits in 25 trips. Detroit's Charley Maxwell remains second with .373. Teammate Harvey Kuenn advanced from fourth to third with 364.

Long is the National League's home run pacesetter with 17 and the Cards' Ken Boyer heads the RBI department with 46.

The Redlegs' Brooks Lawrence has the best pitching record among senior league hurlers, 2-0, 1.00, and Friend is strikeout king with 11. Tom Brewer of Boston marks in the American, 8-1, .889, has posted the leading win-loss and Cleveland's Herb Score has fanned the most batsmen, 89.

Expanded Stadium

This is Michigan State's Mackin Field Stadium as it will appear in 1957 when expanded to approximately 75,000. The south end zone (left) and north corners are now being built up to bring capacity to 60,000 for this fall. The following year, cantilever-type upper decks will be added to the east and west stands.

Stresses Importance of 'Breaks'

Duffy Previews Grid Season

By PETE WALTERS
State News Night Editor

Duffy Daugherty stood in front of Jensen Gym Monday afternoon, waiting for his pilot to join him. He had just finished posing for team pictures with his Rose Bowl champion Spartan football squad of a season ago and was now preparing to fly to an evening engagement in Benton Harbor.

The five-minute waiting period before the pilot arrived provided an excellent opportunity to corner the 1955 'Coach of the Year' during one of the longer interludes in his crowded daily schedule and quiz him about the gridiron outlook for the coming fall.

Daugherty, by nature somewhat noncommittal when it comes to issuing prophecies, began his season preview by pointing out the fact that four of the Spartans' first five ball games will be played on enemy soil, and that there will be one less home contest this year than there was last.

"That," he contended, "will make the schedule a little tougher than last year's, although we played our first two games away from home."

The Big 10 picture, Daugherty said, should show better overall balance, with most of 1955's weaker schools having received aid in the form of new and more experienced players.

Michigan left probably proved the Spartans with one of their closest battles, he admitted, but declined to go into the matter further.

Avoiding the use of the words "All-American," but making his implication clear, Daugherty commented that he had several "outstanding" players who should do very well during the coming campaign.

Included in this list of top performers were quarterbacks Walt Kowalczyk and Clarence Peaks, and Dave Kaiser, tackle Pat Burke, guard Dan Currie and center Capt. John Matko. All will be juniors this fall except for Matko and Peaks who will be seniors.

One of the team's major problems, according to Daugherty, will be the replacement of right guard Dick Nystrom, left tackle Norm Masters and fullback Gerry Plaut, all of whom completed their collegiate grid careers last year.

Cliff LaRose, Ron Hickens and Ellison Kelly, all sophomores, are top prospects for Nystrom's position, while junior Les Rutledge, senior Joe Carruthers and sophomore Karl Perryman will try to fill the gap left by Masters.

The fullback slot, the position considered the most questionable in the lineup, many Spartan fans are looking for, with juniors Gilbert and Bob Haddock as sophomores Don Arndt showing first string berth.

Daugherty, emphasizing the importance of the position, pointed out that the Spartans have a number of sophomores and freshmen in the line, and that the team will be looking for a walk and a run game in the second half of the season.

"We got the break last year," he declared, "but we didn't go against the Spartans. We could have had a lot of experience if we had."

This coming year, he said, would like Duffy Daugherty to serve as a coach to the Spartans, and that he would like to see the Spartans break in their favor.

Kaiser Injured In Diving Mishap

Dave Kaiser, Rose Bowl champion tackle, was injured Saturday when he fell into a shallow pool of water while diving for a football.

Dr. Clifford G. Moore, director of the hospital, said Kaiser was not a severe case, but was suffering from a severe concussion and would be out of action for several days.

Kaiser will spend the next few days in the hospital, and will be out of action for several days.

ATO, West Shaw, Ulrey Named IM Champions

Alpha Tau Omega, West Shaw and Ulrey were named the three intramural winners Monday night by the IM office.

ATO took the fraternity championship with 755 1/2 points, bettering its own record high of 70 points a year ago. Delta Tau Delta finished second with 663 1/2 points, just 31 points ahead of third place Sigma Nu.

ATO won seven of nine events for its easy victory among the fraternities. It is the second straight year ATO has won the trophy, and it needs just one more win to permanently retain the trophy which was presented at its sports banquet Monday night.

West Shaw romped in dorm competition with 175 points, the dormitories using a different scoring system than the fraternities or independents.

East Shaw finished second with 96 points, followed by Rafter, 56; Bryan, 45; Phillips, 37, and Butlerfield, 30.

Line Coach Revisits Rose Bowl

By DALE MATHEWS

The Rose Bowl was not a very strange sight for one of the coaches of Michigan State. Coach Lou Agase was a member of the first team to represent the Big 10 in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena.

This happened while he was playing for the University of Illinois. The Illini won the Western Conference championship in 1946 and as a result met UCLA. The Illini came off second best in this game, losing 45-14.

When Agase started at Illinois, freshmen were allowed on the varsity teams. As a result he was unable to win three letters in his first year. Lou won one each in football, wrestling and track.

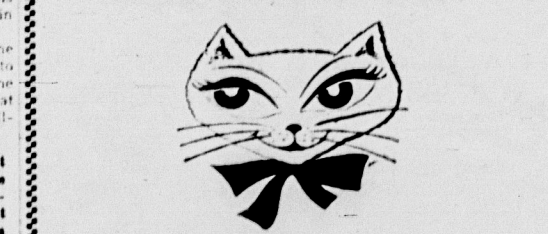

In his first football season, he played end but later switched to tackle, where he remained for the rest of his football career at Champaign and was an All-Conference tackle.

It was in this position that he was selected to play on the East squad in the annual East-West game in 1947. The next year he was picked to be a member of the 1948 College All-Stars that was played in Chicago's Soldier Field.

After graduating in 1948, he accepted and remained there for five years. When he left Illinois he was an assistant coach. Agase came to Michigan State in March, 1955 when the coaching staff was re-shuffled. He was given the position of defensive line coach at that time and is holding the job today.

What's doing at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft

Today's leadership . . . a reflection of policies established in aviation's infancy .

Back in The Roaring Twenties, the magic dream pictured American families someday using the light personal airplane as freely as the family car. Among the realists, however, was a handful of men who were unshakable in their conviction that the real future of aviation lay with bigger aircraft, higher speeds, greater ranges — all possible only through engines of higher power and more reliability than those of that era.

In the spring of 1925, six of these men of vision founded a company in Hartford to undertake the development of a new aircraft engine — an air-cooled type. The year's end heralded their first success — Pratt & Whitney Aircraft's "Wasp".

This talented group of men continued to improve their powerplant designs, developing engines of steadily mounting power that operated efficiently and dependably. They contributed much to aviation's progress — so much, so that currently three-quarters of the world's commercial airliners and many of our nation's first line military aircraft are P & W A powered.

Today's P & W A powerplant designs are supported by the very finest research facilities and equipment, and a technical staff that is continually being strengthened. That nucleus of six men has grown into one of the world's leading engineering organizations. Yet to this very day, engineering achievement at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft is guided by its founders' simple policy — the best airplanes can be designed only around the best engines.

The Original Wasp, the first P & W A engine — designed, fabricated and assembled in less than seven months. Weighing under 650 pounds and officially rated at 410 horsepower, this lightweight, air-cooled radial engine was a milestone in aviation history and set the pattern for almost three decades of model-breaking advances.

The Double Wasp, an 18-cylinder, two-row piston engine rated at 2400 horsepower for basic use. Its rating increased by water injection to 3400 horsepower. The Double Wasp was instrumental in turning many a military crisis into an aerial victory in the decisive battles of World War II.

The Wasp Major, a 28-cylinder engine with pistons arranged in four rows of seven each and a 3400-horsepower rating. Its power and performance having never been equalled, the Wasp Major represents the apex of the art of building reciprocating engines.

The 157 Turbopjet, one of the engines in history to be officially rated in the 10,000-horsepower class. In quantity production since early 1955, the 157 has continuously undergone progressive development. It gives every indication of having almost unlimited growth possibilities.

The Engines of Tomorrow, advanced jet, turboprop, and auxiliary. Already in various stages of development, these aircraft engines of the future will further contribute to the long history of leadership that Pratt & Whitney Aircraft has established in the field of aviation.
