Tizzy for Lawmakers

Supreme Court Action Poses Tough Problem

More fuel was added Monday to the fires of Michigan's junior-sized cause celebre: the sale of obscene literature.

The United States Supreme Court ruled 8-0 that a law passed in 1838 banning sale of obscene books was unconstitutional because it violated individual liberties inherent in the Fourteenth Amendment.

The high court's ruling was made in the case of a Detroit book distributor who was convicted of violating the state law in 1951 and fined $100.

The distributor had sold a copy of "The Devil Rides Outside," a novel by John H. Griffin. Detroit police censors had described the book as "obscene, immoral, lewd and lascivious."

Justice Felix Frankfurter, who delivered the Supreme Court's decision, said Michigan was in reality "burning the house to roast the pig."

The effect of the law, Frankfurter said, was "to reduce the adult population of Michigan to reading only what is fit for children."

"It thereby arbitrarily curtails one of those liberties of the individual, now enshrined in the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, that history has attested as the indispensable conditions for the maintenance and progress of a free society."

Michigan authorities had argued that banning of "The Devil Rides Outside" protected the morals of minors and therefore contributed to the general welfare.

The high court's decision, though a step in the right direction, was not so cut-and-dried as to be the final, unalterable word in the book banning, book censorship controversy.

If anything, it has posed a tough nut for the state's lawmakers to crack.

They feel the court's ruling will open the flood gates to a deluge of pornography. With justification, most are also of the opinion that the state must assume some responsibility in protecting its citizens against books which are downright pornography.

But the problem is where to draw the line. Surely no thoughtful person could condone the easy availability of any type of smut by anybody. Neither could he even remotely sanction a setup such as arbitrary judging of all books by police censors, as is the case in Detroit.

Much thought and care must now guide the men in Lansing as they study substitutes for the law invalidated by the Supreme Court.

They will not come up with a law which will please everyone. Extreme liberals and extreme conservatives will exert pressures in accordance with their respective views.

The 1838 law is an anachronism. What is needed now is a law which will contribute to the general welfare, but one which will also be in accordance with modern viewpoints.

As we said, a mighty tough nut to crack.

New University

Western Michigan College at Kalamazoo Tuesday became Western Michigan University.

Gov. Williams signed into law a bill which made the name change effective immediately.

Unlike the name-calling, baiting and recriminations which marked MSU's attempt to be rightfully recognized as a university two years ago (i.e., there would be "confusion" if there were two institutions in the state which incorporated the words "Michigan" and "University" in their titles), Western Michigan experienced little difficulty in getting its name change approved.

Our congratulations are extended to Michigan's newest university.

Smoking Actions

To The Editor:

I would like to say a word in defense of the 2 men fined for smoking in the library. It seems we are being used as whipping boys and I feel that our side of the story should be heard.

Not one, but all of us complained about the way the thing was handled. We were approached at the east exit of the library just as we were about to leave the building. Some of the fellows had one hand on the door and were about to step outside. Since it was a windy day the natural tendency was to light up inside.

I don't think being lazy had anything to do with it and I can't see how we could have ruined the tile since the floor is made out of terrazzo. If there was a fire hazard there among the terrazzo floor, plate glass windows and steel door sash I didn't see it.

As to being called a problem child student, I don't quite feel that it fits myself or the others. I am 25 and the majority of them looked old enough to drink, let alone smoke.

If in order to enforce the rules at MSU, fines and punishments are to be used, it would be a good idea to use a little common sense about the way it is handled.

I don't like being a whipping boy and the whole affair has left me with a sour taste.

Shameful

To The Editor:

The situation in the library is not at all as it should be. There are those few students who have no respect for the rights of others, and cause the difficulties that you have described.

I must comment on one of your methods of stopping these difficulties. You suggested that the names of "delinquents" be taken and that strict punishment be enforced. But I ask you, is it feasible for staff members to have to take the time and confusion that such a method of discipline would result in?

Everyone around would be disturbed. This is certainly not an adult way to handle a situation and in a university we not only want to eliminate those delinquents that cause "childish" action, but we want to handle our difficulties in a manner that benefits adults.

In a university of this size we are bound to face difficulties such as this. It is really a shameful situation, one that does not do justice to the university and the vast majority of our students.

Indian Vote Feud Continues

NEW DELHI (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru's friendly relations with foreign Communists appear to be having little effect on his election feud with India's Reds.

The Communists and Nehru's Congress Party are lambasting each other enthusiastically in the campaign for India's second general election Sunday through March 14.

Neither side seems to have been bothered by the presence of Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai and Soviet Defense Minister Georgi Zhukov. Both made official visits to India as guests of the government while the election campaign warmed up.

If anything, Chou and Zhukov gave Nehru's Party a bit of a lift: for they, of course, praised host Nehru and his policies. They scrupulously avoided doing anything suggesting interference in the Indian election, and therefore, practically snubbed Indian Reds.

The fact that he was entertaining Chou and Zhukov didn't keep Nehru and his party associates from blasting the Communists.

Indian Communists, said Nehru in one election speech, have a single policy — "to capture power by violence."

Nehru said in another speech that to give the Reds control in India, with its many rival language and religious groups, would be to invite civil conflicts.

Some observers here think that Indian Communists ultimately will benefit from the Chou and Zhukov visits. The sight of Nehru with his Red guests has in a way made Communism respectable, in spite of what he might say about the Indian Reds.

Hundreds of school children turned out to cheer and wave flags when Russian Premier Bulganin and Party Chief Khrushchev toured India more than a year ago. The welcome was repeated on a smaller scale for Chou.

These observers reason that in future elections Nehru may be gone and the children, with their youthful impressions and memories of Red flags and Bulganin and Khrushchev and Chou — will then be the voters.

Union Is Accused of Aiding Gamblers

As Senate Investigates Teamsters

Two Witnesses Refuse to Testify

WASHINGTON (AP)—Witnesses at a Senate inquiry Tuesday linked the Teamsters Union with gambling and gamblers in Seattle and Spokane, Wash., and organized vice in Portland, Ore.

One witness swore that Local 690 of the Union in Spokane loaned more than $50,000 to saloon keepers and gamblers in the two Washington cities.

Another testified that District Attorney William M. Langley of Portland told him after a successful primary campaign that Langley and his family were going to take a vacation in California and "the Teamsters are going to pay for it."

The first day of what Chairman McClellan (D-Ark.) promised will be a "stupendous" investigation of labor unions also produced evidence that the Teamsters Union paid for airplane trips of a Spokane gambler, a race horse trainer and a jockey.

Two of the witnesses invoked the Fifth Amendment when questioned about their connections with the union, pleading that to answer might tend to incriminate them.

James E. Mahoney, a self-styled Portland gambling operator, told the Senators he received a promise of protection from District Attorney Langley after helping to arrange for secret support of Langley by the Teamsters Union in the 1954 election campaign.

The testimony about the loans from Local 690 came from Albert J. Ruhl, the Local's veteran secretary-treasurer. Ruhl reluctantly conceded he was afraid of retaliation from Dave Beck, boss of the 1½ million member union, because of his disclosures.

Ruhl was followed to the stand by Thomas E. Mahoney, who refused to state whether he bought into a Spokane drinking and gambling establishment with money borrowed from Local 690.

Yugoslav Minister Blasts Reds

BELGRADE (AP)—The Yugoslav Government Tuesday accused the Soviet Union of trying to discredit and isolate Yugoslavia.

Foreign Minister Koca Popovic delivered the attack in a major address to the Yugoslav Parliament. It was regarded as a significant departure from defensive tactics.

He blamed the Soviet Union for what he said were worse relations between the two countries and assailed revivals of Stalinism. His surprise statement asserted "Stalinism has done more evil to Socialism than all imperialist actions together."

Popovic contended that no country should head the Communist world; he had warm words for Poland and hopes of future relations with the country, and said relations were good with western countries despite differences of governmental systems.

He said Yugoslavia would not join any blocs even if the Soviet union considered non-joining a hostile act.

He also announced that there were "unforeseen difficulties in the economic field" with the Soviet Union shelving a 175-million dollar aluminum plant project to have been built in Yugoslavia.

Shortly after he spoke, the official agency Tanjug announced a new trade agreement with the Soviet Union was signed in Moscow.

Dr. Tukey Leaves For Puerto Rico As AEC Member

Dr. H. B. Tukey, head of the department of horticulture, left for Puerto Rico Monday night, as a member of a six-man team of the Atomic Energy Commission.

While there he will be a biological and agricultural advisor in helping to establish a nuclear center.

There are two main areas of interest with this project—developing tractor techniques, following plant nutritional movements through the use of radioactive plant foods; and breeding changes through radiation to change or alter plant characteristics.

Released on Bond

2 Charged With Bribery Demand Examination

LANSING (AP)—Examination was demanded Tuesday by a mother and daughter charged with offering a $1,000 bribe in an effort to obtain a liquor license for their Muskegon township bowling alley.

Judge Charles N. Murphy of Lansing Municipal Court scheduled examination March 5 for Mrs. George Ingat, 55, owner, and her daughter, Jean, 32, manager of the Maple Lane bowling alley.

They were released on $2,500 bond each.

Jack Warren, Ingham County prosecutor, charged both on two counts of offering a bribe and giving a bribe to corrupt a state official.

Frank Blackford, State Liquor Control Commission chairman, said the women dropped a plain envelope on his desk Monday as they left after a visit to plead for help in obtaining a Class C (liquor by the glass) license.

Blackford said he opened the envelope and found 10 $100 bills inside.

Blackford notified Walter Noack, chief of the enforcement division of the commission, and the women were arrested before they left the building.

He told the women, Blackford said, that the quota for licenses in the township already was filled.

14 Bodies Interred

Mass Funeral Staged For Flash Fire Victims

WARRENTON, Mo. (AP)—Fourteen hearses moved slowly down Main Street Tuesday in a cold rain and on over a knoll to the cemetery where a mass burial was held for 14 of the 72 victims of a flash fire which swept an old folks home here.

A common grave received the bodies which had been unclaimed by relatives or friends. The grave had begun to cave in from a quagmire caused by a heavy, all-night rain.

Some 50 persons, including workmen, stood in the cold and the rain as the metallic caskets were lowered into the 18-by-40-foot grave. Each was encased in a concrete vault and each numbered.

The mass burial had been set for 2 p.m. (CST) but when the grave started to cave in the hour was moved up. The grave was left uncovered, however, until after a memorial service this afternoon.

The mass funeral services had been arranged by a citizens committee appointed by the county court.

The memorial services were for 18 of the victims, including the 14 buried together and four missing among the ruins of the fire which swept the Katie Jane Memorial home last Feb. 17 in minutes.

The investigation into the cause of the fire was temporarily halted today. "I'm about ready to say the fire was of undetermined origin," L. W. L. Hutchings of the State Highway Patrol said.

Carol Heiss Leads Field of 20

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Uncle Sam's slick 17-year-old Carol Heiss glided into a substantial lead Tuesday in opening defense of her world's figure skating championship.

Miss Heiss, of Ozone Park, N.Y., was credited by her coach with a wide edge in the women's competition after completion of the first two compulsory figures.

No official tabulation of point standings was made, but some judges said unofficially the early going appeared in this order:

Miss Heiss in first, followed by Ingrid West of Vienna, Austria; Carole Jane Pugh of Canada; Joan Schenke of Tacoma, Wash.; and Nancy Heiss, Carol's 15-year-old sister.

There are 20 women skaters from 11 countries competing at the Broadmoor Ice Palace, an indoor rink.

They skate six compulsory figures, the first four Tuesday and the final two today. Their ratings in these events count 60 per cent toward their final standing. The other 40 per cent is based on free skating—a four-minute exhibition of the skater's own creation.

The first figure was a serpentine and the second a figure eight. Those were the basic designs, though the skaters went through intricate variations. The skaters are required to reverse their movements over the figure and retrace their skate marks.

The accuracy of their skating bears heavily in the compulsory point ratings.

Pierre Brunet, who coaches Miss Heiss, said she is performing "just as well as she did 10 days ago in winning the North American title at Rochester, N.Y."

He added, "She is a very steady skater and everything is going fine."

Howe Still Leads In NHL Scoring

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Detroit's ace scoring combination of Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay appeared the only serious contenders for National Hockey League scoring honors after each picked up six points last week.

Howe now has 38 goals and 39 assists for 77 points, while Lindsay has 28 and 47 for a total of 75. Montreal's Jean Beliveau is in third with 69.

Glenn Hall, Red Wing goalie, now leads the Canadiens Jacques Plante, 126-130, in the race for fewest goals against and the Vezina Trophy.

'Unknown' Cager Succeeds Quickly

Green Delights Spectators With 'Up in the Air' Tactics

By JOE HOFFMAN

Seven weeks ago the name John Green was unknown on the Michigan State campus. Today it's not only known to every basketball fan on this campus but on campuses throughout the Midwest.

John achieved sophomore standing this term and played his first game against Michigan, a tough chore even for the veterans. He had some natural jitters that night but showed from the start he was going to be reckoned with before the campaign was over.

Green has won great admiration from the fans for his defensive ability to stuff attempted shots down confused opponents' throats and his offensive talent for unusual tip-ins of missed Spartan shots.

Green makes at least one sensational play in every game. Against Ohio State here it was his over-the-head tip-in of Jack Quiggle's desperation heave in the last second of the first half; at Purdue he amazingly blocked Lamar Lundy's layup with 20 seconds remaining to preserve State's two-point edge, and on it goes.

Though only 6'5", the Dayton, Ohio, Navy veteran is able to outjump most of the bigger centers in the conference. He is also one of the finest rebounders in the league, often jumping high above the rim to grab the ball.

By now most fans know Green didn't play any high school ball. He had to work and was unable to spare the time. But he did play in the service, with the Atsuki Flyers in Japan. John was a unanimous selection on the Navy All-Star team, while helping the Flyers to a 38-1 record in 1954 and the Central Command championship.

How does John react to this sudden wave of publicity? Very simple. Green is very unassuming and modest, and his only interest is to make himself the best basketball player he knows how and to help the Spartans win the Big 10 title and possibly the NCAA championship.

Green's biggest thrill in his initial season was scoring the first 10 points against Minnesota at Minneapolis, the game that started Michigan State on its fabulous comeback trail. Green is most concerned with his jump shooting from the outside. "If I could only hit more consistently, I'd be much better off," Green commented.

When he's not pouring in his 13 points (his season average) a game and making things rough for the opponents, Green likes to shoot pool and play checkers. Coach Ford's Anderson, whom Green thanks for almost all he has learned in basketball, truly realizes the effect John has been to the ballclub.

"He's just been magnificent more than we ever expected in his first year," Anderson said. "He hasn't even touched his offensive potential yet, and when he does, there won't be a better center in the country."

As to the future, Green hasn't quite decided. He said he might like to try pro ball if he's good enough. Most observers don't see how he can fail.

John sums up his overnight success as "beginner's luck." It may be, but there's an awful lot of skill thrown in.

CAL GIRARD

... still improving ...

Gymnast Stars in First Year

By JERRY WRIGHT

Four years ago a 16-year-old high school sophomore became interested in gymnastics for the first time.

Cal Girard had no idea then that he was destined to become one of the most valuable members of the Michigan State gymnastic team.

Before entering Michigan State, Girard had offers from the University of Michigan, Florida State and Illinois.

While Cal had many reasons for coming to Michigan State his main one was centered around George Szypula, whom he tabs as one of the best coaches in the business.

Already Girard is one of the top performers on the gymnastics team and he is still improving. But more important, he has two years of eligibility remaining before graduating.

Girard turned in his top performance during the Minnesota meet when he registered 13 points. He placed first on the horizontal bars and tied for first with teammate Dick O'Brien on the parallel bars.

Cal's biggest thrill in gymnastics came during Christmas vacation when he competed on the side-horse in the North and South meet in Florida.

After graduation the Windsor, Ont., sophomore plans to make use of his accounting major and strive for a CPA. Plans to compete in the 1960 Olympics are also in the offering.

Woman Links FDR With Red

Claims She Acted As Intermediary

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate internal security subcommittee Tuesday released testimony of a woman artist that she acted as an intermediary between President Roosevelt and Communist Earl Browder during World War II.

by a surging ethereal tenor. Tchaikovsky's "O God, Save This People" developed likewise with the tenor's strength paramount.

Tenor Alexander Rukovinski, bass, from the same school, sang "The Cossacks" and "The Song of the Cossacks." Both songs, "The Song of the Cossacks" and "The Song of the Cossacks," were sung with great power and above all, endurance.

In the program's third section, Magnushchevsky, combined with tenor Igor Seifert for two of Jaroff's humorous arrangements, "Green Grass" and "Kalinka." Seifert's solo parts in "Shedoff's Who Knows" also provided their laughs.

Jaroff's "Cossacks" featured a solo by Rukovinski, who sang with great power and above all, endurance. Jaroff's "Cossacks" featured a solo by Rukovinski, who sang with great power and above all, endurance.

Fees

who have suggested rates of $30 to $100 a year. Hatcher did not say how much he thought fees could be raised to keep up with the changing value of the dollar. He said that a $100-a-year rate would have a "deleterious" effect on education.

Proposals for raising out-of-state tuition fees were also advanced by the committee members.

Sen Robert E. Faulkner, R-Colo., pointed out that Ohio State University charges $600 a year for out-of-state fees as compared with the U. of M. $476 a year.

If $600 Ohio students were attending the U. of M. Faulkner said, it would mean that Michigan was giving Ohio the $124 difference, or a total of $500,000 a year.

Other legislators cited New York, which says that it has no tax-supported universities. On the other hand, they said many New York students attend Michigan state-supported schools.

"The State of Michigan would be the poorer if we tried to shut off the supply of students from other states," Hatcher said.

He added that "We are all getting into a very dangerous mechanism if we try to separate colleges in this fashion."

Some of the legislators attacked "frills" in Michigan colleges — particularly the athletic plants.

"How much is essential education and how much is extracurricular activities," one representative asked.

Senator Porter said he did not believe any students would have to go without a college education if he really had a desire for it.

The Williamson Free School of Mechanical Trade in Media, Pa., is shown engulfed in smoke and flames shortly after the blast started on Wednesday. It was estimated that the loss would exceed one million dollars.

Concerning Communists

Saudi Arabian Leader Meets With Arab Chiefs

CAIRO (AP)—King Saud is trying to persuade Arab leaders at their four-power "summit" conference here to clamp down on Communists in their own countries while declining alignment with either East or West in foreign affairs, informed sources said Tuesday.

The argument the Saudi Arabian leader is using for such a policy in his talks with Jordan's King Hussein, Syrian President Shukri Kuwari and Egyptian President Nasser is that it will satisfy Arab nationalist desires for neutrality, while showing good will to the West.

The quartet of Arab chieftains had been scheduled to hold its third meeting, possibly the last of the conference, Tuesday night, but the meeting was postponed until this morning. No reason was given for the change. But it was understood subcommittee met to draft the conference communiqué.

King Saud met for an hour Tuesday night with U. S. Ambassador Raymond Hare. Hare indicated his visit was a courtesy call, but there have been reports that Washington has been in touch with King Saud since he left the United States.

Three of the four chiefs—Saud, Kuwari and Nasser—conferred 2 1/2 hours in the afternoon. Jordan's King Hussein did not attend.

Marine Instructor Guilty on 1 Charge

Found Innocent on 4 Charges Made by 'Cry Baby' Platoon

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP)—A husky marine drill instructor with a thunderous parade ground voice was found innocent of maltreating recruits Tuesday but guilty on one charge of assault.

A five-member special court martial deliberated a little more than two hours before returning the verdict in the trial of S. Sgt. William E. Rich of Canton, N.C.

The 22-year-old Marine had been accused of striking three recruits and choking a fourth. He was found innocent in each instance.

The court determined, however, that Rich unlawfully seized Pvt. Kenneth A. Benjamin by the shoulder.

Rich was reduced in rank one grade to Sergeant. He was also fined $30 a month for three months. The court had the power to confine him for six months, fine him two-thirds of his pay for that period, and require him to a private.

Under terms of the findings, he could not have been given a bad conduct discharge.

The verdict came after the three officers and two master sergeants of the court heard testimony for a day and a half in the trial of the burly, twice-wounded combat-decorated career marine.

After being warned late Tuesday that his testimony might be used against him, Rich replied in a booming voice, "I wish to take the stand, sir."

He then testified he had been told on Jan. 14 he was under
