Teamsters Boss Gets Indictment

Hoffa Accused Of Wiretapping

NEW YORK (AP)—James R. Hoffa, Midwest boss of the Teamsters Union, was indicted Tuesday on charges of tapping telephones of his underlings in the union's Detroit headquarters.

Hoffa allegedly dipped into the union's till for $5,429 to pay for the wiretaps. The government said he was able to sit in his private office and listen in on telephone calls elsewhere in the headquarters.

The purpose, a federal grand jury claimed, was to eavesdrop on union members who might be potential witnesses before a senate labor racketeering committee and a federal grand jury in Detroit.

Indicted with Hoffa were Bernard Brennan, of Detroit, president of Teamsters Local 337, and Bernard Spindel, a professional New York wiretapper. Wiretapping is legal on the state level in New York with permission of the courts.

U. S. District Court Judge Lawrence E. Walsh set the arraignment of the three for May 21. The conspiracy charge lodged against them carries a maximum year in prison upon conviction and a $10,000 fine each.

Hoffa long was regarded as behind-the-scenes boss of the Teamsters, although this was denied by union officials. He was seen as a man who was in the background, especially when Beck recently became embroiled with the senate labor racketeering investigators.

However, last March 19, Hoffa was indicted on charges of crime-conspiracy. He pleaded innocent and is awaiting trial in Washington on a charge that he tried to plant a spy in the ranks of the same Senate committee.

New Congress Meets Tonight

Student Congress gathers tonight in 33 Union for the first meeting of its 1957-58 session. New representatives will be sworn in by Chief Justice Bill Rees.

Officers, to be elected May 22, will be nominated at tonight's meeting.

The All-University Student Government Constitution and rules for Congress are on the agenda for explanation by President Marne Gleason and Speaker Reg Miesmer.

Students Watch For Tornado

A number of MSU students in the married housing barracks prepared to evacuate Tuesday night in the face of tornado warnings which continued until 1 a.m. The students had been told to go to Johnson Fieldhouse in case of tornado threat.

Headed outside the barracks with their children huddled in warm clothing, the parents watched the sky with thunderous clouds and the air.

Auto Collision Injures Four

Two MSU students and two faculty members were injured in a collision on West Michigan Ave., about 12:45 this morning.

The students were Chung-bok Myong, East Lansing grad student, and Nobuko Ishigaki, Mawashi, Okinawa, grad student.

Faculty members involved were Dr. Mary Moore, of business administration, and Jean Ann McAdams, production supervisor for the Brody group.

All were taken to Sparrow Hospital. Their injuries were reported as not critical.

Dulles OKs Modified Inspection

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said Tuesday he favors a limited arms inspection agreement with Russia covering sparsely populated Arctic areas such as Siberia, Alaska and Northern Canada.

Dulles said it would be easier to win Russian acceptance of such an Arctic disarmament plan than one covering a heavily populated European zone where there are political complications.

The secretary told his news conference an Arctic agreement would relax East-West tensions because it would include aerial inspection of "potential launching sites which might be used in an atomic war."

Dulles said it would make it "easier, almost inevitable that other East-West agreements would follow providing arms inspection in other areas of the world."

He suggested the Arctic areas would be "an easier place to start" because only three governments, the United States, Russia and Canada, need be involved. Canada, he said, has already made clear it is "sympathetically disposed" to such a disarmament test.

Replying to questions, Dulles did not rule out the possibility of agreeing with Russia on a similar aerial inspection zone in Europe, but, he noted, the difficulties in Europe are greater because more countries and people are involved.

Radio Waves Can Bake Cakes in Four Minutes

The same type of radio waves which are important in detecting and guiding aircraft are now being utilized to cook hot dogs in 30 seconds and to bake cakes in four minutes.

So says J. Leon Newcomer, head of the MSU food research laboratory.

In the new method, heat is not applied to the food but is generated within it, making it possible to prepare meals of frozen food quickly even though this food would ordinarily take hours to thaw.

The heating ability of radio waves became known in the early days of radio broadcasting

MSU Ready to Welcome Diem

Ngo Dinh Diem, president of the Republic of South Viet Nam, will arrive at Capital City Airport at 3:30 p.m. today. He and his official party will go directly to the Aud, for the special convocation at which he will be awarded an honorary degree. He will also speak to the students and faculty present.

All students will be excused from classes from 3 to 5 to attend the convocation.

Following the convocation the Vietnamese President will hold a press conference. Meanwhile, other members of his party will be given a tour of the campus.

President Diem and his official party will be feted at a dinner to be given by President John A. Hannah and the State Board of Agriculture at Kellogg Center this evening. Gov. G. Mennen Williams will give a brief talk.

Members of the MSU faculty engaged in the Viet Nam program will get a chance to speak to President Diem following the dinner. A reception for townspeople and faculty will then be held from 8:30-10.

Before leaving Thursday morning, President Diem will have breakfast with President Hannah. Following this, he and his party will leave MSU for visits to Knoxville, the Tennessee Valley and Los Angeles. He is expected to leave Honolulu for Saigon May 21.

The official greeting party, which will meet President Diem and his party at the airport, will include President Hannah; Vice Pres. Thomas H. Hamilton; Dean Milton E. Mueller, of the College of Science and Arts; Dean Glen L. Taggart, of International Programs, general chairman of the planning committee.

Others are Bob Becker and Marne Gleason, past and present presidents of Student Government, Dr. John Dorsey, assistant professor of political science, Dr. James D. Edwards, associate professor of accounting, and Than Hui Dan, Vietnamese student.

Also greeting Diem will be Arthur F. Brandstatter, director of the department of public safety, James H. Denison, administrative assistant to the president in charge of public relations, Dr. Edward Weidner, head of the political science department, and Dr. Charles Killingsworth, head of the department of economics.

The latter four made the original visit to Viet Nam, from which MSU's present assistance project grew.

Spartan Guard will act as honor guard during President Diem's visit. The motorcade, including the President's party and the greeting party, will be escorted to the campus by state, Lansing and campus police.

Persons attending the convocation are asked to be in their seats by 3:15. The President and his party are expected to arrive at 3:20, and the program will begin at 3:30.

The faculty, dressed in academic robes, will participate in the professional. The convocation will open with the MSU Band playing the national anthems of the United States and Viet Nam.

The Most Rev. Alexander Zaleski, auxiliary bishop and vicar-general of the Archdiocese of Detroit, will deliver the invocation and the benediction.

Dr. Hannah will introduce President Diem, who is the first head of a foreign state to visit MSU. After the speech by President Diem, an honorary Doctor of Laws degree will be conferred on him.

WKAR Radio and TV will carry the speech by President Diem. It will also be recorded for delayed broadcast by WJR, Detroit.

A Message

Michigan State University, its faculty and students are fortunate in the opportunity to entertain the President of Viet-Nam and his party in the course of their state visit to the United States, and I hope everyone takes full advantage of the opportunity.

We have a special interest in President Ngo Dinh Diem and his courageous fight to build a strong democratic nation. For one thing, he was once a resident on this campus and a faculty consultant in the course of his self-imposed exile from his native land. For another, representatives of Michigan State University have worked in intimate association with him in establishing an effective government and thus all of us share modestly in the success he has achieved. We have a number of Vietnamese students among us, and more will come here from time to time.

Beyond all this, the free nations of the Far East are faithful allies of the United States, and their preservation is essential to the security of our own country. When one of their most distinguished leaders comes to visit and speak to us, as President Ngo Dinh Diem is coming today, every consideration dictates that he be given a warm and enthusiastic reception as evidence of our respect for him as a courageous statesman, of our support of his country, and of our recognition of our mutual national interests.

Dr. John A. Hannah
President

Student Receives Murder Threats

After Letter on Integration Appears in the State News

MSU student John M. Vickers, 25, was threatened Tuesday—the same day a "Letter-to-the-Editor" of his authorship appeared in the State News.

According to Vickers, he and his wife received numerous calls throughout the day. One caller, he claims, warned him that "you're going to die before June 17."

In a phone call to Mel Reiter, State News editor, Vickers said the callers admitted to be Negro students from Michigan State.

Vickers, who is from Atlanta, Ga., wrote in his letter that the Supreme Court is expediting its actions in the South, and as a result is making the task even more dangerous.

In his last graph, he wrote, "The time has come to realize that people who only bathe every two weeks and as a result don't smell too good are nevertheless members of the race of mankind."

It is this statement which Vickers feels has stirred up the controversy. According to him, he wasn't applying this statement to any one group.

"I merely meant that the undesirable personal characteristics of any individual are the fault of all mankind," he said. "I definitely didn't refer to the Negroes or any group in particular."

According to Vickers, none of the callers gave him an opportunity to explain his letter. He claims he is willing to analyze the letter and discuss the segregation problem in the South with any student or students who desire to do so.

Vickers is a sophomore majoring in social science. He lives with his wife and child at 1131 N. Pennsylvania, Lansing.

Strikes, Riots Shake Haitian Government

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP)—Haiti's ruling council Tuesday battled a rising tide of rebellion that threatened at any moment to explode into a shooting war.

A wave of general strikes and anti-government demonstrations swept this Negro Caribbean republic. Police raided radio stations in the capital carrying broadcasts urging the people to rebel.

Critics charged that the seven-man council, which inherited political unrest that has ousted President Paul Magloire and three provisional chiefs of state since last December, is rigging in its own interests a general election set for June 16. They demanded that the council resign. They impeded the registration of voters scheduled to start Tuesday.

Thousands of Haitians, largely illiterate, sharpened machetes and armed themselves with cutspits and other weapons for possible showdown fights with police and the army, newly swelled by reserves to 5,500 men.

Considering Public Relations

Union Committee Reported Pondering Beck's Ouster

WASHINGTON (AP)—A special committee of the Teamsters Union was reported Tuesday to be considering a recommendation that Dave Beck be ousted as union president.

It was understood that the union's new public relations advisers have suggested that Beck ought to go in view of his troubles with the Senate Rackets Committee and the Internal Revenue Service.

The recommendation, it was reported, is that Beck's fellow teamsters officials make a solid demand that he relinquish his powerful position as head of the 1 1/2-million-member union, the largest in the country.

Tony Smith, head of the union's news bureau, would say only that the public relations firm, Allied Public Relations Associates, had submitted a report which "makes specific recommendations of what we feel is best for the union from a public relations standpoint."

Up until now the union leadership has stood fairly well behind the 62-year-old Beck in his fight with the government. Beck's five-year term as president expires later this year. He has announced his intention of seeking re-election.

The public relations recommendations were being considered privately by a five-man committee of the Teamsters general executive board. The committee was set up six weeks ago to deal with the problem of Beck's suspension, as a vice president of the AFL-CIO and a member of the federation's executive council.

Beck has taken the Fifth Amendment 150 times before the Senate committee, pleading that answers to its questions might tend to incriminate him.

The committee accuses Beck of having put more than $300,000 of union funds to his own use. Beck says he has repaid everything he ever borrowed from the union treasury. Recently he was indicted on charges of evading $50,000 in federal taxes on his 1956 income.

Allied Public Relations, headed by David B. Charnay, was hired by the Teamsters in early April to counteract publicity detrimental to the union.

Beck himself had proposed a million-dollar public relations campaign to operate in his own behalf. But the union specified that the program would be limited to publicizing the Teamsters' fight with Beck, and it put the first year cost at $200,000.

Beck's suspension, as a vice president of the AFL-CIO and a member of the federation's executive council, would mean that he would be unable to represent the union in any official capacity.

Says Cuts Would Be A 'Gamble'

Talks to Nation Over Radio, TV

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower told the nation Tuesday night it would be "a fearful gamble" to cut defense spending in the face of Soviet might.

He warned that Soviet leaders are capable of the "supreme folly" of trying to destroy the free world if they ever should believe they could do so without destroying themselves.

Striving to stem the budget-cutting tide in Congress, Eisenhower pledged that his administration is "determined to search out ways to save money and manpower so that government does not further add to the inflationary pressure on the economy."

And he said that if the public will "join us in this determination, we can look forward to sufficient excess of income over expenses to justify future tax reduction as we continue paying down on the public debt."

Of the budget as a whole, the President said:

"No great reductions in it are possible unless Congress eliminates or curtails existing federal programs, or all of us demand less service from the government or unless we are willing to gamble with the safety of our country."

Despite the President's plea, criticism of his budget continued in Congress. Sen. Johnson of Texas, Senate Democratic leader, seized upon Eisenhower's statement that the budget was prudent and 12 billion dollars in departmental requests eliminated before it was submitted to Congress.

Johnson said that if Eisenhower's "businessman's team" overestimated its needs by 12 billion dollars, a further revenue may disclose places for further economies.

He said Eisenhower will "find plenty of willing hands" in his call on Congress for feasible ways of economizing to pave the way for future tax cuts.

Sen. Bridges (R-N.H.) and Mansfield (D-Mont.) said they believe Eisenhower has waited too long to try to overcome the budget cutting movement in Congress.

"He is up against an avalanche," Mansfield said. "He might have turned it three

Golden Opportunity

Four More Needed For Fraternity Row

Fraternity Row needs just four more bids to become a reality.

Here is Michigan State's biggest and finest asset to the fraternity system and it is possible that the Greek organizations on campus will allow this golden opportunity to slip through their fingers.

The university is offering 26 lots for sale, containing approximately one acre each (some larger, others smaller). They will develop the site, pave the streets, construct curbs and walks and install the water supply and sewers.

Despite this "bargain" only six of the 30 fraternities have placed a deposit with the university—Lambda Chi Alpha, Delta Upsilon, Farmhouse, Pi Kappa Tau, Phi Kappa Tau and Delta Tau Delta.

This project is made all the more inviting as it is only in trend with the gradual university exodus to south campus. According to MSU officials, the proposed area for Fraternity Row will eventually be the main artery of campus.

If East and West Shaw halls are converted into women's dorms, as reported, the influx of men students will be located on the Harrison Road side of campus. Plans are also underway for the construction of another men's dormitory in that immediate area.

The development of this new residence hall plus the six in the Brody group will solve all fraternity rush problems. With Harrison Road and Mt. Hope the site for Fraternity Row, there wouldn't be any problem for interested rushers to make it over to the row.

The actual cost for the lots will be offered for sale at a price equal to the investment by the university; and this total cost will be about $18,000 per lot.

The method for the construction is simple. The fraternity makes a down payment to the university of $1,000 after they have selected a lot. The chapter then takes bids from construction companies to build the house, while the school, as mentioned, will take care of the streets, curbs, walks, lights, water and sewers.

However, before final approval of the total project is given, there must be assurance that at least 10 organizations intend to build within a reasonable period, and at least 10 organizations must have agreed to pay for their lots within two years of the date of final approval.

This requirement is necessary to assure the return to the university of its total investment in the project.

The university is also prepared to give consideration to a financing plan similar to that developed by Indiana University. The Indiana plan provides for the university to underwrite the financing by agreeing to take over the house and pay the balance on the loan if there is a mortgage default.

This plan will undoubtedly make it easier for fraternities (sororities are permitted on Fraternity Row although none have shown any interest yet) to negotiate loans with insurance companies or banks.

In addition, the university has made clear that they will accept applications from fraternities and sororities regardless of race, color or creed of members—and any organization that maintains a discriminatory clause in their constitution will be refused admittance to the row.

Here is a chance for every Greek organization on campus to be located in one central locale. Here is the chance for local chapters to gain recognition as the finest in the country. Here is the chance for Michigan State to become one of the leading Greek schools in the nation.

Opportunity won't knock a second time!

Letters to the Editor

Students Attack, Defend, Congratulate

Compliments

To The Editor:

This is a note of congratulation from an alumnus of our fair university. During my four years at State I saw your paper flourish to freedom suppressed on various occasions.

Some of those occasions were voluntary, some were mandatory, some were in fact, but in the end, I have been following through the State News and correspondence with present students about the seven students who were automatically suspended for alleged violation of an automatic suspension rule. I feel your expression of a genuine and valid opinion editorially was in the best long-range tradition.

Having been a victim of the automatic suspension ruling at one time myself, I wonder at the propriety of such a ruling. I think my case, like most of the others, was unfairly handled. I don't think there is room for any animosity toward the administrators of the rule. No, I think they are just as much victims as the students are to a ruling that is, of itself, basically unfair.

I can think of no other cases where an individual in the United States is automatically suspended solely because of apprehension by an enforcement arm of the legal system. This is a basically unhealthy situation and for an institution that professes the teaching of democratic legal principles, it becomes doubly dangerous.

It becomes clear-cut then, that the culmination of this editorial does not lie in this one case, but in the replacement of an equitable rule by a more flexible, fairly administered rule, one which can mete out justice for the individual—for the general student good.

Insofar as some feel that a campaign to correct this evil would defame the university—I feel that they could not be more wrong.

I'm sure that even they would agree that the mark of a real man, or institution made up of men, is an ability to see the faults and take steps to correct them.

Yes, those steps may be painful and the results may not turn out the easiest way to administer a university. But the rewards for the hard work will be a just and equitable method of resolving grievances between the university and the students who make up that university.

All that I can add is my personal wishes for the very best of good luck in this movement. I feel that you decide to undertake it. There are many who feel that you are in the right.

First Aid

To The Editor:

It seems strange that the adage "The shoemaker's children go barefoot" applies to this school. The administration, with Dr. John Hannah at its head, a man who recently traveled to Asia to inspect Allied installations, a man who is a member of the North American Defense, doesn't have a defense nor even a program to prepare this campus in case of an emergency. This is a tenuous area. The destructive force of a tornado or a disaster can be seen on the front page of today's newspapers, especially with what is happening in Texas.

This term Alpha Phi Omega was able to create interest with aid from the State News and Spartan Women's League in a first and course taught by the East Lansing Police Department. This is a surprise town, non-credit course taught at night—which in themselves are factors discouraging the success of this program. Yet, the Police Department had facilities for 35 pupils and the class was filled with a few to spare. This in itself shows that there are civic-minded students who wish to learn to help themselves and others.

It is the hope of Alpha Phi Omega that a program can be instituted to prepare this campus. We advocate that first aid classes be integrated in the physical educational curriculum which will be open to all students. We also advocate that arrangements be made with the Campus Police and Fire Department for first aid stations, disaster crews and shelters. Alpha Phi Omega, being a national service fraternity, offers themselves to this program in preparation. We know that not only members of our fraternity, but also the other civic-minded students on this campus will participate in this program.

Viet Nam Visitor

President Neo Dinh Diem will make his second visit to MSU today—his first since he became president of Viet Nam.

It's not every day that the students of MSU have an opportunity to hear a president of a foreign country talk. In fact today will be the first time that one has come here to visit us.

Diem is one of the leading anti-Communist leaders in Asia today. His friendship with the United States is evidenced by the close cooperation existing between the two countries.

MSU has more than a casual interest in Viet Nam. For the past two years administrators and professors from this university have been working with the Viet Nam government in an effort to help the new nation establish a government. So far our efforts have met with success.

Asia is a vital area of the world as far as the United States is concerned. We are anxious to show the peoples of these countries that we are their friends.

This is a perfect opportunity for us to show Viet Nam that we are interested in their country.

The administration has done everything possible to allow students to attend the convocation in which Diem will receive an honorary Doctor of Laws degree. Classes will be dismissed between 3 and 5 p.m. and all students have been urged to attend.

We should be interested in what our university is doing in Viet Nam. We should be interested in the progress that country is making. What Diem has to say is very important to us.

This is one time when the students can cooperate with the administration and professors in giving an official welcome to Diem and by doing so show him that we are concerned with his country and are anxious to increase the friendship and mutual understanding now existing between us.

Planners Up MSU Outlay

Higher Education Gets Additional Two Million

LANSING (AP) — House budget planners tonight agreed to boost appropriations to higher education by more than two million dollars and give another one million to the state's mental health department.

The action by the House Ways and Means Committee signalled another break-through in the long-battled "hold-the-line" policy against increased state spending.

It raises the Republican-proposed general fund budget for the state past the 340 million dollar mark, roughly 11 million above the original spending program submitted by House and Senate finance committees.

The increases still must win approval in both the House and Senate. Giving way to a relentless campaign by colleges and universities to increase their budgets, the House committee agreed to raise the Senate-approved $84,276,894 operating budget for higher education by $2,033,466.

Generally, the figure represents a six per cent increase in the per student operating cost during the 1956-57 school year.

The University of Michigan moved up the fastest increase—$1,234,586 over the Senate version of $29,761,000.

Michigan State University's proposed share went up by $112,995 for a new total of $26,132,193.

It had received a $529,000 raise earlier in the Senate appropriations committee.

All other state schools but the State Maritime branch of Michigan Tech and Wayne State University, which is not yet fully under state support, received proportionate increases.

Committee recommendations for the State Mental Health Department proposed a $1,095,000 increase in the Senate-approved budget of $62,465,897.

The increases will go mainly for hiring 150 employees in state mental hospitals and clinics above the number recommended by the Senate.

Major increases would go to Hasbrouck Clinic, a children's psychiatric hospital attached to Northville State Hospital, and Lafayette Clinic in Detroit.

Hussein Refuses Convo Bid

JORDAN (AP)—King Hussein has refused an invitation to an anti-Communist Arab "summit" conference in Baghdad.

A palace announcement of the young king's decision was made shortly after Foreign Minister Samir Rifai had told a news conference the invitation had been received from Hussein's cousin, King Faisal of Iraq, and King Saud of Saudi Arabia.

The refusal was announced in Amman shortly after Jordan sources in Baghdad said the Jordan king already had left Amman for Baghdad by plane.

No reason was given for Hussein's decision. The wording of the palace statement hinted, however, that still unsettled conditions in Jordan prevented the king from leaving the country at present.

The statement said: "King Hussein has received an invitation to meet his two brothers, the King of Iraq and the King of Saudi Arabia, on the occasion of Saudi's present visit to Baghdad. As much as it would give King Hussein pleasure to meet with his two royal brothers, present conditions however do not enable his majesty to make this visit at the present moment."

At his news conference, Foreign Minister Rifai said present emergency measures in Jordan would be curtailed "when the government is convinced by the behavior of the citizens that the situation has become normal."

Wilson Says:

U. S. May Send Arms To South Korean Units

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson indicated Tuesday that the United States is considering sending weapons of atomic capability to South Korea.

Wilson was asked by newsmen about a statement made by Secretary of State Dulles that this government may send what Dulles called more modern, effective weapons to the two U. S. Army divisions and the South Korean units facing the modernized Communist forces across the truce line.

Dulles told newsmen the five-year-old Korean armistice agreement must be interpreted in a realistic way. The agreement called for the replacement of worn out weapons by pieces of the same type, and banned the introduction of additional weapons or more modern equipment.

In replying, Wilson did not specify whether any arms shipments would go just to U. S. forces or to the 26 South Korean divisions as well. Newsmen got the impression, however, that he was talking about equipment for U. S. units.

Wilson said the "exact list" of weapons would have to be decided a little later but he added:

"It is the same kind of thing we are talking about for Europe."

Weapons now in Europe include the Air Force's Matador Guided Missile, the Corporal Guided Missile and the Honest John Rocket—all capable of carrying nuclear warheads.

Army Halts Six Month Draft Term

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army Tuesday suspended until July 1 the enlistment of young men of post-draft age for six months of military training.

Acting Secretary of the Army Hugh Milton said the halt in recruiting of men with no prior military service, was only temporary and that it was done to "balance the pipeline" overloaded by a rush of men to join up in the last few months.

Milton, who is the Army's top manpower official, said the suspension would not apply to the National Guard, which is also enlisting recruits for six months of active military training.

He said the recent success of the reserve training program has "surpassed the Army's most optimistic expectations" and voiced the belief that the program, after a slow start nearly two years ago, has finally convinced the American people that it offers the best way for a young man to discharge his immediate military obligation with the least impact on his career.

Other army officials attributed some of the recent enlistments to an April order that slashed the ready reserve obligation of program participants from 7½ years to 3 years.

Milton told a news conference the strength of the Reserve, in terms of numbers receiving pay for weekly drills, is at an all time high.

He said the National Guard strength has soared to 436,000, up 33,000 in the past four months, while the total number of men in Army Reserve Training Units has reached 264,000.

Milton said that the Army will have to take another look at the six-month training program after July 1. He foresees the possibility of some continuing controls of the number of men who could be accepted for the program.

Most enlistees in the program are between the ages of 17 and 19. Recently, however, the Army began accepting enlistments from men 26 and over who had no previous military experience.

Leaving the campus at 7 a.m., the band of students will arrive in Holland in time for a parade of Michigan high school handbanners. The bands will be joined by costumed units, floats, and baton twirlers from all parts of the country.

Multi-colored displays of tulip beds will be open to the public. Other tulip beds will line Holland's streets for miles.

A panorama of tulip arrangements will be staged by the Holland Garden Club.

Residents of Holland will present a unique show featuring Dutch folk dances, songs and novelties. The Klompen Dancers, dressed in picturesque costumes, will perform in the streets during the festival.

An exhibit of Dutch furniture, household goods and handicrafts is on display in the Netherlands Museum. A wooden shoe carver will present a demonstration of his art.

Students who make the trip will eat their noon lunch on the bus. They will arrive back at MSU at 8 p.m.

Ike Upholds Spending

(Continued from Page 1) months ago but there have been too many conflicting statements from administration officials about spending and economy in the meantime.

Bridges said in advance that Eisenhower's speech might have some influence, then added:

"But I don't think the President's appeal will be sufficient to turn the tide. The pressure for economy in government is increasing and it is my judgment Congress is going to put this budget substantially."

Democrats reported before Eisenhower went on the air that they would wait until he had spoken, to decide whether to demand equal radio-TV time for a reply.

On the other hand Sen. Saltonstall (R-Mass.) said Eisenhower's appeal to the people demonstrated clearly and simply that there is no safe route to the future of our country.

And Sen. Clifford Case (R-N.J.) commented:

"No one who heard the President's speech can have any doubts as to his conviction which shone through every sentence—that the national security and welfare are at stake in the current debate over his budget recommendations."

Hollywood Stars Testify Against Confidential Mag

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actress Maureen O'Hara and pianist Laurence Silverman appeared at voluntary witnesses Tuesday before the Los Angeles County grand jury conducting a criminal investigation of Confidential Magazine.

Both the film star and actress and the pianist were subjects of articles in Confidential.

Maureen O'Hara, wearing a blue and white print dress, white gloves and gold earrings, told the grand jury that Confidential articles about her were "completely without basis in fact and untrue to her personality and professional life."

Silverman, dressed in a black suit and tie, told the grand jury that Confidential articles about him were "completely without basis in fact and untrue to his personality and professional life."

My sole purpose in making to appear before the grand jury is to set in any way possible in obtaining a criminal indictment against Confidential magazine and the individuals who published it. The story printed about me is of course untrue.

'Pirates' Says Councilman

NEW YORK (AP)—Abe Stark, president of New York's City Council, accused the mayors of Los Angeles and San Francisco of "organized piracy" in trying to woo away the Dodgers and Giants baseball teams.

He said Mayor Norris Poulson of Los Angeles went to the Brooklyn Dodgers training camp at Vero Beach, Fla., to try to get the Dodgers to move the franchise to his city.

"And the mayor of San Francisco (George Christopher) had the effrontery to come to New York to try to take the Giants away from us," Stark added.

"I resent strongly the organized piracy of the mayors of Los Angeles and San Francisco for attempting to take business away from New York. It is an unsportsmanlike attack," he said.

Stark said the Dodgers and Giants franchises were "stolen" from New York.

Red's Streak Ends As Phils Win, 10-8

CINCINNATI (AP)—Philadelphia's Phillies pounded 12 hits off five pitchers Tuesday night, including two homers, trimming Cincinnati's Redlegs, 10-8, and clipping off a Redleg win streak at 12.

The Phillies blew an early three-run lead then roared back in the seventh inning with four runs on four hits and an error by Redleg hurler Joe Nuxhall.

The Reds had taken a brief 4-1 lead in the fifth inning when Bob Thurman pinch-hit a three-run homer.

Philadelphia climbed over Brooklyn into third place through the victory. Cincinnati was knocked out of a tie for first place by a full game back of the league-leading Milwaukee Braves.

The Phillies had to call in Robin Roberts in the ninth inning to cool off a Redleg rally.

Roberts took over for Jim Heath after Don Hook had doubled.

Hook scored on a double by Johnny Temple before Roberts nailed down the third out.

Stan Lopata's triple with the bases loaded in the first inning gave the Phillies a quick lead.

The Redlegs punched out two runs in the opening inning, but Philadelphia inched ahead on John Anderson's homer in the third.

The Phillies enhanced their lead with two runs in the ninth inning of Ed Bouchee's homer over the centerfield wall.

MSU Staff Surses Education

Needs for higher education in Oakland and Macomb counties will be explored in a survey started by MSU this week.

According to Dr. Robert Hopper, head of the department of administrative and educational research, the survey will have two objectives:

1. To learn the amount of interest among Oakland and Macomb residents for education beyond high school.

2. To learn the demand for various courses which might be offered at the planned MSU branch near Rochester.

The branch will be located on the Meadowbrook estate of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Wilson, presented to MSU last January.

MSU will cooperate with local school officials in distributing more than 100,000 questionnaires, Hopper said.

The questionnaires will be given to students in the 10th and 12th grades, in the two counties, and to parents of 10th, 11th and 12th graders.

Later in the summer, Hopper said, questionnaires will be given to area management and labor groups, women's organizations, civic service clubs, and other groups.

Living Units to Meet For Water Carnival

A Water Carnival living unit meeting will be held Thursday night at 8 in the Tower Room.

Ends Year's Suspension of Aid

Arms Shipment to Yugoslavia Wins Eisenhower's Approval

WASHINGTON, (AP) The United States, with the approval of President Eisenhower, is resuming shipment to Yugoslavia of jet combat planes, tanks and other heavy military equipment.

This was announced Tuesday by the State Department, ending almost a year's suspension of major military aid to the independent Communist country.

The announcement said the decision to start arms moving again was based on a finding by the President that "Yugoslavia is and firmly intends to remain independent" and that "it is in the interest of the United States" to keep it free of Soviet domination.

The restored aid program will aid Yugoslavia with additional jet fighter planes in the immediate future. Some F86 and F84's released by this country's European allies have already been reconditioned and are on European fields awaiting delivery.

Officials here reported, however, that while Yugoslavia's small air force will thus be strengthened, Yugoslavia's Soviet satellite neighbors, Rumania and Bulgaria, already have more modern equipment in the form of MIG-17 and MIG-19 fighters supplied by Russia.

The military aid program, started about five years ago for Yugoslavia, was interrupted in mid-1956 except for spare parts for American military equipment which the Yugoslav forces had previously received.

The interruption was ordered by the President because of bitter objections in Congress to giving military equipment to a Communist country, particularly after Yugoslav President Tito had joined in efforts with Soviet Premier Bulganin and Communist Party Chief Khrushchev to improve Russian-Yugoslav relations.

In recent months, after the uprising against Communist rule in Hungary, relations between Moscow and Belgrade have cooled considerably.
