Guy Mollet Defeated in Assembly

Defeat Presaged Sunday Night

PARIS (AP)—The National Assembly early Monday turned down Socialist Guy Mollet's bid to head a new French government.

The official count showed the former premier was rejected by a vote of 290-227. Assembly members turned a deaf ear to Mollet's plea that the nation urgently needs a government to face its mounting problems. He was the fourth man to try to form a cabinet for the government of Premier Maurice Bourgès-Maunoury fell four weeks ago.

Mollet's defeat was presaged Sunday night when the Independents and Peasants, controlling 99 of the votes, was counting on to give him a total of about 270, decided to vote against him. At a party caucus, 81 deputies went on record against Mollet while only three were for him.

Holds Longevity Record as Premier

This was in repayment for the Socialist refusal last week to support the Independents' Antoine Pinay for the premiership. Mollet, who holds the post-war record for longevity in the premier's chair with 15 months of service, had sought to form France's 24th government since World War II. His defeat throws the problem of finding a premier back to President Rene Coty.

Appealing for assembly endorsement, Mollet told the deputies both the state and private citizens must improve on themselves. He called for a more rigorous discipline. He said his first duty would be to halt inflation and the falling value of the franc.

As part of this program, Mollet said it would be necessary to "consider recourse to foreign loans, in appealing to the solidarity of our Atlantic and European allies."

To Float New Bond Issue

He said a new bond issue would have to be floated in France. New advances asked from the Bank of France, new taxes levied by the assembly and government spending curtailed.

His speech drew a cool reception from the assembly and references to higher taxes brought groans from some deputies. Mollet's defeat created new bitterness in the already hopelessly divided assembly and it was believed that Coty's task of finding a new premier had been complicated further by the ill-tempered oratory during the day and night of debate.

Even before the vote started, when it was already certain that Mollet could not win a majority, word was passed around the assembly that members would have to meet later Monday to approve a new request to the Bank of France for funds. The French treasury is virtually empty and the money is needed to keep operations going on a day-to-day basis.

Bourgès-Maunoury was toppled Sept. 30 when the assembly refused to accept his proposal for giving more self-government to Algeria. He immediately offered his resignation but Coty insisted that he remain in office until a new government can be formed. Thus, the lame duck Bourgès-Maunoury government will have to go before the assembly to get approval for the Bank of France advances.

Cultural-Scientific

Russia Proposes U. S. Exchange Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia Monday proposed a sweeping agreement with the United States to stimulate cultural-scientific exchanges, including direct U. S.-Soviet Air Service.

The broad-ranging plan covered 52 exchanges of persons, projects. It carefully covered away from cold war positions.

The Soviet proposals were laid down by Ambassador Georgi Zarubin at the opening of negotiations at the State Department. The second meeting, to consider these along with American suggestions, will be held next Monday.

William S. B. Lacy, Special Assistant to Secretary Dulles, headed the American delegation. Lacy countered himself with a brief opening statement, mostly touting Russia for blocking more liberal U. S.-Soviet exchanges. He said he would offer U. S. proposals "presently."

Lacy and Zarubin agreed that their aims as Zarubin put it, "to create an atmosphere of confidence and mutual understanding between our countries."

Swaps Congress Members

The reputation of Americans and Russians for "friendliness and hospitality is well known." The Soviet proposal, among other things, called for swapping visits by members of the American congress and the Supreme Soviet of the Soviet Union.

Zarubin said this would provide a useful contacts between these legislative bodies and promote visits of that kind for the future.

He said the Congress-Supreme Soviet visits could take place in 1958. During that year and the next, he added, there might be a joint conference of inter-parliamentary groups, as well as a meeting of Soviet and American United Nations and UNESCO representatives.

UNESCO as the UN authority for education, scientific and cultural improvement.

The Soviet proposal was based on reciprocity. It called for visits by experts in industry, agriculture, science, the arts, trade unions, radio-television, education, trade, sports and news reporting.

Russians Cover Everything

The Soviet Union is prepared to discuss the question of concluding a convention on cultural cooperation between the Soviet Union and the United States of America, Zarubin said. He requested the U. S. reaction to this.

Some American officials commented that the Russians appeared to have covered everything. They added wryly that this often has meant in the past that they really mean to do nothing.

It was noted that the Soviets made clear their radio-television ideas would be devoid of any cold war politics. American officials, on the other hand, called for "a periodic exchange of radio and TV broadcasts of commentaries on world events."

Lacy, in emphasizing this, said the United States has been trying to set up such a regular exchange for the past two years.

Syrian Foreign Ministry Says Turkey May Attack

Ruling Presidium Removes Zhukov

Unofficial Reports Received From Moscow Broadcast

LONDON (AP)—Radio Liberation reported Monday Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov has been fired from the ruling Presidium of the Soviet Communist party and is facing disgrace.

These reports are completely unofficial. They come from members of Western diplomatic missions in Moscow. But indications were that Soviet Communist party boss Nikita S. Khrushchev had called an urgent meeting of the party Central Committee probably to "dismiss Zhukov's ouster as defense minister."

Confidential blocked correspondents efforts to dig out hard news from Moscow. It appeared to be the most thorough censorship imposed since the Stalin era.

It was considered possible Khrushchev was repeating his performance of last June, when he summoned the full party Central Committee to confirm the purge of Georgi Malenkov, Lazar Kaganovich and V. M. Molotov from their high party and government posts. Khrushchev apparently had been ousted from the party's ruling Presidium—then a nine-member Politburo—but a hasty meeting of the Central Committee backed him and turned the tide against those accused of being part of an "anti-party group."

New Shakeup in Kremlin Hierarchy

It seemed likely Khrushchev was calling the signal again and this might mean a new shakeup in the Kremlin hierarchy. There was some speculation that a place was being cleared for Zhukov, but this idea was fast being jettisoned among Westerners who pointed to Zhukov's part in the purges surrounding Zhukov's dismissal.

The announcement that Zhukov was "relieved" of his defense ministry and succeeded by Marshal Rodion Malinovsky came in a short two-sentence announcement Saturday night. No official comment has been forthcoming from the Kremlin, nor have party newspapers commented directly on Zhukov's future.

Much of the material correspondents tried to get on the nose of the Soviet Party press has been held up by the censor. This included textual material from Pravda editorials which might have contained clues to the mystery. Stockholm dispatches said copies of Soviet papers have not been received there since Friday, although it is normal for the distributors to receive the papers the day after publication. Only excerpts of Pravda editorials have been filed from Moscow.

Removal of Zhukov From Party's Presidium Surely Would Mean Disgrace For the Man Who Led the Russians to Victory in Germany 12 Years Ago and Who Became a Letter-Writing Friend of President Eisenhower.

The standards will be adopted as formal regulations.

In present form the standards cover radioactive isotopes, X-rays, gamma radiation and nuclear tools used for medical and industrial purposes.

Shown are Raymond Massey, Agnes Moorehead and Martin Gabel as they presented "The Rivalry" last night in the aud.

History Revived

'The Rivalry' Scores Hit With MSU Audience

The time tested phrase "history made before your eyes" would in some measure be fittingly said of Monday night's performance of "The Rivalry," a dramatization of the Littleton-Hughes Debates of 1858.

The performance was directed by James Rossiter and featured a cast of MSU students. The play depicts the famous debate between Stephen A. Douglas and Abraham Lincoln in 1858.

Gale, Bieber Top Frosh Race After Late Count

The results of the Frosh Race were announced after a late count. Gale and Bieber were the top performers.

Acting Was Flawless

The acting in the play was flawless, capturing the essence of the historical event.

Pi Kappa Phi Wins Fall Blood Campaign

Winner of the fall blood campaign sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega and Spartan Women's League was Pi Kappa Phi. Information from the sponsoring bodies was generously given to the state news.

Director Herb Harmon, AUS director, commended the cast for their excellent performance.

Final voting will be held Thursday.

Reds Formalize Syrian Agreement

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—The Syrian foreign ministry expressed belief Monday Turkey may attack Syria during NATO exercises of U. S. British and Turkish forces scheduled to start Thursday. It warned other NATO nations not to be tricked into it.

The foreign ministry statements were sent to NATO members in notes saying Turkey might attack in the belief she will get NATO support and protection during possible aggressive operations.

If this happens, the notes said, NATO forces would be called to facilitate the aggression. The Syrian notes expressed the belief NATO powers do not approve or accept this.

Syria and Russia have previously charged Turkey with provoking such aggression after Turkish parliamentary election. Those elections were held Sunday.

Maneuvers Begin Thursday

A NATO announcement Saturday from London, Turkey said the U. S., Britain and Turkish forces would engage in maneuvers for three days beginning Oct. 31 along the southwestern Turkish coast.

It would be a land, sea and air operation involving two U. S. aircraft carriers, two cruisers, one U. S. Missile Cruiser, two British Royal Air Force planes and Turkish troops. The announcement said.

The Syrian warning came at a time when the Soviet Union demanded an economic and technical cooperation agreement with Syria and was negotiating the agreement of Syria's independence in the future and to fostering her economic and political independence and strengthening friendly relations between her and the Soviet Union.

Syria Receives Russian Equipment

A Soviet-Syrian communique said the two nations joined in the past without any political or other strings attached.

Under the agreement, Syria will receive Russian machinery and equipment for a 200 million dollar development project. She has 12 years to repay the Soviets at 2 1/2 per cent annual interest. The amount of the Soviet loan was not disclosed but relation sources said it amounts to about 100 million dollars.

It was the announcement of this agreement last August that first set off "Western" fears that Syria was slipping into the Soviet orbit. After the announcement, Soviet Army officers took control of the Syrian Army.

In addition to extending economic aid, the Soviet Union has promised she will not stand if Syria is attacked.

The signing of the economic pact took place during glittering ceremonies in the conference room of government house P. V. Nikitin, Deputy Chairman of the Soviet Foreign Economic Relations Committee, signed for Russia. Acting Defense Minister, Kirilil Izoren and other ministers signed for Syria.

Placement Bureau—An MSU Specialty

Job placement is a serious business, and the Placement Bureau takes its job seriously.

Handling more than 300 interviews per day, the 15 member staff manages to prepare an information sheet and assemble a complete folder on every student interviewing...

Director Jack Breslin and his staff conduct two salary surveys each year and supply students base salary figures from the information.

For the last nine years Placement Bureau has sponsored Career Carnival, an informal information service in which students meet company representatives to discuss employment opportunities...

This project in itself deserves praise not only for the opportunity it affords students, but the fact that after nine years, it is still unique in the nation.

No other school has a similar event operating on such a large scale or covering such a wide range of employment opportunities, though many are now considering the idea.

The Placement Bureau arrangement is itself a virtual rarity. In all the Big 10, only MSU and Purdue have a centrally operating placement service.

Formalized in 1943 by Dean Tom King, who was head of Police Administration at that time, Placement Bureau was the crystallization of a new idea of central operation considered more efficient.

Formerly all placement was handled on a departmental basis. This system made it necessary for a large company, interested in engineers, accountants and secretaries, to write separate letters to respective departments, arrange separate interviewing schedules...

Under the centralized system all interviews were handled through one organization, all records filed in one place, and the expected efficiency became a reality.

The administration regards Placement as the marketing division of the university, not so much for handing the student a job, or handing an employer an employe, but for making possible a contact between employer and student.

Cooperation between Placement Bureau and the administration throughout almost 15 years has enabled Placement to solve most of its problems. Its one big headache is space. There are only eight interview rooms available in Morrill Hall.

But even this problem will soon be solved. By Dec. 15, according to King, Placement Bureau should be settled in its new quarters in the Student Services Building.

Already envied by other colleges and universities for its efficient centralized operation, the bureau will be operating from a virtual mecca of placement centers.

Breslin is confident this will be the finest placement center in the country. It will be equipped to handle 300 to 400 interviews per day and a student body of 35,000. There will be a waiting lounge with ceiling loudspeakers, telephone equipped interview rooms, a library and shower stalls for company personnel.

Placement Bureau already assists 90 percent of the students interviewing in obtaining jobs—a tremendous record. It finds jobs for approximately 350 alumni each year, and gives vocational counseling at the student's request.

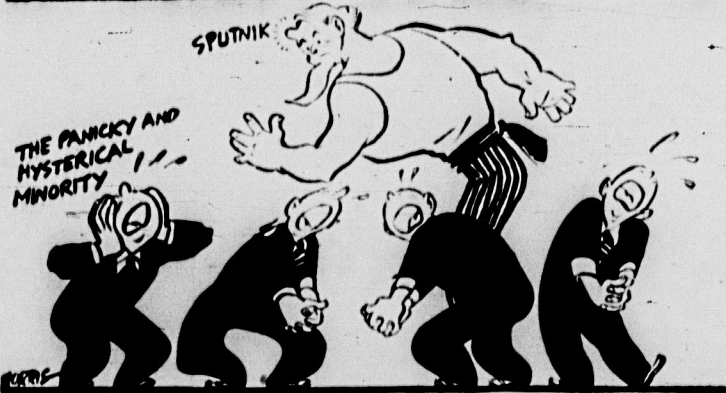

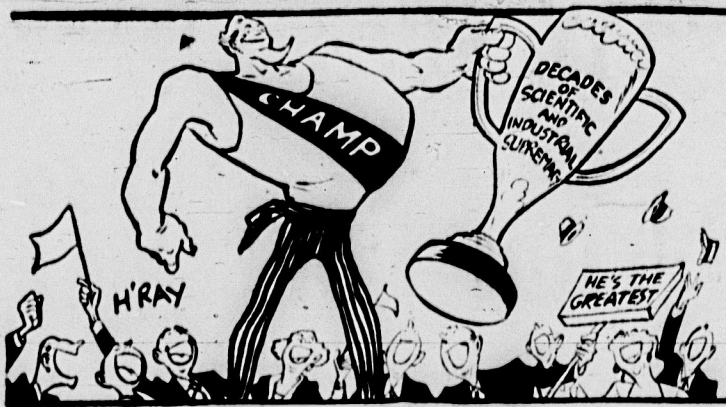

Such an effort by the Placement Bureau should not go unnoticed. And perhaps the best way to show appreciation for this service is to utilize it.

Interpreting the News

Nikita Reveals Conquest Aim

By J. M. ROBERTS Associated Press News Analyst

Nikita Khrushchev is getting to be almost as good as Stalin at unifying the West.

In his step by step elimination of the races which stand between him and dictatorship, he more and more reveals himself as the type of gambler of which the world stands in hearty fear.

For a while the free world became absorbed in problems of economics, with a growing belief that development of destructive capacity must exclude the possibility of war.

Coexistence was becoming a reality though far from an accepted policy.

The energy which the west had once put into preparing military defenses was shifting more and more toward the possibilities of winning a cold war.

Complacency grows. There was nothing like the situation after World War II.

when the West threw down its arms and decided itself to healing its wounds. But complacency will regard to war was waning.

Then Russia started moving into the Middle East, precipitating the Suez crisis, and revealed itself as utterly ruthless in presenting a world wide solution of the Eastern European satellite problem.

For intriguement a little broke up the London Diplomatic Conference, with an announcement of an International Ballistic Missile as the final solution.

Taking advantage of developments in Syria, Khrushchev took a position toward Turkey, clearly akin to that of Adolf Hitler when he was about to be attacked by Poland. The West has issued firm warnings.

His emphasis on Russian military strength in connection with Sputnik brought immediate reaction in the West. Getting off a motorized movement for greater co-operation in military science.

Now he appears to have re-emerged from his path. Marshal Zhukov, looked upon by the West as a powerful moderating force in Kremlin circles.

First Khrushchev broke the power of the old secret police, through which opposition to his regime might have been solidified. Now, with all the talk of the necessity of subordinating everything to party political control, he is trying to take over the army which, under a popular leader such as Zhukov, might have proved another rallying point for opposition.

Khrushchev is not the one to have misread the point when Zhukov saved him last summer in his conflict with Molotov and Malenkov.

Zhukov had become the second most powerful man in Russia, was close to par with the party boss.

Shrewd Peasant The initial speculation that Zhukov was being promoted had died down. Since Khrushchev long ago demagogued his denunciation of the bourgeoisie, what could Zhukov be promoted to?

The man that is being promoted is the Volatile Khrushchev. After her recent interview with him, Eleanor Roosevelt referred to Khrushchev as the shrewd peasant type.

What makes the would-be pey today is its doubt whether this self-aggrandizing peasant type has a sufficient grasp of world situations to moderate his ambition.

LAWRENCE, N.Y. (AP) Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) said today loyalty-security checks on scientists have held back this country's flight and missile programs.

He questioned whether our government is scientifically "iterate," and endorsed the idea of creating a new cabinet post filled by a top scientist to head up the research effort.

Kefauver said Russia's success in launching Sputnik may be in the end in the long run be spurring free world efforts.

Army Depicts Role in ICBM

Perfecting Missile Defense

Blasts Air Force Arbitrary Defense

WASHINGTON (AP)—Army generals took pot shots Monday at Air Force doctrine and what they called "arbitrary" defense department rules curbing the Army's role in guided missiles.

They proclaimed, too, that an Army weapon now being perfected may provide a defense against the intercontinental ballistic missile.

The occasion was the third annual meeting of the Assn. of the United States Army, an organization of past and present members of the Army.

The week's meeting is being held against the background of increased competition among the Army, Navy and Air Force in the missile effort. That competition has reached the point where the House Appropriations Committee is moving in to find out what effect inter-service rivalry may be having on the Army's missile and satellite programs.

Rivalry Soft-Pedaled?

An attempt by the defense department to soft-pedal the rivalry appeared to be behind some of the developments at the first day of the association convention. Those developments included:

The substitution of an originally prepared speech by Lt. Gen. Stanley R. Michelson, head of the Army's air defense command, which said "inter-service rivalry is a dangerous enemy that the Army's current model of the Nike anti-aircraft missile can reach and kill any bomb that flies today" and that "the Army points the way for America to shed herself of the stigma of the Douthet theory of mass destruction of civilian population."

Gen. Willard G. Wyman, chief of the continental Army command, said in his prepared speech "I consider it dangerous to fetter our development now with arbitrary range limitations and rigid definitions of the future battle area which an enemy may choose to ignore."

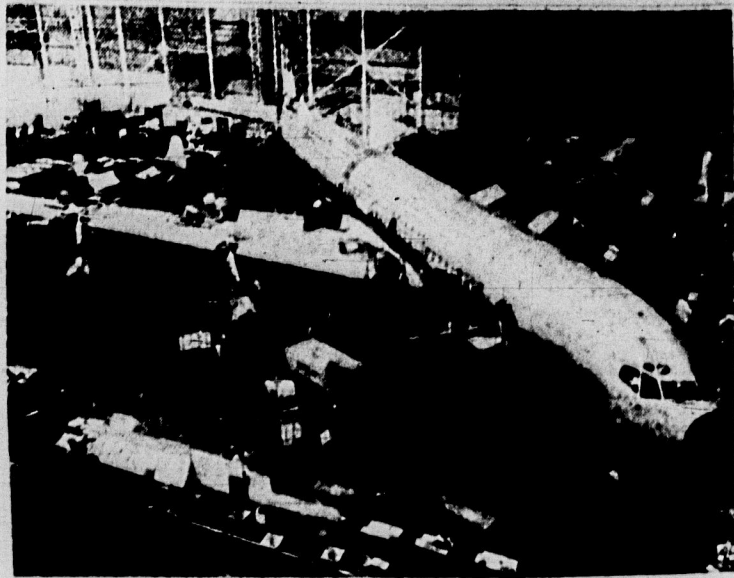

The top-ranking Army officer, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chief of staff, told the Assn. the Army already may be the means of opposing with the ICBM.

Outgrowth of Nike

He identified this as an outgrowth of the present Nike anti-aircraft missile. He said the Army project in the field of an intercontinental missile is the "Nike" which already exists in the form of research and development components.

He said he is convinced a weapons system against the ICBM can be provided "for a price which is within reach." While Taylor made no mention of the defense department's objective on missiles would need some changing to permit Army movement into presumably long-range antimissile missiles.

Norstad, a U.S. Air Force general whose NATO headquarters are in Paris, conferred with President Eisenhower during a one-day visit to Washington.

In saying NATO would respond with force to aggression against any member, Norstad noted that the NATO Treaty itself is an attack against any member in an attack against all.

Satellite Unseen for Three Days

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Satellite Sputnik and its rocket have been playing hard to find in the past three days.

Sputnik has been seen and heard since its launching on a three-day run, the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory said Monday.

With the exception of one report that a much more powerful rocket had been spotted near Earth night.

The Naval Research Laboratory in Washington reported Monday that the rocket had been seen near Lima, Peru, on Monday morning by an observer at one of the NRO's stations.

Despite the difficulty of seeing the satellite, observers at the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington reported that the satellite may have been seen.

They said the possibility of a satellite's presence is particularly probable because of the nature of the satellite's orbit, which is such that it is visible only at certain times.

Wolverine Meet Scheduled for Males

Male students interested in working on the Wolverine are urged to attend a meeting in 34 Union Hall at 7:30 p.m. according to Harry Clark, assistant sales manager.

There is great strength at the present time, Norstad said, "we are not strong enough in all respects, but we have great strength. We can give a good account of ourselves."

Secretary of State Dulles, and other White House officials also had reports that the Zhukov matter was not discussed at the meeting with Eisenhower.

Dulles told questioners who asked about the significance of Zhukov's removal, they would have to get their answers from Moscow.

NATO Has Strength

Later in the day, Norstad made another report on NATO's progress, in a speech to the Assn. of the United States Army. This is an organization of past and present members of the army.

Norstad said he believes it would be extremely difficult for anyone to deliberately decide to start a Third World War. And if

Noisy Crowd Costs Colorado 2 TDs

DENVER (AP)—Colorado Coach Dal Ward said Monday the noise from an "unsportsmanlike crowd" at Norman, Okla., "cost us one touchdown and possibly two" against Oklahoma, the Nation's No. 1 football team, Saturday.

Oklahoma defeated Colorado 14-13, but Ward didn't claim Colorado would necessarily have won "Soon as you score against Oklahoma," Ward told a Buffalo Roundup Club luncheon. "The Big Red reacts sharply and they might score several times."

Reviewing the game, Ward said:

"Never in my life and I've seen more than 400 football games, have I witnessed such a spectacle as I saw at Norman."

"When our quarterback signaled for silence, the partisan crowd would scream all the more. And it wasn't only the crowd. I'll always remember that bass drummer in the Oklahoma band pounding harder and harder when our players pleaded for silence."

Ward said the principal effect from the crowd's noise, "cost us a touchdown and two yards to go. It was the same as virtually having six downs to make the seven yards to a touchdown."

Quarterback (Ralph) Herbst signaled to the crowd with his arms for silence but the partisans shouted even louder. As a result, when he called "up 2," the center thought he had called "hike" and lifted the ball, Herbst, of course, wasn't ready and we were penalized for illegal procedure that cost us a touchdown."

Ward said that when Oklahoma's quarterback called for silence from the crowd there was a different reaction.

"The referee called time out," Ward said, "and the public address announcer asked the crowd to be quiet. And there was quiet."

Ward said that this instance occurred when Oklahoma was trailing 13-7 and was at mid-field on the way to a touchdown.

After the game Ward said, "Many of Oklahoma's finest football players in the past came around to me and said they were ashamed of the crowd's actions."

Ward said he expected Oklahoma, winner of 45 straight games, to continue its unbeaten string this season. "The only way you can beat them is with manpower," Ward said. "Oklahoma is not going to be beaten by a fluke on an off Saturday. You're going to have to beat them with a powerhouse."

Fans Honor O'Malley, Players Transplanted Dodgers Get Welcome in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Los Angeles borrowed a touch of Hollywood glamor Monday to roar a welcome to the recently transplanted Dodgers.

More than 1,000 fans attended a civic luncheon to honor Dodger President Walter O'Malley and his players, known now as the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Former umpire Beans Reardon set the tone for the affair when he yelled, "Play ball!"

Guests at the head table immediately picked up rubber baseballs and tossed them at the audience. There was a wild scrambling for the mementos, and during the rest of the luncheon guests asked the baseball stars and officials to sign them.

The banquet room was bedecked with Dodger pennants, cartoons, and placards. Tables were heaped with popcorn, pop and peanuts.

Greatest Catch

In back of the speakers table stretched a giant sign which showed a Brooklyn bat hitting a baseball across country to a glove in Los Angeles. "The greatest catch in baseball," the sign said, referring to Los Angeles' getting the Brooklyn team.

Comedian Joe E. Brown, Hollywood's No. 1 baseball fan, was master of ceremonies. "But he had to share laughs with Dodger president O'Malley,

Umpire Barlick Will Return to Duty

CINCINNATI (AP)—President Warren Giles of the National League announced Monday that umpire Al Barlick will return to active duty next spring.

Barlick has been on leave of absence since the spring of 1956 when he was stricken with a heart ailment. Giles said Barlick's physician, Dr. Richard Allyn of Springfield, Ill., has approved the umpire's return to work.

With Barlick returning, Giles said the contract of Bill Baker would not be renewed. Baker, a former major league catcher, who joined the umpiring staff last spring, plans to devote his full time to his automobile business in China Grove, N.C.

Barlick first joined the National League staff in 1940. He had started umpiring in major leagues in 1936.

Bell Works On New NFL Schedule

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A new six-year schedule whereby more inter-conference games would be played to pacify Eastern owners who say the big games are all in the West is being worked on by Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League.

Under the present NFL schedule, each team plays home and away against members of its own conference and two games with clubs from the opposite conference.

This system has come under fire from some members of the Eastern conference, notably Philadelphia's own owners, Washington Redskins and Pittsburgh Steelers.

The owners of these clubs feel all the "big money" is in the Western Conference, which consists of the Chicago Bears, Los Angeles Rams, Detroit Lions, Green Bay Packers, Baltimore Colts and San Francisco Forty Niners.

False. Statistically, there's only a 50-50 chance that you will return to your home area. If you left your home State to go to school, the odds are 2 out of 3 that you will settle down in a different State after you get your degree.

Comeback of Year Is Staged by Shantz

Wins 11 Games, ERA Title In Best Season Since '52

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobby Shantz rallied from a 27-pitching record in 1955 to win 11 games and the American League's earned run championship the past season. He was an important factor in the pennant drive of the New York Yankees.

For his performance, the 32-year-old left-hander Monday was credited with having made the American League Comeback of the Year in 1956 in a vote by members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Sixty-nine of the 152 participating writers in the annual Associated Press poll voted for Shantz. Gene Woodling, Cleveland outfielder, was named on 22 ballots.

Ted Williams of Boston, who won the league's batting title for the fifth time, was third with 12 votes. He was followed by Washington outfielder Roy Sievers and Baltimore pitcher Filly Lee. Each had nine.

Shantz, who at 5-6 1/2 is the shortest player in the majors, was acquired from Kansas City last February. Although tabbed for bullpen duty by Manager Casey Stengel, he became the club's top spot starter following an injury to Whitey Ford.

In the first two months of the season he looked over 26 in the pitcher, he was in 1952 when a 24-7 record with Philadelphia brought him the circuit's most valuable player award. Bobby went into a slump after mid-season but again came to the fore in late July, winning five out of seven games to help the team clinch the pennant with a 2-13 record in the final 10 games.

The record bookkeeping of course was his most productive year—1952. He pitched 26 2/3 more innings of the time he compiled a 2.9 earned run average in 1953, 1.9 in 1954 and 3.19 in 1955.

Shantz Modest

Informed of the honor at his home in Amherst, Pa., just outside Philadelphia, Shantz offered a typically modest reaction.

"Good if you can't win for the Yankees, who fan your wish for me," he joked.

He thanked the Yankees as a great defensive team who make a pitcher's job easy.

He said that among the many people he had to thank for what he called "a comeback" were Philadelphia's former manager Lou Boudreau and trainer Jim Fowell, his wife, mother and father for their unswerving faith and just plain old luck. "I'll be writing thanks to them all," he said.

Woodling, a 26 1/2 batter in 1956, finished with a .322 average in 1957. This year has his highest mark in an 11-year big league career that also included stints with Pittsburgh of the National League and New York and Baltimore in the American.

"That 19-year-old Williams pitched 43 average 43 points in '57. He pitched up with .383, the highest major league percentage since 1941, he hit .406 in 1941."

Washington Sluggers

Sevens had 42 home runs and was the first Washington player to lead in this department in the league's history. He also won the circuit's runs batted in crown with 114. In 1956, Roy had 29 homers and 95 RBIs.

Loew won 10 more games the past season than he did in 1956. His record was 12-7.

Others who received votes were first baseman Earl Torgeson of Chicago, five; Kansas City pitcher Virgil Trucks, four;

49ers Fans Mourn Death Of Morabito

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—

The San Francisco 49ers are mourning the death of a player who died of a heart attack while playing for the team in the National Football League.

But there was only gloom on the faces of the players on Wednesday night. The team will be at the Queen Mary Hotel at 10 a.m. at St. Catherine's Catholic Church in Burlingame.

The boys are broken up and may not feel like any football that day, Johnson said.

But they'll be here at 10 a.m. Thursday for next Sunday's game with the Detroit Lions.

Morabito, whose brother Victor now succeeds him as principal owner, handled the multiple business problems of the team—and still managed time to show a personal interest in the players.

May Not Drill

The 49ers, as usual, drill Monday. Bill Johnson, an assistant coach, said the players might drill lightly today but their hearts wouldn't be in it.

Whether the usual Wednesday afternoon drill will take place hasn't been decided.

SCIENCE MADE SIMPLE: No. 1

Though this column is intended to be a source of innocent merriment for all eyes and not to concern itself with weighty matters, I have asked my sponsors, the makers of Marlboro, whether I might not, from time to time, use this space for a short lesson in science. "Makers," I said to them, "might I not, from time to time, use this space for a short lesson in science?"

They agreed with many a kindly smile, the makers of Marlboro, for they are the most agreeable of men. Their benevolence is due in no small measure to the cigarettes they smoke; for Marlboro is a cigarette to soothe the most savage of breasts. I refer not only to the flavor which, as everyone knows, is a delight to the palate, but also to the Marlboro contour. Here is no tediously contrived device to fray the fingers and nip the nerves, here, instead, is a hip-ton box that opens like a charm, and opens you to a kindly smile. Add to all this the best filter ever made, and you can see that you get a lot to like.

Let us begin our series of science lessons with chemistry. It is fitting that chemistry should be the first, for it is the oldest of sciences, having been discovered by Benjamin Franklin in 168 B.C. when an apple fell on his head while he was shooting the breeze with Pythagoras one day outside the Acropolis. The reason they were outside the Acropolis and not inside was that Pythagoras had been thrown out for drawing right triangles all over the walls.

They had several meetings outside the Acropolis, but finally Franklin said, "Look, Pythagoras, this is nothing against you, see, but I'm no younger anymore and if I keep laying around on my wet grass with you, I'm liable to get the breakdown fever. I'm going inside." Pythagoras, friendless now, tramped around Athens for awhile, then drifted off to Mexico where he married a girl named Harriet Sigatos and went into the chuck-a-luck business. (He would certainly be forgotten today had not Shakespeare written "You Know Me, Al.")

But I digress. We were beginning a discussion of chemistry, and the best way to begin is with fundamentals. Chemicals are divided into elements. There are four: air, earth, fire, and water. Any number of delightful combinations can be made from these elements, such as firewater, daeron, and chef's salad.

Chemicals can be further divided into the classes of explosive and non-explosive. A wise chemist always touches a match to his chemicals before he begins an experiment.

A variety of vessels of different sizes and shapes are used in a chemistry lab. There are tubes, vials, beakers, flasks, pipettes, and retorts. A retort is also a snappy comeback, such as "Oh, yeah?" and "So's your Uncle Omar."

I have now told you the most important aspects of chemistry, but there are many more—far too many to cover in the space remaining here. However, I am sure there is a fine chemistry lab on your very own campus. Why don't you go up some steps and peek around? Make a fun day out of it. Bring wheels. Wear humorous hats. Toast frankfurters on the bumper burners. Do gyp. Be merry. Be home... For chemistry is your friend!

The makers of Marlboro, who bring you this column regularly, are tobaccoists, not scientists. But here's an equation we do know: Marlboro plus you equals pleasure.

Menderes Opponents Call Foul in Election

ISTANBUL (AP) — Opponents of Premier Adnan Menderes cried foul Monday night after the thumping victory of his Democrat Party in Turkey's National election.

The unofficial but final count showed the Democrats won 432 seats of the new 610-seat Parliament in the voting Sunday, out-drawing their opponents in 47 of nation's 67 provinces.

Menderes' leading rival, ex-President Ismet Inonu of the People's Republican Party, told a news conference the Republicans are lodging official complaints in each of the 47 provinces they lost.

Inonu, 73, said the Democrats used police to interfere with voting, announced their victories over the state radio while voting was still going on and packed registration lists.

"Under these conditions, I wonder which party really won and which really lost," Inonu said.

Registers Complaint by Telegram

He said he had made these complaints in a telegram to Menderes, but was entering no official protest himself—leaving this instead to party organizations in the provinces.

Despite Menderes' victory, some Republicans consoling themselves with the fact they had cut solidly into the huge majority he has enjoyed in Parliament since 1954.

The Republicans won 170 seats, according to the final count, with the Freedom and Nation Parties getting four seats each. Three years ago Menderes won all but 33 seats in the national assembly.

The government itself showed no sign of worry at Republican complaints and prepared for the opening of the new assembly Nov. 1.

This promised, however, to be stormy. Under the Turkish Constitution, the Assembly's first act is to elect its President. But, until the new president is chosen, the Assembly meets under the leadership of its senior member—who is Inonu.

With Inonu's strong, if informal, complaints of irregularities in the election, there is a good prospect of fireworks.

Turkey, meanwhile, entered a three-day legal holiday—seemingly unmindful of political bitterness and the Syrian crisis.

To celebrate the 34th anniversary of Kemal Ataturk's foundation of the republic.

Various units of its Army, which Syria and the Soviet Union have declared is massing for aggression on the Syrian border, have been practicing for days for Republic Day parades.

Even in the flag-draped city of Gaziantep, about 30 miles north of the Turkish-Syrian frontier, infantry units paraded through streets with bands, mules and truck-drawn artillery to tune up for the day.

The winner lived but remained locked in a death grip with the loser in this grim battle of two buck deer in Wisconsin's north woods near Park Falls. A photographer who accompanied conservation wardens took this picture just before wardens freed the two by cutting the antlers of the deer lying in the strands of barbed wire fence in the foreground. Afterward, the big buck pawed the ground and charged his dead foe with his 11-point rack for five minutes before fleeing into the woods. The loser, according to wardens, died of a broken neck.

To Discredit Union Donoghue Admits Auto Destruction

WASHINGTON (AP)—James R. Donoghue, a Sears Roebuck & Co. employe, testified Monday he allowed the tires on his car to be punctured and his windshield smashed to discredit the retail clerk's union in the Boston area.

He told a special Senate inquiry group that the wrecking job took place on a parking lot across the street from a Sears Roebuck & Co. store just before the union employes were to vote on representation by the clerk's union.

The clerk's union organized a drive to buy a new car for Donoghue. The drive took place in 1963 and is now being investigated by a Senate committee assigned to look into alleged aggressive labor-management relations.

It was not brought out who had suggested discrediting Donoghue's car.

Committee Chairman Robert F. Kennedy said he would not attempt to pin the blame on anyone but that he would ask Donoghue whether he had discussed the wrecking with John Land identified as an organizer for the laundry workers. Kennedy said the laundry workers were representing the Transfers Union in a jurisdictional fight with the clerks over organized Sears stores in the Boston area.

Received $125 From Land

Donoghue, a Sears employe who lives in West Newton, Mass., admitted that he had talked with Land. Asked whether he had received any money from Land in response to his information, he said he received $125.

Donoghue refused to say when asked whether Land had given him any information on the matter.

He admitted he had seen other Sears employes in the store, a Sears employe who said that when he saw Donoghue he was under about the charges he was told to "forget it."

Another witness today was James Neilsen, alias James T. Gaffney, Fred Warren, Jim Edwards and Jim Neal, who helped the mail order house resist the organizing drive by the retail clerks.

Neilsen insisted there was nothing improper in his activities, but Kennedy contended they violated the Taft-Hartley Fair Labor Practices Act because they were financed by the company.

The committee shifted away from the Sears case briefly to question Raymond Cohen, secretary-treasurer of Transfers local 107 in Philadelphia.

Rivalry

The scene of Lincoln sitting in weariness in a hotel lobby, and his words fearing for the republic and fearing the ultimate horror of civil war were incredibly haunting.

Of the play itself, little can profitably be described regarding action and plot. Characterization and ideas were the important features of this play, and they too cannot be easily expressed. But one seeing this cannot forget the equal urgency shown by Douglas for States Rights, and by Lincoln for Liberty.

The audience's own wonder what other things take the time of so many people who need to think. In Europe a recent event in Arkansas is called "The American Tragedy."

The ideas involved in this event are those that concerned Lincoln and Douglas, in great part. And many stayed away—especially the students. Perhaps they had other things on their minds.

The Navy's Vanguard rocket, being developed to launch a satellite, roars upward from its launching platform at Cape Canaveral, Fla., in a test of its first stage engine. The rocket gives off a white-hot stream of fire and billows of smoke as it reaches for the upper spaces. During the flight the Vanguard reached a peak velocity of 4,250 miles per hour.

Christians, Jews Attend Conference

The National Conference of Christians and Jews met last weekend at St. Mary's Lake Camp, in Battle Creek with five MSU students and a faculty member in attendance.

The MSU delegation included Elizabeth Mayhew, Samahlah Kurmani, Murray Frost, Edgar Ross and George Lipscomb. Wolf Fuhrig, social science department, was the faculty representative.

Purpose of the conference, delegates reported, is to enlighten Jews, Catholics and Protestants who, without compromise of conscience or of their distinctive religious differences, work together to build better human relations among men of all religions, races and nationalities.

MSU contributed a display of human relations books and pamphlets through facilities of the library.

Create "Little Assembly" Switch in Disarmament Talks Proposed by Soviet Union

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Soviet Union proposed Monday that disarmament talks be switched from Big Power Secret Meetings to a public 82-nation "Little Assembly."

In a surprise move, the Soviet Union urged the abandonment of the U.N.'s 12-nation Disarmament Commission and its 3-nation subcommittee, which has been convening on private talks since 1941.

The United States rejected the Russian proposal as impractical. A U.S. spokesman said, "It is more to indicate an unwillingness to negotiate. It casts doubt on their intentions with regard to any disarmament agreement."

The Western Powers believe that secret meetings keep details from being made public.

The Soviet proposal calls for the establishment of a permanent Disarmament Commission composed of all UN member nations. The Commission would examine all proposals on disarmament submitted to the United Nations, and would make recommendations to the General Assembly.

A Soviet spokesman explained that broader talks were necessary because the Commission and subcommittee failed to advance an agreement. "Twenty meetings during the U.N. whose participants are no less interested in a speedy solution of the disarmament problem, practically not taking part in the work," it said.

The Russian stated that an 82-nation commission would focus the attention of the people on the disarmament problem and keep them fully informed on progress in the negotiations and on the attitude adopted by various powers.

The Soviet proposal also set the rule out of the possibility of secret talks by the Big Powers.
