

New Outdoor Pool Ready for Bathers

It'll Open Today—Barring Any Unexpected Difficulties

By HARDY CHRIST
State News Editor-in-Chief

A new water wonderland on the MSU oasis will refresh the students, faculty and staff members as the new cool intramural outdoor pool opens officially for use today, barring any unexpected developments.

The ultra-modern structure, another addition to the vast athletic plant, will be open from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m. Monday through Saturday, except on Wednesday, when it will remain open until 10 p. m. Hours on Sunday will be 11 a. m. to 3 p. m.

There is no admission charge to students enrolled in summer school, according to Intramural Director Frank Neeman, but students are required to present their receipts at the door.

Students enrolled in MSU during term but not summer will be charged $5 each—$15 for the season—and they must show their ID cards.

Faculty and staff members will be charged 25 cents for each session, or $2 for the season. All faculty members, including those in the athletic department, must pay this fee.

Each student, faculty and staff member is allotted one pool (25 cents for college and non-college persons, and 50 cents for adults). No one under 14 years of age is permitted in the pool.

Swimmers are encouraged to bring their own towels, although there will be a towel rental service at 10 cents each for those who do not have a physical education or intramural locker and towel.

Women must wear swim caps when in the pool.

The pool, in the building since June, 1958, leaves only one part of the new IM wing not completed. New touch football fields and softball diamonds south of the IM building have been seeded, and will go into operation for daytime use next fall term.

According to Neeman, exact plans for the new pool will be set into operation in about a week.

After the pool has been in operation for a week, policy concerning the student and family use will be made, said Neeman. While the pool will be used mainly for recreation, it will also be the site of the Pan-American swimming trials in early August.

Gatton Named Spartan Chief

A new Spartan Magazine editor was appointed and the business manager was reappointed as the Board of Student Publications decided that the publication should function for at least another year.

Tom Gatton, Allegan junior, was given the nod by the board as the '59-60 SPARTAN editor. Gatton, who has worked on the magazine for two years, served as copy editor fall term, while writing short stories for publication. His "Dirty White Tennis Shoes" which appeared in the fall issue has been reprinted in several college humor magazines this year.

Loretta Galsbol, Detroit junior, was reappointed as business manager. She acted in that capacity during spring term as well as handling other promotional duties fall and winter terms.

It was after much discussion that the Board of Student Publications, meeting during final week of spring term, made the decision to continue the publication. The board felt that the present direction and presentation of the magazine was making, was of value to the university and should be continued as long as the student body participates favorably.

MSU Prof Named

Dr. Fred Gurnham, professor and head of the chemical engineering department at MSU, has been named editor of the Industrial Waste magazine. Dr. Gurnham replaces Prof. Don Bloodgood, who was moved by the pressure of his duties at Purdue University to resign.

Fairechild To Present 'Aparajito'

"Aparajito" (The Unvanquished), the second film of the trilogy based on the Indian novel "Father Panchali," will have its local premier Friday and Saturday at MSU.

The film will be shown at 7:30 p. m. both evenings in the Summer Film series at Fairechild. "Aparajito," like "Father Panchali," was produced and directed in India by Satyajit Ray. The picture is set against the background of the great Indian cities of Benares and Calcutta, in contrast to the village life in "Father Panchali."

Karuna and Kama Banerji, who played the mother and father respectively in "Father Panchali," continue their roles in "Aparajito." The rest of the cast is different, however.

Ravi Shankar composed and plays the musical score for "Aparajito" as he did for "Father Panchali." "Aparajito" won the grand prize at the 1957 Venice Film Festival. It also received the prize for best direction at the San Francisco Film Festival and the President of India's Gold Medal for "the best film of the year."

The third part of the trilogy, "The World of Apu," recently was completed and has opened at theaters in India. The three films trace the life of an Indian family, following in particular the development of the boy Apu from childhood to manhood.

The clinic for speech therapy, a service of the MSU Speech Dept., is being continued during this fifth five-week session this summer.

Over 50 children are being worked with by nine student and two faculty clinicians.

During the other three terms, there are many more students assisting in the program, but there are no faculty members working at that time.

AT LAST! Cool relief from the hot summer sun. The new MSU outdoor pool behind the Men's intramural building was filled with water for the first time last Tuesday afternoon, and swimming fun will begin today, barring any unforeseen delays.

Ford Foundation Gives Grant Future Teachers Receive Aid

A new and original program for elementary school teacher education to be started this fall by MSU will benefit from a $585,000 grant announced today by the Ford Foundation.

The funds will be used by the MSU College of Education to conduct research comparing the new program with the present one and to study major problems of teacher education.

The new plan offers students who want to teach the opportunity to obtain a bachelor's degree and a teaching certificate at a minimum of expense.

The student can earn about $4,500 in the last two years of the five-year curriculum, and can remain home except for three summer sessions at MSU.

Cooperation of MSU community colleges and community school systems is involved in the plan.

Say Jane Doe, a recent high school graduate, wants to be a teacher, but feels she cannot afford to go away to school for four years.

Under the new program she can attend the community college in her home town for two years taking courses similar to the ones she would take if she attended MSU for her freshman and sophomore years.

Next, she will attend a ten-week summer session at MSU. The following fall, she will return to her home town and be a student teacher in a local grade school.

There she will be supervised by a full-time teacher and will work with a resident MSU professor on various areas of knowledge and methods of teaching them.

At the end of her third year she will return to MSU for another ten-week summer session.

When she returns to her local school system, she will receive a salary of about $3,000 a year for serving as one of five teachers under the supervision of a master teacher and the resident MSU staff member. The master teacher will devote full time to the supervision.

During this period, Miss Doe will also take formal courses taught by MSU professors in the local community college.

After a third summer session at Michigan State, Miss Doe will complete her requirements in the local community. The work will be similar to that of the fourth year but the salary will be increased to $3,500.

Requirements for graduation will be about the same as those for teachers taking the standard four-year course except for the obvious difference in amount of classroom experience.

The curriculum calls for a total of 192 term hours, half in the first two years and half in the last three.

This includes 45 term hours in basic courses, 6 in physical education, 76 in arts and sciences, 32 in professional education courses and 13 hours in related music, art and physical education courses.

MSU officials believe the program will offer many advantages, including: three years of practical experience, a less expensive education, differing experimental programs in various communities, a continuous and careful screening process, a chance for the student to discover early in college if teaching is an appropriate career, and encouragement of more able prospects to enter teaching.

The Ford Foundation Grant will be used to conduct research comparing students in the present program with those in the new one.

23 Students Reprimanded By University

Disciplinary action against 23 MSU students who were involved in disturbances on the campus June 11, 12 and 13 was announced by the Dean of Students office.

One student was found innocent and decisions involving two others are pending.

Of the 23 students, three were suspended, 14 were placed on strict disciplinary probation, four on disciplinary probation and two on warning probation.

The parents of all 23 students were notified of the actions and, for an indefinite period, these cannot represent the university in any capacity, the privilege of possessing or operating an automobile at the university is withdrawn, and they must take actions themselves to restore their university records to ones of good standing.

Following are the specific actions, together with additional penalties, as handed down by the faculty committee on student conduct:

1. Three students were suspended. These students will not be permitted to attend the university in the fall term but may apply for readmission at the end of the fall term. This action also is entered in their transcripts.

2. Fourteen students were placed on strict disciplinary probation. These students, for an indefinite period, are prohibited from holding office in extracurricular clubs, governing groups and activities, the action is entered on their transcripts and additional restrictions can be made as may seem fitting.

3. Four students were placed on warning probation. This penalty is the same as strict that it is not recorded on the student's transcript.

4. Two students were placed on warning probation. These students received no additional penalties but must take the initiative to restore their records of good standing in the same manner as required in other disciplinary actions.

Decisions involving two other students will be delayed until fall term.

Nigerian Premier Gets MSU Honorary Degree At Ceremonies Friday

Nnamdi Azikiwe to Talk At Convocation in Aud

Nnamdi Azikiwe, Premier of the Eastern Region of Nigeria, will deliver an address and receive an honorary degree in colorful ceremonies at 11 a. m. Friday in the Aud. The Premier's name is pronounced Nam-dee Ah-ZEEK-eh-we.

Music will be provided by the 140-piece youth music concert band, made up of outstanding high school musicians on campus this summer.

"This will be a rare opportunity for students and townspeople to hear an outstanding statesman who is one of the leading exponents of independence for West Africa," said Dr. Clair Taylor, director of the MSU summer school.

Following the playing of the British National Anthem (Nigeria is a British territorial colony) and the National Anthem of the United States, the invocation will be given by the Rev. Warren Emerson Brown of Mt. Hope Methodist Church.

Welcoming remarks will be made by Dr. Taylor. Dr. Azikiwe will be introduced by President John A. Hannah.

Dr. Azikiwe's address will be followed by the conferring of the honorary Doctor of Laws degree.

The purpose of Dr. Azikiwe's visit to the MSU campus, which will end next Tuesday, is to review the operations of an American Land-Grant institution.

Dr. Azikiwe has expressed an interest in having MSU specialists assist in the establishment and development of the University of Nigeria.

He will obtain views and opinions of American education from some of his own countrymen in a meeting Friday evening with 10 Nigerians who are students at MSU.

Dr. Hannah and Dr. Glen Taggart, Dean of the International Programs, visited Nigeria in May, 1958, at the request of the United States State Department's international cooperation administration.

Dean Taggart reports that he has never been in a country "where the drive for education is so dynamic."

"In a sense, Dr. Azikiwe can be looked on as one of the George Washingtons of that area of the world," Dean Taggart said. "He has been one of the leading figures in the independence movement of West Africa."

Dr. Azikiwe has been Premier and minister of internal affairs of the Eastern Region of Nigeria since 1954.

A journalist, popularly known as "Zik," Dr. Azikiwe at one time was editor-in-chief of papers in Accra and Lagos.

'War Twice Prevented' -UN Official

The United Nations has twice prevented a third World War, Dr. Andrew Cordier said last Friday in the first of the College of Education Summer Series speakers.

Cordier, executive assistant to Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, is the only major UN official who has been with the organization since its beginning.

The crisis of Korea in 1950 and the Suez Canal in 1956, both capable of exploding into general wars, were controlled by UN action, he said.

However, the UN has not liquidated cold war, nor was it set up to give peace. It merely gives humanity a better chance to have peace. It is the only place where mediation can take place in a way that can gain results.

Since Cordier agrees with the Martin Buber statement that the "greatest disaster is breakdown in communication due to the existence of massive mistrust," he places great importance in UN talks and debates.

"In no place in the world is there as much listening as in the UN," Cordier said. "When one member speaks 81 others listen. This can broaden understanding, tolerance and respect."

Cordier gave importance of middle-sized and smaller nations as being "watchdogs" who see that the UN moves along lines in the interest of the promotion of peace.

The philosophy of giving and receiving is a matter of discussion now in the UN. It's difficult to receive, sometimes, since it's often associated with inferior status.

"At least twice each year there is an eclipse of the sun, visible somewhere on the earth," Dr. Stokley said. "The moon often occults stars—generally faint ones. Occultations by the moon of bright stars are much less common."

"A planet also may occult a star, but it takes up so much less room in the sky than the moon that there's plenty of room for it to move between the stars."

A planetary occultation is thus quite rare. Only three stars of the first magnitude are in the part of the sky through which the moon and planets move, so it is an event of a millennium for a planet to occult one of these.

From eastern parts of the U.S. and Canada, Venus was about 10 degrees above the eastern horizon when it occulted Regulus.

"From Michigan, Venus didn't rise high enough to be seen until the occultation was over," said Dr. Stokley.

Information about the Venus atmosphere will be valuable when plans are made to observe it directly by inter-planetary space probes, he said.

Children's Dramatics Held by Speech Dept.

Classes in creative dramatics for children of the third and fourth grade age are being offered by the speech department during July. Boys and girls going into or out of either grade will be accepted.

Classes will be held in room 125 Aud from 9-10 a. m. on Tuesdays and Fridays beginning next Tuesday and continuing through July 28. A fee of $1.50 is charged for the term.

Registrations may be made by calling Ext. 2701 between 10 a. m.-4 p. m. this week.

Dr. Jed Davis will be in charge of the course.

DR. NNAMDI AZIKIWE... Talks at MSU Friday.

Rare Event Seen in Skies Last Tuesday

An astronomical event so rare that there was no record of anyone previously observing such an occurrence took place last Tuesday at 9:15 a. m.

The planet Venus passed in front of the bright star Regulus, explained Dr. James Stokley, professor of journalism at MSU. This was called an occultation, and is similar to a solar eclipse, which happens when the moon moves in front of the sun. Dr. Stokley explained.

Dr. Stokley, a former director of the Fels Planetarium in Philadelphia, now teaches science writing in the school of journalism at MSU. He said that the event was visible from eastern parts of the United States and Canada.

Michigan residents were not able to observe it, although they were able to watch Venus approaching Regulus, then drawing away from it.

"At least twice each year there is an eclipse of the sun, visible somewhere on the earth," Dr. Stokley said. "The moon often occults stars—generally faint ones. Occultations by the moon of bright stars are much less common."

"A planet also may occult a star, but it takes up so much less room in the sky than the moon that there's plenty of room for it to move between the stars."

From the Statue's Mouth Sparty Looks Through Years

BY Sparty-Ceramic

Do you wonder why I stand here with my eyes toward the north? No doubt there are a few people who realize that I think I have seen so much since I came here in June, 1945, that I have plenty to keep me occupied.

Often I think of my first days, Ralph Young, athletic director, went to Southern California and saw a large statue of a Trojan.

He thought it would be a good idea to have something similar on MSU's campus and talked to Prof. Leonard Jungwirth of the art department. However, it was quite a while before Prof. Jungwirth began making me out of Ohio clay. The complete process of developing me took almost two years!

Because I was big I had to be made in five sections and even then the only kiln big enough to hold me was in Grand Lodge. I'm afraid I made quite a fuss about my glaze.

The ordinary salt glaze would bake on me like a zebra's coat because of the varying temperatures at different heights in the kiln. Finally a lead glaze was developed and they fired my temperature to 2300 degrees in five days. It took me nine days to cool off!

"When I went into the kiln I was 11 feet, 9 inches tall but the firing shrunk me to 10 feet, 6 inches. Even at that I think I'm the tallest free-standing ceramic in the world! And would you believe that I weigh several tons? My clay outside weighs only 3,000 pounds but my cement inside weighs much more than that."

I was dedicated in June, 1945, at the triangle where the Red Cedar road and Kalamazoo street meet. It was quite a job getting me erected in time to see the graduating class of that year, but I haven't been changed since then.

"Students and faculty dubbed me Sparty because I stand for Spartan athletic teams, and the name stuck."

"As I have stood here through the years I have seen Rose Bowl teams and losing teams. I have seen this institution grow from a college to a university and enter the Big 10. Football fans meet me as they pass to the stadium and are aroused by my confidence. Discouraged students have often come to me to think."

"I'm very photogenic and am a favorite subject. Visitors also love to paint me, both artistically and literally! I am the victim of many jokes but most people know me for what I am—the guardian of MSU and the symbol of all the fighting and valiant Spartans."

"As the seasons continue revolving the students come and go, but I'm sure they won't forget me, just as I can't forget them. Yes, I have many things to think about."

HANDLING BARBED-WIRE is a tricky and sometimes painful business even with heavy gloves. But these three MSU ROTC students find it is all part of their training in hasty field fortifications at Fort Riley, Kansas. The ROTC cadets, three of 1824 at Camp Riley, are undergoing six weeks of field training, putting into practice the theories they learned in their military classes on the campus.

MSU has in its possession two elaborate religious books from the dark ages. One, "The Book of Hours" illuminated in gold leaf and colors on vellum and parchment. The other is a well-known "Prayer Book" of the 15th century. The "Prayer Book" is a well-known "Prayer Book" of the 15th century. The "Prayer Book" is a well-known "Prayer Book" of the 15th century.

Canoeing, Swimming Among Summer Fun

Canoeing, golf and swimming are some of the recreational activities provided for summer school students. The 40 canoes owned by the Recreation Department may be rented at 45 cents an hour. Hours are 9:11 p.m. on week nights and to midnight on weekends. The Women's Pool is open from 4-8 p.m. every day for women. Men's and Women's IM pools are open, but will be closed when the new outdoor pool opens soon. The Union has bowling and billiards from noon to 8:30 p.m. and table tennis from 9 a.m. - 8:30 p.m. on weekdays. Chess and card games may be played in the International Room. The Men's IM Building has facilities for squash, softball, volleyball, paddleball, archery, wrestling, tennis, badminton and weight lifting.

125 Rodents Play Guinea Pig Role

The Home economics laboratory holds 125 male albino rats for experiment purposes. In the air-conditioned laboratory all rats are kept at the same temperature. Racks of cages are placed so that all rats receive the same amount of sunlight. All cages are disinfected.

Each rat receives a basic food containing vitamins, minerals, fat, protein and sugar. Each rat is fed about four and one-half ounces a week. Rats are used because they have the same basic requirements for food nutrients as humans.

What happens to the nutrient value of beans in processing is a project now underway. Rats are being fed beans put through different processes. Agriculture engineering students process the beans. Another joint project with agriculture engineering on wheat radiation will soon start.

Dr. Elaine Rutherford, home economics professor, conducted a six-month project with radiated potatoes. Results of past experiences have been published in "Journal of Agriculture and Food Chemistry" and "American Journal of Clinical Nutrition."

20 Teams Sign for Softball

Intramural director Frank Beeman was happily surprised to find that 20 teams had signed up for the summer softball league. There were about 10 last summer.

Apparently Clarence isn't a popular name with the Michigan State athletic department. Clarence Means, who last week was named head coach of basketball at Omaha, has the nickname "Sonny." Of course, Biggie Munn is always unhappy to be called Clarence Munn.

FROM THE ARCHIVES—Michigan State's 1897 baseball team spent $10 for one dozen baseballs—which lasted the entire season.

Stan Drobac, Michigan State's tennis coach is in charge of the Lansing recreation department's program for the summer. He has announced a series of summer tournaments, for children in several age brackets, and for adults.

Intramural Highlights

A golf and tennis tournament will be held in the coming weeks for all students who are interested. Signup sheets are available at the tennis courts and Forrest Akers golf course.

Sports Week in Brief

(Each week the State News will publish a summary of the week's sports news. Because of the early summer deadlines the summary will include items from the previous Wednesday through Tuesday—ED)

BASEBALL—Despite Al Kaline's early home run, the National League won the first All-Star game, 5-4.

Detroit's pennant fever ended abruptly over the weekend. After the Tigers defeated Kansas City Wednesday, 5-4, and with the aid of Charley Maxwell's grand slam homer—beat Chicago, 9-7, Thursday, they fell six games off the pace before the All-Star game break.

Friday it was a 10-inning, 6-5 loss to Chicago. Then league-leading Cleveland downed the Bengals in a July Fourth double-header, 6-1 and 12-9 in 11 innings. The Tribe won again, 5-4, Sunday, in a rhubarb-filled contest.

Boston had a new manager after Pinky Higgins was fired from the last-place Red Sox. Rudy York was named interim manager but was replaced several hours later by Billy Jurges of Washington.

In the National League, Milwaukee lost and regained first place, held a two percentage point lead over the San Francisco Giants at the All-Star game break. Los Angeles was just one-half game behind the leaders.

TENNIS—Alex Olmedo, Peruvian member of the U.S. Davis Cup team, established himself as the world's best amateur tennis player by smothering Rod Laver in England for the Wimbledon championship.

GOLF—Gary Player became the youngest golfer ever to win the British Open Friday. Art Wall defeated Bob Finsterwald for the Buck Open title Monday (see page five).

I've heard lots of good things...

Like the good Food and Low prices at Odams...

But there is so much more! Really, Odams is the handiest thing to campus — just a block from the dorms. And after I get there it's so comfortable and relaxing.

Besides, Odam's is open at 7 a.m. so I can eat breakfast. And even if I'm in a hurry I know that with the fast service at Odam's I won't be late.

It's open til 1 a.m. too for that late evening piece of pie and coffee. Lots of free parking, of course.

Flint's Noble Experiment

By LARRY GUSTIN
State News Sports Editor

FLINT—They call it the noble experiment in golf here—second straight year at the Warwick Hills Country Club last weekend, drew crowds of any in the world for announced totals of 12,500, and 23,200 for a total of 35,700 in the first three days of the tournament. The total for the annual Open, 43,000 in four last months at Mamaronck.

Other crowd of 29,700 packed the course Sunday. It was supposed to be the day of the tournament.

At Warwick, Jr. and Dow were deadlocked for the 187 for 72 holes. 3,000 were on hand Monday to watch the playoff by two is why so many showed. The admission charge was one dollar, compared to four dollars admission to watch the same players for tournaments.

There was free and there plenty of parking space well served by attendants.

But the Buick Open was an exciting and interesting show for the entire family—cheap to attract the large work- ingmen of nearby Flint. Of the Open also brought face from throughout the especially from Lansing Detroit.

There is no other major sports festival in central Michigan during the summer, such as the Michigan baseball, and it has proved before that sports will support nearly any talent that invades the in Swad although out of contention early, was the favorite of the crowd. While many spectators chose to watch the tournament from one vantage point, Sneed fans—hundreds of them—followed their dapper here the whole day.

The success of the Buick Open illustrated several points. It is often wise to cut admission costs and bid for family attendance. And it proved that there is a large and enthusiastic and largely untapped audience for more sports extravaganzas in central Michigan.

Green in Hospital—Bunion Trouble

Johnny Green no longer has bunion.

The "Slammin'" great basketball center had bunion removed from his feet June 24. He is recuperating at Olin health center.

Dr. H. W. Harris, who performed the operation, would release no other information.

But Coach Forbly Anderson said Green would be released within two weeks at the most. "Johnny has been bothered with bunions for several years," Anderson said, "and I guess he wanted to get them cleared up before he enters pro ball. It is nothing serious."

Communication Arts, Music Institute Enrollment Increases Offer More Varied Scope In Sessions

The first session of the Communication Arts Institute June 22 - July 3, had an enrollment of 245 and 120 for the second, July 6 - July 17. Last year there were only 240 enrolled in both sessions.

The Music Institute, June 28 - July 18, has 395 enrolled. Last year the total was 268.

James Mattison, assistant coordinator for the continuing education service, stated some reasons for the rise in attendance. "From my past experience from working with young people, I find that year after year these high school students are giving more thought to possible careers and also more interest in the future earlier in life."

"High school professional people are encouraging students more than they used to for extra study in summer."

The students at the Communication Arts Institute, from as far away as New York, are offered for the first time a more varied course of study. The courses are radio-television, journalism, journalism and dramatics.

The radio-television course offers study in the planning and writing of broadcasts, producing and programming, and laboratory experience.

Dramatics is concerned with the basic fundamentals in acting and make-up. The students are learning these things to apply in a regular play before an audience.

Journalism students study, plan and write newspaper stories. The yearbook editing students are learning important ideas and facts about yearbooks. They will be able to apply their knowledge when editing their own.

The forensics students study public speaking. Lectures were given on the value of research, evidence and discussion.

John Maxton, director of instruction and assistant dean of the College of Communication Arts, is in charge of the two sessions of the Communication Arts Institute. Dr. Jack Pedrey is head of the Music Institute.

Outdoor Movies Held on Fridays

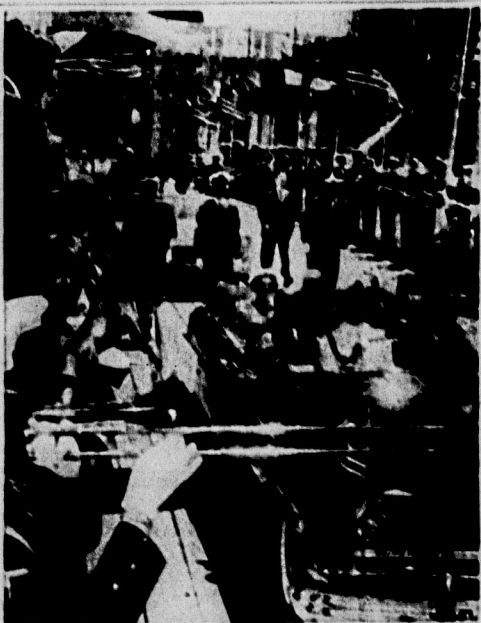

Members of the Mason-Abbott residence halls will show an outdoor movie every Friday at 8:30 p.m. The movie, for which admission is free, will be shown in the court between the two dormitories. Record dances to follow the movies have been scheduled for the Mason Hall lounge and will last until midnight.

In case of rain, the movie showings will be held in the Mason lounge. Residents of the two dormitories and their guests are invited, and an invitation has also been extended to Phillips-Snyder and Van Housen residents.

Marketing Club To Have Panel On Opportunity

The marketing and transportation department in conjunction with the Marketing Club, will present a panel discussion Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Lincoln Room, Kellogg Arthur Fairbanks, Personnel Director for the Kresge Co. will moderate.

"Opportunities in Marketing" will be the general theme of the discussion, and all students interested in marketing are urged to attend. There will be an opportunity following the discussion to address Fairbanks and the panel with questions.

The Retail Management course from which the panel has been selected consists of 32 participants from 23 companies and will include three company presidents, nine vice presidents, directors of operation, personnel directors and controllers. These men are attending because of the growing complexity of the retail economy which poses new problems for executive action.

Students interested in joining the Marketing Club will be given an opportunity to sign application cards following the meeting.

Summer Staff of Speech Clinicians Serve in Therapy for 50 Children

The clinic for speech therapy, a service of the speech department, is being continued during the first five week session this summer.

Over 50 children are being worked with by nine student and two faculty clinicians. During the other three terms, there are many more students helping, but no faculty members.

Speech correction majors are required to spend a certain amount of time in the clinic in connection with their studies. They work with the children by 1) teaching them to hear their speech error, then 2) teaching them to make the correct sound, and then 3) teaching them to use that sound in their everyday language.

Dr. Charles Pedrey, head of the speech clinic, interviews the parents of each child before the child begins instruction. This is to give the parents an overall view of what will happen.

Speech faults may range from stutters, lisps, and an unpleasant voice, to something of a more complex nature like cleft-palate. The therapy is designed to the individual case.

Most of the children that come to the clinic range in age from four to seven and come from the Lansing area, but these are not essential qualifications.

The children come to the clinic two or three times a week (an hour each time) and use one of the six available clinic rooms for their appointment with the clinician. One of the rooms has a one-way mirror so the children can see how others are helped.

The length of time spent at the clinic varies with each problem. A lip or minor speech defect might be cleared up in one term, whereas a cleft-palate patient would be a long range problem.

Hearing Clinic Head To Speak at Seminar

Dr. John Gaeth, director of the hearing clinic at Wayne State University will speak from 9-11 a.m. in 235 Aud. Monday on therapy with the annually impaired in one of the public lectures sponsored as part of a seminar on speech correction and voice science.
