Know the Score Before You Gamble

IT WAS LATE in the game last Saturday and a time out was called. The public address announcer took the opportunity to relay some final scores of other collegiate football games to the fans.

Immediately the man in the next row reached into his pocket, pulled out a colored card and studied it. All this adds up to the time of year when the football spot card gambling syndicates sponsor the "football pools."

The man, after placing his bet, has checked to see if he has won. Cards are distributed each week by the syndicate to persons on the various college campuses across the nation.

These persons in turn distribute them to the football fans. THESE FOOTBALL spot cards are used for gambling purposes by purchasers who select from four to ten of the nation's top games.

The buyer picks a team, either giving or receiving a number of points—the spot—and collects at a rate generally around 9-1 if all his selections are correct.

Although illegal, this activity has grown at an alarming rate. The "football pools" have become big institutions on the college campuses.

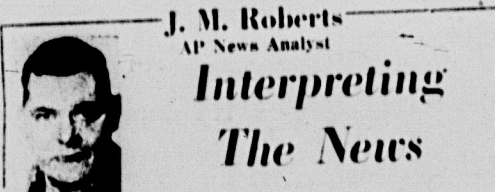

When caught, the offenders find a stiff penalty. And the ones caught are usually those who distribute the football spot cards on the various campuses.

For this job, the syndicate usually "hires" college students. While the men in the syndicate rarely get into hot water with the authorities, the college students who sell the spot cards are the ones who suffer the consequences when caught.

Last year a gambling scandal hit the University of Michigan campus, with the Wolverines' fullback Tony Rio and basketball captain Jack Lewis among those who were arrested.

Similar incidents have occurred over the years at other universities. It's bad enough to suffer the penalty for such an action, and it's worse for the university represented.

There have been rumors of such activities on the MSU campus this year. Before jumping the chance to make a few bucks by unloading such spot cards, students should remember the maximum penalty of 90 days in jail and a $100 fine upon conviction.

J. M. Roberts AP News Analyst Interpreting The News

While SEATO considers its obligations to Laos in case of communist attack, and NATO considers the possibility of a summit conference, CENTO is meeting this week to take up more tactical problems.

If this doesn't mean anything to you it isn't surprising since cents is a new word in the great maze of political and military treaty organizations to which the U.S. belongs or is affiliated with in one way or another.

Indeed, although the ministers representing the CENTO nations are meeting in Washington, this is one treaty organization of which the U.S. is not a member.

CENTO stands for Central Treaty Organization, which used to be the Baghdad Pact before revolutionary Premier Abdel Karim Kassem took Baghdad out of it.

Its present members are Britain, Turkey, Pakistan and Iran. The U.S., through John Foster Dulles, started it. She has binding defense treaties with all of its members specifically as members of the Pact and over and above the mutual aid SEATO and NATO treaties she had with all of them except Iran. She is a member of all the working committees.

But to assuage the discontent of the Arab States and such neutral countries as India which agitate against all such pacts, the U.S. didn't actually join.

The pact, originally known as the "northern tier" arrangement by which Dulles completed partial encirclement of the communist sphere from Bangkok to the western border of India, was partly designed as a lure by which it was hoped the Arab States would be led into the free world defense camp.

Despite Iraq's adherence, this never proved out, and now resentment that good will was created.

When Iraq pulled out, it was necessary to do something to meet the organization together. The U.S. signed binding defense treaties with the three eastern members.

This brought the wrath of the Soviet Union down on Iran, and that country has been subjected to bitter Soviet propaganda ever since. More than one Communist-inspired intrigue designed to overthrow the Shah has been reported.

Nevertheless, the organization goes forward with cooperative planning and a few concrete military projects. One of these is a proposed railroad between Turkey and Iran, financing of which has hit a snag and will be one of the problems before this week's meeting.

As a bridge between the Arab and free worlds, CENTO makes no progress. But it took on new meaning when the BRUCE washed out, the countries got far better defense assurances than before.

Letters to the Editor J. M. Roberts' Article Attacked

To the Editor: The article about Algeria in the Oct. 2 issue, which was written by J. M. Roberts, had many points that need an explanation, and some points omitted should have been mentioned.

The first point is whether the Algerian Nationalist government is the one that represents the majority or not, or whether the "rebels" are but small, blood-thirsty people. The fact is that the Algerian Nationalist government represents the nine million Arabs that live in Algeria. This government has been directing the war against the "big" evildoers, France. With arms of NATO. How can a person possibly explain a small minority fighting for five continental years against a "big" country?

Another point mentioned is that communism might enter Algeria if the revolution continues. I would like to mention some facts. As it is known to all Arab Nationalists is fighting communism now in our countries. The Algerian movement is a part of Arab Nationalism, also the Algerian government is situated for the time being a calm, where many demonstrations have taken place lately against the bloody actions of the communists in Iraq. So how can Mr. Roberts believe in what he said about communism in Algeria?

I think it is just a threat that the Gauls is trying to make, to get the acceptance of the West. I think that this kind of game is known to the whole world now—using communism as a tool to control other countries. A point that was not mentioned in the article is the Algerian people. It was said that Algeria cannot live without the economic aid of France, because of no money or other things. I would like to ask Mr. Roberts why does France spend one billion dollars each year fighting against the Algerians? Is it truly for educating the Algerians or raising their standard of living?

They have been there for about one century and what have they accomplished, but feudalism and money for France and poverty and misery for the people living there. Mr. Roberts, I would like you to know, that it is not because Algeria cannot live without French money and economical help, but because it is France and its businessmen who will not gain much money if Algeria is free. I think you know how rich Algeria is. Ending this letter, I would like you to turn the pages of history and notice why did your grandfathers fight the British. Take the reasons that the Americans used and the points that the British used and compare them with the Algerian situation and see the similarity between the two cases.

Center Cause Reappealed

To the Editor: A few days ago I raised my voice and protested against the closing of the International Center. Evidently, my complaints fell on deaf ears, like a speech given in the middle of a desert with the sandy dunes as the only audience.

But I am intending not to give rest to my pen until the repercussions of my voice find their target and bring back to life the heating mechanism of those responsible for the anomaly I am fighting. The Center has been closed for more than one week now, and neither the administration, nor the student body seem to be very concerned about the issue. Both parties either neglect or fail to realize the importance that the Center played. It wasn't only the mirror that reflected the image of our distant homes, but also served the purposes of an immeasurable handshake. The latter analogy refers to the fact that in the Center we had the remarkable opportunity to enjoy the priceless benefits brought about with cultural and ideological interchanges between individuals of different countries.

Americans were never an exception in this respect, although, due to the pitiful degree of indifference prevalent here, and being lacking as far as international relations is concerned. That's one of the charges of the disconcerting attitudes of these few Americans, that in turn leads to their rejection and even hate in many parts of the world. I haven't said that the Center was a palace, nor have I intended to imply such. We all know or at least should know that the building is inappropriate in many respects. It is a shame that a university of this size fails to provide such facilities that others, though smaller, do. But even if the Center wasn't a perfection ought we to steal the last drop of water from an agonizing desert traveler when the clouds deny him the grace of a rain and his late the miracle of an oasis?

It is time for the student body to do something significant about its own problems. They won't be solved by themselves. MSU 34 UM 8

Construction of new public and semi-public swimming pools in Michigan was up 65 percent in the first half of this year over the same period of 1958. The Michigan Department of Health reported. During the first six months of this year, the state health department approved plans for 38 pools, compared with 23 in the first half of 1958. This year's approvals were for pools at 11 resorts, 9 motels, 6 schools, 5 apartment developments, 5 subdivisions, 1 country club, and 1 swimming club. According to the state administrative code, plans for all public and semi-public swimming pools must be approved by the state health department prior to construction.

Parties Shout Accusations As British Election Nears

LONDON (AP)—The Conservative and Labor parties accused each other Tuesday of trickery and falsification as Britain's most exciting and confusing election campaign since World War II neared an end.

Rival headquarters waited nervously for the voter's decision Thursday in the Parliamentary election.

So many people kept their views secret from poll takers and party canvassers that forecasts were baffled. Polls indicated the outcome was a toss-up.

There was a last rush of bets that the Conservatives would win a third term and odds against a Laborite victory rose. A bettor had to put up the equivalent of $5 to win $2 from a bet on a Conservative victory. But odds against a Laborite victory went to 2 to 1, meaning a dollar bet would win two dollars.

The two big headquarters issued claims of victory designed to buck up the tiring party workers.

Even the weather outlook was uncertain. The long range forecast suggested sunny and warm in central and eastern districts on voting day with chilly rain in the north and west. Bad weather and a low poll is expected.

New Center Scheduled For Spring

"Bookfield Plaza," a $500,000 shopping center at the northeast corner of Grand River and Bigelow Road, is scheduled for completion late next spring.

Announcement of the plans was made Monday by Harold Dava, vice president of the Walter Neller Company. The Plaza is owned by West Brookfield Development, Inc.

Working drawings are being completed by architects and bids will be received beginning Nov. 1. Several tenants have leased space at D & C Variety Store, Murr's Drugs, Kwast Bakery, Ehart Braun, barber; Joseph Auld, cleaner; and Ray Ingersoll, swim laundry.

Plans include construction of a 240 by 100 foot building east of the now-standing A&P food store. There will be parking space for 350 cars.

Dava said the opening of Albert Street and the Burcham Drive-Hagadorn Road route will provide easy accessibility to the center from East Lansing.

The completed development will have 377,500 square feet of floor space. Future expansion is possible as the West Brookfield group owns 150 feet of adjoining frontage.

Prime Minister Macmillan, the Conservative leader, and Hugh Gaitskell, head of the Labor party, hoped their electioneering had mobilized the full

Graduate Fellowships

The Graduate office has considerable information about fellowships and scholarships which provide financial aid for graduate study. Most of these awards are open for competition on a national basis.

Graduate students and seniors intending to enter graduate programs at MSU or elsewhere are welcome to come to the Graduate Office, 112 Morrill Hall, and look through the materials. Each Wednesday this column will contain announcements of fellowships with application deadlines and other pertinent information.

"Danforth Teacher Study Grants" offer men and women with faculty status to complete their studies toward a doctorate at an accredited American university of their choice. Candidates must be between 25 and 40 years of age and have three years of teaching experience. Two of which must be at a senior college.

Applications must be made through the deans of the undergraduate colleges. Each dean may submit one nomination for each 2000 students in his college up to three nominations.

The grants range from $2400 to $4800. The liaison officer for MSU and the Danforth Foundation is Dean Milton Mueller. Nominations from the several colleges should be submitted to his office on or before Oct. 12.

Wisconsin Faculty Says 'No' to Voluntary ROTC

Compulsory ROTC since spring term, one of the most controversial topics at MSU, has seen a new development at the University of Wisconsin. In a very close (143-127) vote Monday night, members of the Wisconsin faculty at Madison voted not to accept a recommendation to make the program voluntary.

The matter will be sent to a special committee for further study. It is not expected to come up for faculty vote again for about another three months, according to the committee head.

This past summer the state assembly or lower house voted at first to abolish the compulsory program. Later it concurred with a vote of the state senate to leave the decision to the university faculty and Board of Regents.

At MSU two committees are currently studying the subject and the Committee on the Future of the University has already presented its recommendation to abolish the compulsory program.

The faculty committee now studying ROTC will report Nov. 4 at the meeting of the Academic Senate. AUCG's Academic Affairs Committee is currently completing its study of the program and will report at next week's Student Congress meeting.

The Wisconsin Student Assn. (WSA) and student paper, the Wisconsin Daily Cardinal, were active in the push towards a voluntary program.

WSA has even registered one of its members as a lobbyist in the issue, and the bill to change to voluntary had originated in WSA.

White Sox Say: H... Yes, We're Gonna Beat 'Em

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Hell yes, we're gonna beat 'em now," chortled jubilant manager Al Lopez in the gay White Sox dressing room Tuesday.

All of his team agreed with him.

First White Sox player to bustle into the clubhouse after the Pale Hose' thrilling 1-0 victory in this fifth world series game was veteran pitcher Early Wynn, who gets the Thursday call in Comiskey Park.

"Now you sports writers, you, we're going back to the big barn," Wynn hollered at the milling writers waiting to surge into the two dressing rooms.

Jungle Jim Rivera who made a game-saving catch of Charlie Neal's poke to deep right center with Dodgers on third and second, said: "I just ran for the fence and there the ball was. I didn't bother snapping down my sunglasses, because they don't help out here."

Dick Donovan quietly discussed his masterful relief job in the eighth inning "checker game" between both managers killed another Dodger threat with men on second and third and one out.

"I got Furillo on a fast ball and Zimmer on a slider," said Donovan.

"I wish I could honestly say I was completely calm out there—but I wasn't. This was all or nothing at all."

"Just like I said before the game, if we win this one, we win the series. Now I say it again," Lopez said.

Shaw, Donovan Combine for 1-0 Squeaker Chicago Wins to Hang On

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Bob Shaw, Billy Pierce and Dick Donovan teamed up for the first three-pitcher shutout in World Series history Tuesday to keep the Chicago White Sox alive with a 1-0 victory over Los Angeles in the fifth game.

A sensational running catch by Jim Rivera near the fence in right center in the seventh saved Shaw, and Donovan's brilliant clutch pitching with the bases loaded in the eighth stopped the last Dodger threat.

The White Sox' second victory cut the Dodgers series lead to 3-2 and sent the series back to Comiskey Park in Chicago where the sixth game will be played Thursday afternoon. Chicago also will be the site of the seventh game, if necessary, on Friday afternoon. Tomorrow will be an off day for travel.

Another roaring throng that set a new series attendance mark of 92,706 squirmed through Dodger uprisings in the seventh and eighth. Each time they failed to break through the Sox for that one precious run.

Chicago scored the only run in the fourth after Nellie Fox and Jim Landis ripped singles to right field. Fox raced to third on Landis' hit and romped home while Sherm Lollar was hitting into a double play.

The brain cells of the rival managers thrashed with activity in the frantic eighth when pinch hitter followed pinch hitter and Al Lopez artfully juggled his pitching staff.

Rivera's running grab of Charlie Neal's curving fly ball came when the Dodgers had men on second and third with two outs in the seventh. Lopez had just put Rivera into the game as a defensive measure in an outfield switch.

The real dramatics of this sunny afternoon came in the eighth when three Dodgers were left on base for an appalling total of 11 although they outbit the Sox nine to five.

Shaw, the victim of three homers in the second game at Chicago, had allowed seven hits, including a fourth-inning triple by Gil Hodges. But he had shut the door every time.

Wally Moon opened the eighth with an easy fly ball to center that looked like a sure out. Jim Landis lost track of the gleaming ball in the dazzling sunshine against the white-shirted background and let it squirt out of his glove. It was scored as a base hit.

Norm Larker, missing one bunt attempt, took the count to 3-1 before he fouled off a pitch. Then he lofted to Rivera for the first out. Hodges, Monday's home run hero, lusted his third hit of the day, a single, just past the itching glove of Nellie Fox and Moon raced to third. Hodges had hit a screaming foul into the left field stands, a few moments earlier, prompting Lopez to make a quick trip to the mound for a conference with Shaw.

When Ron Fairly, a left handed batter, was sent up to hit for Don Demeter, Lopez decided Shaw had enough. He called to the bullpen for southpaw Billy Pierce as the drama mounted.

Walter Alston, the Dodgers' mastermind, quickly switched to right handed batter, Rip Repulski. After all this maneuvering, Pierce was ordered to pass Repulski intentionally, loading the bases. Trumpets blared and the big crowd yelled "charge" as Carl Furillo, Sunday's hero in the ever-changing parade of Dodger stars came up to bat for Johnny Roseboro. Once again Alston was playing the book, subbing a right handed batter for a lefty with southpaw doing the pitching.

Lopez ducked out of the dugout for his third trip of the inning and waved in Dick Donovan, the tough luck loser of Sunday's game, who had been throwing in the bullpen for the last 15 minutes.

Donovan, yanked Sunday when he still was locked in a 6-0 hole, worked carefully on Furillo. First a ball. Then a called strike. Next a foul back that just barely hit the screen.

Furillo went for the next pitch and lofted a high pop to Babe Phillips at third base.

That brought up Don Zimmer, who had run for Chuck Essegian in the seventh and remained in to play shortstop. Zimmer had been at bat since Sept. 2 and hadn't hit safely since Aug. 24. He had been warming the bench since losing his shortstop job to Maury Wills.

Zimmer lofted Donovan's second pitch to Al Smith, who had just moved from right field to left, and the side was out.

The three out of hitters in one inning tied a series record. Wally Alston, fresh out of hitters, sent up pitcher Larry Sherry to bat for pitcher Stan Williams in the ninth, the use of a sixth pinch batter set a new series high for a game.

The seventh inning was almost as tense as the eighth with Shaw bobbing and weaving as he pitched his way out of trouble with the help of Rivera's great catch.

This was the day the Sox switched the tables on the Dodgers. Ever since the 11-0 opener, Chicago has been leaving hordes of men on base. This time the Dodgers stranded 11, including two in the third, two in the seventh and the big three in the eighth.

Just to add a final frantic touch to this most unusual series a helicopter plumped down in right field to pick up a man in a hurry. It was not Walter O'Malley, the Dodger's owner. He is here to stay.

ENGINEERING AND PHYSICAL SCIENCE MAJORS

Lockheed Missiles and Space Division is engaged in one of the broadest spectrums of scientific exploration in the country. The Division has complete capability in more than 40 areas of technology — from concept to operation.

Diversity of the work areas is typified by the programs in such fields as: magnetohydrodynamics, space medicine, oceanography, sonics, propulsion and exotic fuels, metallurgy, advanced systems research, manned space vehicles, reconnaissance, optics and infrared, electromagnetic wave propagation and radiation, electronics, physics, chemistry, mathematics, computer design, aero and thermo dynamics, test, design and operations research and analysis.

PROJECTS—Current major projects include the Navy POLARIS Fleet Ballistic Missile, the DISCOVERER program; MIDAS and SAMOS; Air Force Q-5 and X-7 and the Army KINGFISHER. PROJECT MIDAS is an early warning infrared system against ballistic missile attacks, based on the use of satellites. PROJECT SAMOS is designed for the development of an advanced satellite reconnaissance system. DISCOVERER, MIDAS and SAMOS are programs of the Advanced Research Projects Agency under the direction of the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division with Lockheed as systems manager.

LOCATIONS—You have a selection of two of the choicest living areas in the country at Lockheed. Headquarters for the Division are at Sunnyvale, California, on the San Francisco Peninsula. Research and development facilities are located in the Stanford Industrial Park in Palo Alto and at Van Nuys, in the San Fernando Valley of Los Angeles. Testing is conducted at Santa Cruz and Vandenberg AFB, California; Cape Canaveral, Florida; and Alamogordo, New Mexico.

Together, the Division's facilities occupy more than two million, six hundred thousand square feet of laboratory, engineering, manufacturing and office space and provide the latest in technical equipment, including one of the most modern computing centers in the world.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR ADVANCED EDUCATION—For those who desire to continue their education and secure advanced degrees Lockheed maintains two programs. The Graduate Study Program permits selected engineers and scientists to obtain advanced degrees at the company's expense while working part time at Lockheed.

The Tuition Reimbursement Plan reimburses fifty per cent of the tuition for approved evening courses for salaried employees who are working full time.

SPECIAL CAMPUS INTERVIEWS

Booters Open League Play Against Calvin Here Today

Upstart in their 23 varsity games to date, Michigan State's booters go after their first Midwest Soccer Conference victory this afternoon when they meet Calvin College on the Soccer Field at 3:30 p.m.

As independents, the Spartans have played some of the nation's top teams—among them rugged crews all the way from Navy (Chapel Hill) to Slippery Rock—while piling up a 20-0-1 record. Their last win was almost two years ago, and they are now working on a 10-game win streak.

Coach Gene Kenney points out that the size and general sports prominence of a school has little to do with the gauging of its soccer team.

This football is continuing a tradition of power, the illustrious and last year's No. 1 squad in the nation was a virtual invincibility. Pennsylvania college, Duquesne, MSU placed second in the national rankings.

State will compete in the Eastern division of the 10-team league. A four-game conference schedule will be played by all teams, with the top percentage club competing with the Western division champ for the championship late in November.

But the Spartans have another iron in the fire. They hope to receive a nod to compete in the first annual NCAA championship at the same time. If they should gain this honor and lead the Eastern division they would advance to the nationals and the second place division team would advance to league finals.

The MSU Eastern division includes State, Calvin, Indiana, Earlham and Purdue. The Spartans play all except Earlham, which couldn't get Kenney's group into the schedule. The fourth game in the division title race will be with the Western division's Wheaton, Ill.

State plays Calvin again in Grand Rapids this year, but only the first game counts toward the divisional championship.

Today, the booters will send virtually the same team against their Grand Rapids foes as the one which won the season opener from Indiana Tech, 4-3.

Only switch will be in the halfbacks, following a shoulder muscle injury to center half Pete McKinnon, who is a doubtful starter for this weekend's Slippery Rock tilt and will definitely not play today, according to Kenney.

Regular right half George Sontag will move into McKinnon's slot. Bruce Okine will stay on the left side and John Birn will fill the vacant right half slot.

Kenney, who was faced with a green defensive lineup, has only one injured player, the number one in offense.

ENTER FORWARD Cecil Heron is a top offensive cog this year's MSU soccer team. He scored twice in the season opener as State downed Indiana Tech, 4-3. At 30, the former Jamaican is still one of the team's best-conditioned players, according to Coach Gene Kenney.

Duffy Briefs Quarterback Bercich

Boy Bercich, a State gridder who was once a halfback and fullback, now is widening his knowledge of the quarterback position.

Monday, Spartan coaches continued to feed the senior defensive specialist quarterback plays so he will be more of an asset when caught in the game on offense with no signal caller.

In the first two games Bercich has performed well at the QB slot with his limited source of plays.

Coach Duffy Daugherty worked his serious minded crew hard in preparation for the Iowa encounter Saturday.

All Michigan victory celebration has ended in the Spartan camp and the gridgers are thinking ahead to the Hawkeyes, who will offer a much tougher test than did Michigan.

While his boys worked against Iowa plays, Daugherty admitted he may have some lineup changes for this week.

From Iowa comes word that first-string end Curt Mierz was sidelined with an ailing knee.

Mierz has been having trouble with the knee since it was operated on last spring. He was in his practice uniform but limited his work to loosening up exercises.

Telescope Scans Sky At U of M

ANN ARBOR (AP)—The University of Michigan's gigantic radio telescope which will allow man to chart the very edges of the universe, began operation here Tuesday.

Officials said the 85-foot, 10-stories high antenna, shaped like a huge saucer, is the most sensitive instrument of its kind and the fourth largest steerable radio telescope in the world.

The telescope can chart any portion of the sky, breaking it down into 40,000 sections. The 70-ton steel and aluminum structure is located atop Peach Mountain, about 16 miles northwest of here. The $270,000 telescope was constructed under a contract with the Office of Naval Research as part of the ONR's broad program of radio astronomy which began in 1947. It will be operated jointly by the University's astronomy and engineering departments.

The new radio telescope will enable man to: Penetrate cosmic dust clouds to "see" over all the spiral form of our galaxy, the Milky Way system, which cannot now be seen optically; Study the regions where stars are born and die; Pick up radio waves from space that are a half-billion years old, that have been traveling in space at 186,000 miles a second for 500 million years.

Soviet Union Suggests Plan For Scientists' Conference

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Soviet Union announced yesterday it will propose that the United Nations sponsor an international conference of scientists to swap experiences in exploring outer space.

Vasily Kuznetsov, Soviet deputy foreign minister, made the surprise announcement in a speech to the 82-nation General Assembly.

It came on the heels of the Soviet Union's greatest success in exploration of outer space—the sending of a lunar rocket around the moon.

The speech was generally mild in tone. It consisted mainly of an appeal for urgent action on Soviet Premier Khrushchev's proposal made here 20 days ago for complete world disarmament in four years.

Kuznetsov served notice that the Soviet Union would maintain its boycott of the present U.N. Committee on Peaceful Uses of Outer Space.

The Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia and Poland refused to take part in the committee's work on the grounds that it did not include a sufficient representation of Communist and neutral countries. India and the United Arab Republic refused to join the committee's work, on the grounds that lack of Soviet participation made such efforts useless.

Kuznetsov departed from his prepared text to tell delegates the latest Soviet rocket "is right now travelling around the moon."

It is necessary to ensure the widest possible cooperation based

Double-Cross Told By Contestant on '21'

WASHINGTON (AP)—A contestant on one of television's sensationally ill-fated quiz shows testified Tuesday he double-crossed its producers by answering a question he was supposed to miss.

This testimony, to a house subcommittee, came from James Snodgrass, a 37-year-old New York artist who appeared in the spring of 1957 on "Twenty-One."

Some others have sworn they were coached in advance, as Snodgrass said he was, but they said they went along with orders—to win now, lose later—to their considerable cash profit. Snodgrass said he wound up with a consolation prize of $4,000.

Stempel, a graduate student who said under questioning that he had been under psychiatric treatment for nervousness and a troubled conscience after leaving the "Twenty-One" show, also testified.

1. That he pleaded in vain with Dan Enright, one of the show's producers, to let him play "an honest game."

2. That in March 1957 he won $10,000 in bets that Van Doren would lose, to another contestant, and leave the show.

Stempel got $49,500 for his appearances on the show. Snodgrass said one of the producers, Albert Freedman, had given him questions and answers and told him of plans for ties and other excitement.
