Use of Late Minutes Is Easy Expediency to Enforce Rules

The use of late minutes as a form of enforcement and a means of expediency to enforce rules is a practice that has been in place for many years. However, it must be used with caution to avoid potential issues.

Many students are accustomed to using late minutes as a form of punishment. However, it is important to remember that late minutes should not be used in a manner that is detrimental to the overall learning environment.

When late minutes are used as a form of punishment, it is important to ensure that all students are treated fairly and equally. Late minutes should not be used in a manner that discriminates against any student based on their race, gender, or any other factor.

For late minutes to be effective, they must be used consistently and fairly. It is important to have clear guidelines for when late minutes will be used and how they will be enforced. This will help to ensure that all students understand the consequences of their actions.

Late minutes should be used in conjunction with other forms of discipline. It is important to ensure that all students have access to resources and support to help them succeed.

In conclusion, late minutes can be a useful tool to enforce rules and maintain discipline in the classroom. However, it is important to use them thoughtfully and in a manner that is fair and consistent. By doing so, we can create a positive learning environment where all students have the opportunity to succeed.

PIONEERING IN SPACE RESEARCH VIA SPACECRAFT

PLAN YOUR FUTURE
WITH THE LEADER IN SPACE SCIENCE

Since the beginning of his intellectual awareness, Man has been obsessed with the idea of exploring the planets. With our brother, the sun, only 93 million miles away, we have been exploring the planets ever since. Now, with the growing interest in space exploration, Man has finally reached the point where he can take his place among the planets.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has assigned Caltech's Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL) the responsibility for the planning, development and operation of space research satellites. Under JPL's direction, the first spacecraft is scheduled to be launched by the mid-1960s.

Pioneering in space research and development, JPL is now a leader in the field. With a staff of over 1,000 scientists and engineers, JPL has the capability to design, develop, test and launch satellites. The JPL research team has been working on a number of projects, including the development of new techniques for exploring the planets and the sun.

One of the most important tasks of JPL is the design and development of spacecraft. With a team of highly trained engineers and scientists, JPL is able to design and build spacecraft that can withstand the rigors of space travel. The spacecraft are designed to explore the planets and the sun, and to gather information about their environment.

The JPL research team has a special interest in the exploration of the moon. With the recent successful landing of the Apollo 11 spacecraft on the moon, the JPL team is now working on plans to send future spacecraft to other planets in the solar system. The team is also working on plans to send spacecraft to nearby stars, in order to explore the possibility of life in those far-off worlds.

The JPL research team is also interested in the exploration of the solar system. With the recent successful landing of the Mariner 9 spacecraft on Mars, the JPL team is now working on plans to send future spacecraft to other planets in the solar system. The team is also working on plans to send spacecraft to nearby stars, in order to explore the possibility of life in those far-off worlds.

For more information about the JPL research team and its plans, contact the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at (310) 397-5353.

‘Disch’ Thwarts State Cagers; Purdue Edges Spartans, 85-74

Spartans Fade in Last Minutes

LUCAS SCHWITZKE

Spartan Sports Editor

Terry Disch, Purdue forward, and the All-American center of the Boilermaker’s team that defeated Michigan State in its first appearance in East Lansing, can be expected to win a measure of attention among the 2,713 fans at East Lansing’s Jenison Fieldhouse tonight.

Purdue won the first meeting at West Lafayette, Ind., 74-64. But that win has no meaning when the opposing team is not the same in each game. Purdue coach Ray Goff has a team of 14 this year and Michigan State coach Burt Morgan has a team of 12.

Disch, a senior, was named the outstanding player of the Michigan State-Michigan game last night. He scored 24 points in front of 4,371 fans at St. Ignace, Mich., and his score broke the record of 23 points set by Don Lucas in 1954.

No. 21 Michigan Stale, 12th in the nation a year ago, is expected to produce an excellent team this season. Coach Burt Morgan is looking for his third straight trip to the NCAA Tournament, which will be held in Detroit.

Michigan State had the worst record in the north central region last season. But Morgan has been working on his team since the 1959-60 season, and the Spartans have shown marked improvement in recent years.

The Spartans currently have a 6-6 record and are tied for fourth place in the Big Ten. They have won three of their last five games, including a 6-1 victory over N. Dakota on Saturday.

Michigan State is a team that has had its share of injuries, with a number of players missing several games. But Morgan has been able to keep the team on track and they have a chance to make a run at the conference championship.
