Rusk Backs SEATO Proposal

7 Point Plan Proposed by Hannah

Less Classroom Time. More Self Study

STATE NEWSPAPER

President John A. Hannah has called a special convention to rewrite the state constitution. He explained the necessity to voted on revision of the document j automatically again until 1977. ber of graduate students.

HANNAH TOLD his audience that the purpose of the convention is to improve the quality of teaching and the curricula. Students who were raised in the 1920's could go on to graduate to define more specifically the rights of the university in order to serve the purposes of the educational community.

HANNAH'S other proposals were:

to create departments to study and meddle with the educational needs of the students.

Voting April 3rd

Third Round Of Con-Con Ballot Set

By DENNY R. BENNETT

First of Three Parts

Michigan voters will go to the polls April 3 to decide the third round in the fight to change the state constitution through a constitutional convention. The first constitutional convention was held in 1850, the second in 1912, and the third now scheduled for April 3rd.

DUBED "CON-CON" by the opponents, the constitutional convention issue began finding its way into the April election, 73 years after it was first considered by the people. In 1890, 72,000 poured into the polls to decide whether the state constitution should be rewritten. A majority of the voters, 62,000, voted yes. In each better to take a vote on the question of calling a convention again.

The intense factionalism of the party "candidates" for the State University Board of Regents is the subject of the Michigan State News. The article discusses the upcoming election and the various candidates running for different positions. The candidates are mentioned by name, and their positions are highlighted. The article also mentions the Michigan State University and the Democratic party's involvement in the election. The text is a detailed account of the political landscape in Michigan and the University's involvement in the election process.

Fifty competitive scholarships, worth $1,880 each, will be available at the academic market this spring. Thirty of the scholarships will be funded by the State of Michigan, and Michigan State University will contribute the remaining $50,000 for the first year, one of its sponsors, Rep. George Montgomery said.

Private colleges would also establish a scholarship program, Montgomery said, to keep a student it did not admit or once having admitted to attend. However, no university or college would be required to offer a scholarship.

The scholarships would be open to students who have graduated from high school and have at least a 3.0 average and who are Michigan residents. They would be awarded on the recommendation of their high school principals, according to Mark Enders, director of the Michigan Department of Education.

The recipients would be selected on the basis of need, academic achievement, extracurricular activities, and leadership qualities. The scholarships would be renewable, but the amounts would not exceed those of the state's existing scholarship programs.

Kennedy Sends Housing Bill To Congress to Save Our Cities

WASHINGTON, D.C. - President Kennedy has sent a $12 billion housing bill to Congress to encourage construction of new housing to meet the needs of millions of Americans who are without permanent homes. The bill is designed to achieve the goal of 30,000,000 homes by 1961.

Senator Kennedy, in a statement, said the bill was necessary to meet the housing needs of the American people.

As part of the bill, he also proposed a $5 billion loan for the construction of housing for the families of military personnel and a $10 billion loan for the construction of public housing.

The bill provides for the construction of low-cost housing, the rehabilitation of existing homes, and the financing of housing cooperatives. It also includes provisions for the rehabilitation of slums and the construction of new schools.

Capital Residents Get Vote

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The capital city of the United States of America has been granted suffrage, giving it the right to vote in presidential elections. The vote is needed to allow the District of Columbia to elect its own representatives to Congress.

The vote was granted after a long struggle by the residents of the District, who have been fighting for the right to vote for many years. The bill was introduced by Senator Kennedy, who said it was necessary to give the city the same rights as the other states.

Death Takes Botanist Steinbacher

Dr. George Steinbacher, a renowned botanist, died suddenly on March 12. He was 65 years old. He was a member of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin-Madison, where he had been a professor since 1942.

Steinbacher was a leading expert in the field of botany, and his research was widely respected. He was also a respected teacher, and his students remember him with fondness.
