Congo Leaders Set Union Talks

Disarmament Question Shelved Until Fall

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The Soviet Union and Britain on Thursday predicted that the talks on a nuclear test ban would resume in five years. "The talks can be postponed," Mr. Gromyko said, "but not indefinitely." The distance of the negotiations till next September, they said, was not changed.

The two sides agreed that joint meetings would be held. "This agreement was made," Mr. Gromyko said, "by the end of last month." The two men introduced a conference that would be continued. "We are not going to decide to take the discussions on 2-day plans with the opening of the talks on the 2-day plan."

The talks were to be held on the basis of an agreement on a new nuclear test ban. "According to the agreement on the talks, the talks can continue to be held on the basis of the agreement on the new nuclear test ban," Mr. Gromyko said.

Mr. Gromyko's words were echoed by Mr. British Foreign Secretary Gough. "This agreement is an agreement to continue the talks on the new nuclear test ban," Mr. Gromyko said.

On Constitutional Convention

By J. M. ROBERTS

Ordinarily someone would argue at the University to complete the big and urgent job of electing the student body. The delegates may very well feel that their knowledge of the convention has not been as complete as they would have wished.

The General Assembly could hardly suggest that the seven points are merely a “throw-away” item which any average person would accept at a glance. It is our great hope that the student body, through its representatives, will give due consideration to the points in this editorial.

Laos Too Hot for UN to Handle

By WALTER E. PATTEE JR.

The United Nations was not designed for rural development, as it were, in the area of Southeast Asia. The delegates may very well feel that the point made by the editorial on the need for the Seventh Point is just as valid in the case of Laos as it is in the case of the United Nations.

The DETERMINATION which has been set up by the United States, Great Britain, and China is to handle the situation. The United Nations has been requested to assist in this effort, but it is apparent that the representatives of the United Nations have not been able to do so in any way. The United Nations has been requested to assist in this effort, but it is apparent that the representatives of the United Nations have not been able to do so in any way.

Laos is so vast. More of this sort of thing in the United States could result in the same sort of thing, where the United States possesses the organization and the power, to set up an organization which the United Nations has recommended in the past—organizations which the United States has not been able to accomplish in principle by all sides except the rebel factions.

The DETERMINATION which has been set up by the United States, Great Britain, and China is to handle the situation. The United Nations has been requested to assist in this effort, but it is apparent that the representatives of the United Nations have not been able to do so in any way.

INDEXED: THERE is a certain condition for the United Nations. In this case, it was to the United States. The United States possesses the organization and the power, to set up an organization which the United Nations has recommended in the past—organizations which the United States has not been able to accomplish in principle by all sides except the rebel factions.

There is no question but that the United Nations has recommended in the past—organizations which the United States has not been able to accomplish in principle by all sides except the rebel factions.

Will Michigan Have Con-Con? Voters Decide Tomorrow

University town, only hopes an arrow got the head of the season, and with a shot or two they can wade right into the town and knock a few heads.

Thus, according to "Fair Play: The Con-Con Issue," the Con-Con idea was born in the early 1940s, when Michigan State University was looking for a new source of revenue to fund its operations.

Eight-Day Jewish Passover Freedom Holiday Begins at Sundown

This year, the Jewish community has been invited to celebrate a freedom holiday called Passover, which has been observed for centuries as the Jews were freed from Egyptian slavery. This year, the holiday will begin at sundown on April 25 and will last for eight days. Jewish families around the world will observe the holiday by eating a special meal called the Seder, which commemorates the Jews' liberation from slavery in ancient Egypt.

The Seder is a traditional meal that includes symbolic foods and rituals. It is held on the evening of the first day of Passover and is followed by a seven-day period of prayer and reflection. During this time, Jews will gather in their homes to retell the story of the Jewish exodus from Egypt and to reflect on their own experiences of freedom and liberation.

The holiday is also marked by the observance of the seven-day festival known as Passover Week. During this period, Jews will avoid eating certain foods, such as leavened bread and wine, as a reminder of the Jews' liberation from slavery.

The celebrations will include a special meal called the Seder, which is held on the evening of the first day of Passover. The Seder is a ritual meal that includes symbols of the Jewish exodus from Egypt, such as bitter herbs and matzah, which are eaten to remember the Jews' liberation from slavery.

The Seder is held in a special room called the Seder room, where family members and friends gather to share the meal and retell the story of the Jewish exodus from Egypt. The Seder is led by a leader, usually a rabbi or a family member, who explains the significance of each symbol and ritual.

The Seder is a time of reflection and remembrance, as Jews consider their own experiences of freedom and liberation. It is also a time of mourning, as Jews remember those who have suffered and died as a result of oppression and persecution.

This year, the Jewish community is encouraged to observe the holiday with joy and reflection, and to share the story of the Jewish exodus from Egypt with others.

The holiday will end on the evening of the eighth day of Passover, when the last night's Seder is held. During this Seder, the story of the exodus is retold, and the symbolic foods are eaten to commemorate the end of the holiday.

The Jewish community is encouraged to observe the holiday with joy and reflection, and to share the story of the Jewish exodus from Egypt with others.

Smith Receives Grid Advance

Burt Smith, veteran assistant football coach at Michigan State, has been named administrative assistant to Head Coach Duffy Daugherty.

According to Daugherty, a big chore for Smith will be handling player personnel matters. Included in this are any personnel problems that may arise in the team. He also will add to his duties the responsibility of keeping the attendance figures up.

In addition, Smith will work with spring practice and also will be in charge of quarterbacks for the annual spring game. He also will assist in compiling the player evaluations that are made during the course of the spring practices.

Smith has a bachelor's degree from Michigan State and a master's degree from Michigan State. (He also has a degree from Michigan and a master's degree from Michigan State, but these are not relevant to his coaching duties.)

Daugherty praised Smith's work since he has been at Michigan State, saying he is a hard-working and excellent staff member.
