AFL-CIO For, Farm Bureau Against
Con-Con Considered Today
By Publicity Swamped Voters

When the voters go to the polls next week they will decide whether to call a Constitutional Convention. This will be the first time the public has been asked to vote on such a question, and the question will be referred to as "con-con." Groups both for and against such a meeting have been working to prevent their side of the issue from being drowned under a flood of publicity.

The Michigan State AFL-CIO has decided to support the call of a Con-Con in order to seek a national labor policy, a demand which, while not a part of the constitution, should be included in any such legislation. The state AFL-CIO feels that the Michigan Constitution should protect the rights of workers and that a national policy should be enacted to aid in protecting these rights.

On the other hand, the Farm Bureau has decided to oppose the call of a Con-Con. The Farm Bureau feels that the state Constitution is adequate to protect the rights of farmers, and that a national policy should not be enacted without the state legislature being able to amend it.

The Michigan State AFL-CIO will be sending letters to all members of the legislature, urging them to vote in favor of the call of a Con-Con.

Katangans Resent UN Troops

ELIZABETHVILLE, Katanga—President Kasavubu of the Democratic Republic of the Congo today asked the United Nations to withdraw its peacekeeping troops from the Katanga province.

The government warned that the Katangans would "consider a declaration of war" if the troops are not withdrawn. The government stated that a convention to settle the Katangans' "mammoth question" should be held in the country's capital, Leopoldville. The statement came in response to the recent UN resolution authorizing the deployment of UN troops in Katanga.

The UN has maintain that the deployment of UN troops is necessary to maintain peace and security in the region. However, the Katangans have expressed their opposition to the action, saying it violates their right to self-determination.

College Journalists Attend
Civil Rights Conference

High school and college editors are being enticed to attend the Michigan State Civil Rights Conference in Detroit this weekend. The conference, which is being sponsored by the Michigan High School and College Editors Association, is designed to provide a forum for students to discuss civil rights issues.

The conference will feature speakers such as civil rights lawyer and former National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) legal director John Lewis, and civil rights activist and author Angela Davis. Attendees will have the opportunity to engage in discussions and workshops on topics such as police brutality, voting rights, and systemic racism.

Along With Soviets
Britain May Offer Laos Trade

MICRON—Britain is expected to propose to its allies, including its Afghan allies, a plan to open up trade relations with Laos. The plan is being considered as a way to increase economic cooperation and enhance stability in the region.

The British government is reportedly considering offering Laos a general trade agreement, which would allow for the free exchange of goods and services between the two countries. This would be a significant step in the development of trade relations between Britain and Laos, which have historically been limited.

The plan is being discussed within the framework of the Meeting of Foreign Ministers of the United Nations, which is scheduled to take place in New York City.

MacArthur Graduation Speaker

On Thursday, MacArthur will be the speaker at an academic event hosted by a local educational institution. The event is expected to attract a large crowd of students, faculty, and community members.

In his speech, MacArthur is expected to discuss the importance of education and the role it plays in shaping the future of society. The event is also expected to feature a musical performance and a lecture on the history of education in the United States.

Board Okays New Program

By ALL FREE

The Board of Trustees has approved a new program at Michigan State University. The program, which is expected to be implemented after several months of preparation, will be focused on improving student outcomes.

The program, designed to meet the needs of the university, includes the following proposals:

1. Independent learning on the part of the student, to enable them to progress at their own rate by demonstrating competence in a subject.

2. Larger blocks of subject matter, and smaller blocks of required reading, in order to facilitate the student's ability to cover the material. The student would be given the responsibility to read the required material.

3. Coordination of teaching and learning resources, through the implementation of curricula that are presented as the sum of intellectual achievements in any subject matter. The program is expected to be a multi-disciplinary effort.

4. A new dormitory, to be constructed on an existing campus area and provided with modern facilities.

The plan for the new dormitory is expected to be presented to the Board of Trustees for approval after completion of the design phase.

The program is expected to be implemented after several months of preparation, and will be designed to meet the needs of the university and its students.

Campus Police Officers Fulfill Unique Roles

By WILLIAM COVE
State News News Editor

Edgar Allen Poe probably started the idea of the campus police himself with his hanging police inspector, Burgomaster Romburg, who has often visited the type of chief of police you will meet in the campus police station on the corner for vagrants and the like. The young Poe walked across the street.

But even Poe would have had some doubts about the age of the officers of the police department of public safety.

MSU Faces Challenge To Fulfill Role As Land Grant Institution

By ANNETTE HAYE

Editor

MSU, one of the nation's oldest and largest land grant institutions, faces the challenge of how to continue to fulfill its role in the next 10 years.

The past 30 years have been a time of tremendous growth and development for MSU. From a small agricultural college, MSU has grown to become one of the largest universities in the nation, with a student body of over 40,000 and a faculty of over 2,000. This growth has been accompanied by the development of new programs and facilities, as well as the expansion of existing ones.

The challenge for MSU now is to determine how it can best fulfill its role as a land grant institution in the future. This role includes providing higher education and research opportunities, and contributing to the economic development of the state.

Possible solutions to this challenge include:

1. Continued emphasis on undergraduate education, with a focus on providing high-quality education to all students.
2. Increased emphasis on research, including the support of faculty research and the development of new research programs.
3. Expansion of outreach and engagement activities, including the development of new partnerships with businesses and agencies.

MSU is currently involved in a comprehensive planning process, which will help it determine how to best fulfill its role as a land grant institution in the future.
