UN Committee OKs
World Boycott Demand
Of South Africa Union

UNITED NATIONS, May 25—The UN Committee on the Non-Granting of Access to the Sea, under its chairman, Erich Grimm, announced last night that the committee had accepted by unanimous vote the resolution calling for a world-wide boycott of products of South Africa.

The statement was made at the conclusion of the committee’s 80th meeting at the UN.

The committee had recommended to the General Assembly the boycott of South African products, as a protest against the policy of apartheid, and the denial of fundamental human rights to the people of South Africa.

The assembly will consider the resolution on June 6.

The resolution was passed with the voting of 30 nations, including the United States, and abstentions by 31 countries, including the USSR.

As an all-out effort to inform the world of the financial situation of the Union of South Africa and the whole question of apartheid was announced as a goal by the US Committee for South African Exemption, the UN committee, in addition, was considering the resolution.

The committee’s resolution, which calls for a boycott of South African products, was adopted without a vote.

Many delegates opposed the resolution, including those of the Soviet Bloc, who contended that the boycott would not solve the problem of apartheid and would only harm South Africa’s economy.

The committee also considered the question of the status of the Union of South Africa in the UN.

In a separate development, the UN General Assembly approved a resolution calling for the withdrawal of the US from the UN.

Candidates for AUSG
Want Unity

AUSG presidential candidates called for more student government unity at a press conference yesterday.

"We are charged with seeing that the U of M is a better place," said Campbell, "and we should be "constantly striving to improve" the government. "Motives are not important to the student, but we must work together on the student level."

"We are a whole student body," said the councilman. "We are students and we are there to work for the student."

The candidates also expressed their desire for a unified student government.

"We are all working for the same thing," said Campbell. "We are all students and we all want the same thing."

"We must work together," said Seymour. "We are students and we are all working for the same thing."

On Campus with William Saroyan

WILLIAM SAROYAN speaks of some typical pieces of his work, "The General Della Rovere," which is now playing at the University Theatre. He says the University Theatre is the ideal setting for the Italian author's first American production. The play is set in a Sienna shop and is a jeu d'esprit in the best tradition of his first masterpieces.

"Kismet" Opens End of May

Since early September the University Theatre has been planning for its next spectacular production of the season, "Kismet," the lavish Arabian Nights musical which will be on the stage for the month of May. The production will be presented May 20-23 in the Auditorium Theater.

The initial planning of this grand production of the department of speech and music was done months ago, and is now on the way. A full orchestra and chorus, in addition to a spectacular display of scenery and costumes, will contribute to the success of the production. Under the leadership of Zane Langlitz, head of the department of speech in the directing, the University Theatre will present an audience of twelve thousand students and faculty members at a special matinee performance. No time is ever wasted in planning and designing the snazzy sets and costumes that are to be used in the production.

Kennedy Pledges Firm Defense Of Europe, NATO Arms Set-Up

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Kennedy, speaking before the American Legion's national convention today, said that when he met with NATO leaders in Paris he had been impressed by their resolve to defend Europe.

"In the defense of the West," he said, "in the defense of Europe, I encountered a spirit of solidarity, a spirit of confidence that the United States, as a major power, could be depended upon to come through in time of need."

Kennedy said the United States had contributed $70.4 million to NATO in the past year, "but time is running out, and we need to see some real action on the part of our allies." He added that the United States had no intention of giving up its nuclear arsenal unless the Allies did the same.

He also said that the United States would continue to support the United States Defense Department, which has been under attack for its recent nuclear tests. "The United States Defense Department is doing a fine job," he said. "It is the most important organization in the world today, and we cannot afford to lose it."

High School-College Gap Closes

By SHORN CODY
State News

The education gap between high school and college is a major concern in part to the fact that there are far too many students not prepared to enter college. The recent emphasis on increased college enrollments has placed more emphasis on the four-year college and less on the technical and business schools. This has created a situation where high school graduates are not adequately prepared to enter college. The State Board of Education has recommended that more high schools be established to provide better preparation for college.

The GAP agreement was designed to help high school students prepare for college by providing them with a structured program of study and encouragement. The agreement was signed by the State Board of Education and the Michigan State University System. The agreement provides for a two-year period during which high school students can enroll in college courses and earn college credits. The agreement is designed to help students who are not ready for college at the end of their senior year.

The GAP agreement is a significant step in closing the gap between high school and college. It provides an opportunity for students to receive college credits while still in high school, which will help them be better prepared for college. The agreement also provides an opportunity for the state to provide more education for high school students, which will help to increase the number of students who are prepared to enter college.

White Sox Win, Washington, 4-3

The White Sox defeated the Washington Senators, 4-3, to win their third consecutive World Series championship. Chicago's victory was sealed by a two-run home run in the top of the ninth inning, hit by catcher Luke Appling. The Sox had a 2-0 lead after seven innings, but the Senators fought back with two runs in the seventh to make it 2-2. But Appling's home run in the ninth gave the Sox the lead they needed to hold on for the win.

Errors Costly

Washington, D.C.—The Washington Senators lost the World Series opener to the Chicago White Sox, 4-3, in a game that was marred by costly errors. The Senators, who had won the American League pennant, committed two errors in the second inning, allowing the Sox to score two runs. The Sox continued to cruise to victory, scoring two more runs in the fourth inning on a double by Luke Appling and a sacrifice fly by Bob Feller. The Senators, who were the defending champions, were unable to overcome the early deficits and were eliminated from the Series.
