Police Go to School
The Placement Bureau recorded its busiest year on record. More employers visited the Bureau and set up more interviews than ever before.

During the school year, 920 different employing organizations held 13,331 job interviews on the East Lansing campus compared with the previous year. Figures of 92 organizations and 12,362 interviews were reported by Kinney.

"It is true that in some fields it was much more difficult for students to obtain jobs," he said, "but in general, this year's class fared extremely well."

During the school year, 920 different employing organizations held 13,331 job interviews on the East Lansing campus compared with the previous year.

During the school year there were 115 public school systems interviewing at the Placement Bureau, an increase from 108 systems from Michigan systems but Kinney noted greater recruiting activity on the part of school systems from California, New York, Ohio, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana and other states.

Interviewing was again heavy at MSU for engineering and science graduates, Kinney said. Types of employers recruiting activity in the past for these areas were electronics, manufacturers, electronics, drugs and allied products, electrical machinery and equipment, and public utilities.

"Engineers continue to command the top dollar scale offered by employers."

Electrical engineering graduates were starting at salaries averaging $652 a month, with mechanical engineers, $590; metallurgical, $540, and chemical, $528.

In engineering, as in other fields, master degree holders were starting at $75 to $100 more per month than graduates with bachelor degrees.

Doctoral candidates in chemistry, physics and mathematics were highly sought after, Kinney reported. They were receiving starting salary offers up to $10,000 per year.

Industrial organizations and CPA firms were again actively recruiting accountants but accounting firms were also good for graduates in marketing, hotel, restaurant and institutional management and production administration.

Business school graduates were starting at salaries averaging $650 per month.

Kinney also reported increased emphasis on the recruiting of Master of Business Administration candidates.

While the demand for sales and marketing trainees for both industry and business industry was down due to the recession, he said that revenue support came from educational institutions and government organizations as well as public school systems.

"More and more industrial organizations as well as public school systems," he said, "are setting up more formal college relations programs to visit the various campuses and recruit college graduates."

Dr. Guyer To Study At U of C

Dr. Gordon Guyer, research entomologist, has received a fellowship to study at the University of California and Oregon State University for six months beginning in July.

Dr. Guyer will be an agricultural delegate from Michigan State during that time. His fellowship comes from a grant for Economic Education in Journalism and packaging technology. "California leads the nation in insecticide use," he said.

Kinney also reported an increase in the demand for mechanical engineers. "A great variety of crops under varied environmental conditions. Many of their problems relate closely to those in Michigan," he said.

Dr. Guyer will study ways in which wildlife, livestock and beneficial insects adjust to insecticides. He will also participate in research on certain types of insects that develop in irrigation reservoirs during the summer months.

This problem has long been of interest to him.

Callaghan Appointment Approved

The appointment of Dr. William J. Callaghan as professor and head of the department of philosophy was approved last week by the Board of Trustees. He will succeed Dr. Henry S. Leonard, who was recently granted the status of university professor, a title which implies independence of normal departmental boundary.

Callaghan has been a member of the MSU faculty since 1949 and has been acting head of the philosophy department since 1951.

He holds two degrees from Harvard University and received his Ph.D from Columbia University in 1961.

In 1962, Callaghan traveled to Italy to study in contemporary Italian philosophy, especially of the logical-empirical school.

MSU Hosts Ice School

Michigan State University will be the site this summer for what is normally a winter sport.

One hundred and thirty-six ice skaters from the United States and Canada have registered for the 12th annual summer ice skating school scheduled for June 24 through August 20.

Khrushchev’s Host Will Tour Michigan

The Iowa farmer who played host to President Nixon will tour Michigan during a 1961 American visit to visit the feature speaker for the State Farm Management Tour on August 2.

Roswell Garst of Cavan Rapids, Iowa, who made a number of trips to Russia to observe agricultural methods in the Soviet Union, will speak on the noon program during the tour scheduled for Gratiot County.

Three farms near Alma and St. Louis in the heart of one of Michigan's top farming areas will be included on the 12th annual tour. The tour, sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service, is held to demonstrate sound management in modern farming.

Tour Director Everett Elwood, farm management specialist here, reports that the three farms to be visited will illustrate high returns from good cropland management.

The Board of Trustees accepted $484,471.12 in gifts and grants at its meeting Thursday. Included were $125,481 in grants from the Atomic Energy Commission; $83,236 from the National Institutes of Health and $61,950 from the National Science Foundation.

Dr. Albert I. Rabin, professor of psychology and director of the Psychological Clinic, will use a $45,640 grant from NIH for the support of graduate training in clinical psychology. The grant will permit addition of two staff members to the clinic and pay stipends to five graduate students. This is MSU's fourth annual and largest such grant from NIH for this purpose.

Dr. William E. Taylor, professor of metallurgical engineering, will do research on producing metals with specific types of imperfections in their crystal structures through a $41,626 grant from the AEC. He will also study effects of stress on these metals.

A grant of $35,316 from NIH will be used by Dr. Bernard S. Schweigert, head of the Department of Food Science, to provide traineeship stipends, equipment and supplies for support of outstanding graduate and postdoctoral students.

The U.S. Office of Education made a grant of $25,750 to be used under the direction of Dr. Russel B. Nye, director of the Division of Language and Literature, in support of the MSU African Language and Area Center.

Drs. Sylvan H. Wiftwer, professor, and Martin J. Bukovac, associate professor, will use a $25,000 grant from the AEC to continue their research on absorption of nutrients by plant foliage. The work involves use of radioactive isotopes to trace the course of nutrients through plants.

Further development of a laboratory in which engineering students can study model systems made up of electrical, mechanical and hydraulic components will be made possible by an NSF grant of $23,670 to be used by Dr. Herman E. Koenig, professor of electrical engineering. This systems approach, developed at MSU, represents a departure from traditional engineering education, which teaches electrical, mechanical and hydraulic networks as separate subjects.

Dr. Carl H. Brubaker, Jr., associate professor of chemistry, will continue basic studies of how electrons move in reactions in solutions through a $17,800 grant from AEC.

Dr. Max T. Rogers, acting head of chemistry, will use a $17,600 grant from AEC for research on the physical properties of miscellaneous compounds.

A $17,165 grant from the Office of Naval Research will be used by Drs. Robert D. Spence, professor, and Harold Forstall, assistant professor, Department of Chemistry, for a study of the electron spin alignments of magnetic substances at very low temperatures.

Dr. Victor J. Rudolph, associate professor of forestry, will use a $16,300 grant from the Lower Michigan Pulpwood Re-

Summer Circle Presents Five Plays

This year, for the first time, Summer Session students will have the chance to see a season of plays produced by the University Theatre in its new arena, the Summer Circle, at Demonstration Hall.

Since the close of Spring term the theatre staff has been busy reading the new playhouse for its premiere season.

New risers and chairs have been placed and lobby arrangements are being made to assure the comfort of the summer audience. The Summer Circle will accommodate 300 persons limiting its seating capacity for the scheduled four night runs to 1,290.

The season at the Summer Circle consists of five productions: "Blithe Spirit," Noel Coward's farce about polter-geists and people, will run from June 28 through July 1; "Rain," Somerset Maugham's story of Sadie Thompson, July 4 through July 8, and "The Skin of Our Teeth," the humorous history of humanity, as told by Thornton Wilder, July 12 through July 15.

"Tartuffe," Moliere's satire on hypocrisy, will play from July 19 through July 22, and "The Lark," Anouilh's tale of Joan of Arc, will run July 25 through July 29, closing the session.

Summer Circle plays will be staged "in the round" with the audience sitting all-around the acting area. To meet the lighting problems involved in this type of staging, a new flexible system is being installed which will provide everything from nicely shaped house light fixtures to highly theatrical use of angled beams of light from instruments hung on a sturdy overhead pipe system.

The use of Demonstration Hall for the summer theatre combines the spacious qualities and good ventilation of an outdoor theatre with the protection of a high roof in case of rain or wind.

The box office is now open at Demonstration Hall (between Jenison and Men's Intramural) from 2 to 6 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays, and will provide everything from single admission tickets for all productions.

Gronner Wins Fiction Contest

Winners of the English department's 1961 writing contest were announced at a banquet held at the end of spring term. Awards were given in three divisions—fiction, essay and poetry.

Stephen Gronner, a Lansing senior, won first prize in fiction. Other winners in the fiction division were Walter Lockwood, Grand Rapids sophomore, (second); Thomas McGaun, Grosse Ile junior, (third); Edward Lynch, (fourth); and George Hendrick, East Lansing senior, (also fourth).

Honorable mentions in fiction were given to Tempe Hughes, Mason sophomore, and David Kelley, Grand Rapids senior.

First-prize winner in the essay division was Horace Albaugh, a Frederick, Md. freshman.

Other winners in that division were Karen Borcher, Okemos senior, (second); and Audrey Luben, New York, N.Y., sophomore.

An honorable mention was given to Robert Sikka, an East Lansing senior.

Ronald English, East Lansing junior, and Stephen Gronner, Lansing senior, were both given first-prize awards in the poetry contest.

Ronald Gervais, a Lansing sophomore, was awarded the third-prize award while Karin best, Kalamazoo freshman; Harriet Jones, Rochester senior; David Kelly, Muskegon senior, and Thomas McGaune, Grosse Ile, junior, received honorable mentions.

Dean Fred Siebert, of the College of Communication Arts, awarded the prizes to the winners.

Hansen Tells Of Cuban Tractor Trip

Clarence M. Hansen, past professor of Agricultural Engineering, was selected as a member of the four-man technical team that was sent to Cuba as Tractor Factors for Freedom committee. The group discussed the Premier Castro's program of developing the area of industrial relations and personnel.

He was the last, industrial management specialist on the center's staff.

He said that he received no warning prior to his dismissal.

Dr. Thornton Heads Zoology Department

Dr. Charles S. Thornton, formerly of Kenyon College, Ohio, has been named professor and head of the zoology department, it was announced at the June meeting of the Board of Trustees.

He will assume his duties when Dr. Karl A. Stiles, present head of the department, retires on July 1, 1962.

Dr. Stiles will begin a one-year retirement furlough on July 1. Acting head of the department during that time will be Dr. John R. Shaver.

Dr. Thornton served as Fulbright professor in the department of anatomy at the University of Cairo, United Arab Republic, in 1952 and 1953.

He has published a number of papers containing research grants from the American Cancer Society, National Institutes of Health (neurological diseases and blindness), and the National Science Foundation.

City Council OK's Signal Light at Kellogg Crossing

Costs for a signal light to be installed at the Kellogg Center-Brookly bald pedestrian crossing was approved by the East Lansing city council.

Cost of labor and supplies for installation of the light was underestimated at $4,200, $1,000 of it for labor. Michigan State University originally estimated the cost would be $7,000. The university has agreed to pay half the costs.
