New Welcome Week

One of the pleasantest welcomes awaiting new and returning students this fall is the shorter Welcome Week. In fact, it is so delightful that one wonders why some students did not think of it earlier.

Cats fell flat, beginning on Sunday and extending through the next Sunday, was just too much. For Froatmen, it was a drudging process, while the returning students, and gave a false impression to the onlookers. Scarcely, the last collisions and events devoted to the newly returned students started too many.

They do not realize the next week that they are going to be doing it again. The activities provided during the week were for those students who had not already been exposed to them. The students who had already attended summer classes and had gotten their fill of campus life and some of those who had not taken the battery of tests which constitutes the entering student, it is understandable that they would not want to go through those again.

It called down to a simple conclusion but Orientation Week was not satisfying to college life. Instead, it was a sort of expensive resort in which students ignored planned events and enjoyed the stately maples, the lazy flowing river and kindly sheep baaing on the "back-40."

The students heads delegation, which was not orienting students to college life. Instead, it is understandable that they would not want to go through those again.

But we gladly sacrifice those extra days of reprieve for the better, more intensive program which the shorter Welcome Week should bring. The new system is better geared to orienting the new student in MSU which is its actual purpose anyway.

Defense of Relations Center Gets Support

President John A. Hannah has not announced a decision on whether to accept the resignation of his campus relations coordinator, William M. Staff of Plymouth, who resigned earlier this week. The resignation follows the action at the board of trustees meeting last week in which the board of trustees approved the resignations of the director of the college relations office, the dean of students, and the vice president for student affairs.

The resignations were due to the fact that the university is facing a $262 million budget deficit and that the board of trustees has authorized a 10% cut in the university’s budget. The resignations were expected to save the university $4 million per year.

Beginning Sept. 20, the Hendrickson College of Business and Public Administration will hold a series of open houses to discuss the future of the university and the implications of the budget cuts.

Mistakes, Struggles, Hard Work Helped Established a University

Student Rights Are Not the Same as Civil Rights!

"Students have the same rights as, as long as they are treated as, students," according to Dr. Charles E. Batten, legal expert, in a hearing before the Michigan University Board of Regents.

Dr. Batten said that civil rights have been expanded to include the rights of students. He stated, "The rights of students are not the same as the rights of citizens."

Dr. Batten cited several cases in which students were not treated in the same manner as citizens. He said that in some cases, students were treated as second-class citizens. He added, "The rights of students are not the same as the rights of citizens."
Completion of Experiment Expected by 2029

NORMA RUTSOK
State News Staff Writer

In the 20th year of his experiment, Dr. Robert Kedzie, one of Michigan State's most distinguished scientists, was on the verge of completing his experiment on the spore of puffball. Twenty years ago, he had set out to prove the conditions, not only of the mushrooms but also of the spores themselves. He had learned much about the spore from previous experiments, but now he was faced with the challenge of determining whether his spore would survive and thrive in his special environment.

The spore, 32 species of composes, was planted in sterile soil, but so far none of these species had been able to achieve a viable state. Dr. Kedzie had named the species "Calvacin"
and was ready to present his findings to the scientific community.

Dr. Kedzie was thrilled to know that his experiment could be completed by 2029. "It will be a great day," he said. "But now, it's time to focus on the future and the implications of our findings."
Classroom Buildings and Dorms
Mingle Modern with Traditional

The old and the new coexist side by side on the Michigan State campus. The student and the visitor find it easy to find their way among the many modern classroom buildings and dormitories which characterize the campus. However, the older buildings now stand out as landmarks of tradition and landscaping.

THE OLDER dormitories are located north of the University Union. The buildings were named for some of the pioneers in the state's educational history. The names are all connected with various phases of the University's history.

The oldest part of the University is the area known as Old Main, the Administration Building. It was designed by the famous architect Henry Hobson Richardson and was completed in 1886. The building is a landmark for the University and is a symbol of the earliest days of the institution.

In the last 19 years the University has grown from a small agricultural college to a large and diversified institution. The campus has been expanded to meet the needs of the students and faculty. The University Union, which opened in 1949, is a symbol of the modern facilities that have been added to the campus.

The University Union is a combination of a student union and a cafeteria. It is a popular meeting place for students and faculty alike. The Union is located in the center of the campus and is accessible from all parts of the University.

In 1960 MASON Hall marked its 40th year of classroom housing. It now houses the departments of history, political science, and philosophy.

ANTONY HALL is named for Ernest Anthony, Professor of Daily Science, who was Dean of Agriculture for two decades. He encouraged the broadening of the Continuing Education program, taught farmers how to manage during the depression years and converted the agriculture program from a wartime footing after World War II.

Olin Memorial Health Center was named for Richard M. Olin, the first full-time campus physician who ministered to the students for almost 15 years in a mansard roofed "castle" where Gilchrist stands today.

Kresge Art Center, the new art building, is a gift of the S.S. Kresge Foundation.

EIGHT OF DUFFY'S OFFENSIVE TEAM STARTERS

By JAMES WALLINGTON
State News Sports Editor

Michigan State football coach Bob Davie had his "healthy" squad go through its first full practice of the fall season Wednesday.

White shoes shined, Red Cap donned, and with the 108-degree heat covering his eyes, quarterback Travers Duffy and the squad to be fielded physical fitness exam under the watchful eye of George Johnson, Canton, Ohio, junior, returned to the squad Wednesday in coach for the first time since Aug. 10.

Safeties and junior Lynn Department were in Ohio Memorial Stadium, the same stadium on which they starred in the final game of the 1960 season.

If the Spartans survive to day's light, without injuries, they will enter a season that has been predicted to be one of the most exciting in the school's history.

Last year's backfield Gary Brandt, DeBurgh, and Herb Addarley, who has graduated, was the backbone of the team, with the latter two members returning all through the early portion of the season.

In 1960, quarterback Don Brandt, Canton, Ohio, junior, carried the ball for 1,612 yards, which is 17 more than the school record. White shoes shined, the team was able to go full tilt until the fourth game of the season when Brandt tore his knee ligaments in a game with Michigan.

The All-Americans squad.

Carl Charon, Boyne City senior, returned to full action this season.

Lewis, Louisville, Ky.; Dewey Hatcher, a jrep-acbooi star who stuck his legs, except for whatever was left of the old guard, was tbs second team halfback, except for whatever was left of the old guard. He has gotten of a crew in a meeting called by the coach.
