Astronomers Have New Mystery About Universe

LOS ANGELES — Astronomers have one of their strange mysteries, one that has been around for 20 years, and a new clue that may help solve it.

The mystery is called the "dark energy" problem. It has to do with the expansion of the universe, which is speeding up faster than ever before.

John Bahcall, a physicist at the California Institute of Technology, said that the new clue could help explain why the universe is expanding so rapidly.

"We've been looking for a way to explain the acceleration of the universe," he said. "This new clue could be the key."

Chorus Shines; Lead Acting Dim In Music Man

By JACKIE KORMAN

That the evening's music man, Paul Glenn, had an idea ahead of most of his peers was evident in the well-reviewed performance of the musical in the Custer Theatre. Mr. Glenn, a former student of the school, returned to the stage in a professional role. His direction of the show was marked by a keen sense of rhythm and a detailed understanding of the script.

The musical was a train, supposedly in the German countryside, and would not have succeeded without the help of an excellent cast. As the show progressed, Mr. Glenn's acting remained consistent, with all performers contributing to the overall success of the production.

The story of a real showman, Mr. Glenn's portrayal of the lead role was a delight to watch, and the audience was captivated by his performance. The evening was a triumph for all involved, and Mr. Glenn's contributions cannot be overlooked.
