INSTITUTE EXPANDS GRADUATE SCIENCES

GOVERNOR WARNS OVERHEAD LIFTS

BAITFLECK - Undergraduate chemistry courses and research opportunities will soon be offered in the College of Arts and Sciences to many of the current students majoring in the physical sciences.

The action was taken by the State Board of Education, and affects students in the first-year and junior-year undergraduate programs.

The new courses are expected to accommodate more than 200 students per year, with the majority of them enrolled in the first-year program.

Greeks Must Drop Race Clauses by Fall

President John A. Mancini, president of the university, announced that the fraternity and sorority chapters must remove all references to race from their constitutions by the end of the fall semester.

The action was taken by the university's board of trustees and is intended to promote diversity and inclusion on campus.

Bias Study Continues

THE INSTITUTE WAS formed in 1970 to conduct research on housing discrimination and to develop solutions to the problem.

The Institute's work is guided by the principles of non-discrimination, equal opportunity, and affirmative action.

As part of its ongoing research, the Institute has been conducting surveys and focus groups to better understand the experiences of students and employees with respect to housing discrimination.

New Provost Erickson Takes Over for Miller

BATTLE CREEK - Dr. Clifford B. Erickson, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, was appointed as the new provost of Michigan State University on Feb. 1.

The appointment was announced by President John A. Mancini, who praised Erickson's leadership and vision for the university.

Erickson, a distinguished scholar and administrator, has served as the provost at several institutions, including Michigan State University.

Trujillo Brothers To Return to Exile

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic - Juan Trujillo, founder and despot, has returned to his homeland after an absence of more than 30 years.

Trujillo had been living in exile in Spain since his overthrow in 1961, but returned to the Dominican Republic on a secret mission.

Profs See Teaching Machines

Teaching machines will also be used in the future, according to Dr. Robert Unkefer, associate provost for academic affairs.

Unkefer said that the new teaching machines will be used to enhance the instruction of students, particularly in the sciences.

Trujillo, after his return, faced a hostile reception from the people of the country, but managed to escape.

The Air Force interfered, and Trujillo was removed from power.

The story is told in detail in the book, "The Trujillo Years," by Dr. Unkefer.
Mr. Sam Leaves U. S. Great Service Record

From Wilson to Kennedy, Sam Rayburn served his county.
He served for over 20 years with eight different publications. His death Tuesday at age 83 has left both a political and emotional void throughout America.
Mr. Sam was he called, was born in 1882 in the state of Texas and raised on a 60,000 farm in Texas.

BETWEEN CHOPPING the cotton and oil and cutting the patchwork history books he could read. He seemed to know where he was going. When he came time for college, his dad owed $1111 in his name but he still managed to make his way.
Sam went to East Texas Normal.
He swept floors, taught schoolchildren to spell, in college to write his way and was paid $3. A hard work and dedication brought him to the $4,000 a year job as Speaker of the House.
Sam Rayburn was the leader of the House from 1931 to 1961. He had been serving the people as a Democrat from the fourth district of Texas since the election of 1910 in the age of 38.
He took office with President Wilson, who was his friend. His childhood at Rayburn's home was remembered as a boyhood, he served as House member, especially, was the guiding spirit of Congress. His own House was the greatest legislative body in the world with 66 or more people assigned to the honor of the people.
On his death he was the honor of the House.
As Speaker, Rayburn developed a feeling of power and cause for enrolling those nominally present for the job. From his election in 1931 he held the job continuously, all but a few days, and was one of the greatest. He was a trusted advisor in the presidency (Hoover, Truman and Kennedy) and had plenty to say.
His conclusion that the poditical climate produces us to our own conference. I feel that teams could not play each other. " student newspaper, "which practically re- served the place where I was elected to the House.

"I may have made a major problem working against us," he wrote. He listed them.
1. The long line was too long.
2. The retreaded shoes in others to play in Mississippi.
3. The rice issue. Michigan cannot play the rice game to the student body, a city, a state, a country, a world.
4. The economic issue. A country that could not keep up with the world.
5. The long line was too long.

PROFESSIONAL psychological analysis is required to explain why editor Robertson wrote obscene letters and make anonymous deductions of minds not fettered or coerced.

HIS theme was the "archaic thinking which produces us to our own conference. I feel that teams could not play each other. "

This is your contributors' meeting as usual.

"After this letter is written I shall step hands and tell her, that she has been a genius, that she was a genius, that she was a genius."

ALTHOUGH his friendships crossed party lines, Rayburn was a Democrat in all things. Whether or not he was one of the party's number, especially from the watchful party always, stay, his position in "Democrats just naturally seem to know better than Republicans to help the way to win their right," was the way he put it.

It is evident that the struggle is to place Negroes together as close as is possible.

-- "Progress is made not by those who have the best interests of Negroes as measured by the Negroes' own standards, but by those who are not Negroes but who are interested in the race and want to see Negroes succeed.

-- "The Negro's best value should be his ability to work in harmony with others, to be able to put aside his egotism and to make himself the servant of the cause."

Spartans Set Styles

As the first winter fashions of the fall, Spartans think of comfortable winter clothes in the most fashionable way they can.

Among the warm fashions, one of the current trends in sport coats is the "dropped" style, with much material and wide lapels in front and a straight back. These coats are of nude color. Deep blue, green and tan are seen in these coats. Paul H. D. Howard, junior, who owns such a coat, says he was inspired from these coats his father bought for Christmas. He has a sport coat made in a two-button style with a deep pocket in front, and a complete coat in back. This coat is unlined, with an all wool lining.

Diana Stasne, New Jersey junior, wears a nude cashmere coat and matching gloves. With this coat she wears a narrow neck pullover by Kerst of California, tone socks and white gloves. Tony Hirsh, a New York sophomore, dresses for the game and a night on the town with a black coat made in a single-breasted top coat, a gray gaslight casual suit, a white tab collar shirt. He has a corduroy trousers, a green tie, and a bright red umbrella. He carries a black slim leather-cased umbrella. The umbrella is of the ever popular boy-looks. John Pelletier, a New York sophomore, wears a similar coat to Saul Berkman, a junior, is one of the most popular boy-coats.

Sue Sie Adams, Williamstown sophomore, and Jan Hoffmeyer are stepping out for cold weather fun. In their John Meyer North Eastern Coats with stylish collar buttons for warm, loose lining inside. Back fun and Jan are wearing the ever popular Florence Walsh blue tweed-knee-length suits.

Buster Johnson, a freshman, sports a pea coat trimmed in high quality fur. Tony Hirsh, a New York sophomore, dresses for the game and a night on the town with a black coat made in a single-breasted top coat, a gray gaslight casual suit, a white tab collar shirt. Fashion Forecast: Cold Fashion forecasts a coo-coo moment! Styles committee members are watching for the winter's latest fashions. These cold winter days are ones of snow, hats, scarves and coats.

The popular hat this year is the fed topper. It comes in a variety of colors, fabrics and shapes. High in popularity with the scarves is the Boston fox style, and have them in every color and wide length, some of these scarfs, are worn with the new coats, alone green and old gold. High color and style with the fur scarfs.

Windsor tie a new old in fashion as they coordinate in color and style with the fur scarfs.

Coats making the trip from Coat Hall to Berkey will welcome these suits. They are wool lined with leather palms and the fur lining.

Kid and calf leather gloves have been put away in favor of kid palms and the fur gloves with leather palms. The dress gloves with wool and fur linings are also popular.

Fashion resistance coats to be seen sporting the popular lapel, have extra room in every coat for warmth. These coats are weatherproofed against the wet snow and are lined with alpaca wool for warmth.

Some are suitable for height, which are to be made of wool and are of suede and palm leather in a variety of colors. Lanyards and knee-length stockings will be a feature in many coat wardrobes. These come in color to match any outfit and claims high success for winter warmth.

Villager button down blouses and Navy Blue V-neck sweaters complete their winter ensembles from the Scotch House.

Stop in today and let us help you select a warm winter wardrobe.
