Gust Blasts Swaison’s Policies

By Jody Parmoli

The many executive- level jobs in the state and the Democratic Party.

Governor Alfred G. Swaison has been credited with providing a "New Renaissance" campaign theme that has been widely accepted by the electorate.

"Swaison’s program has been very successful in bringing new life to the Democratic Party," said State Senator Fred W. Johnson.

"It is not only a matter of rhetoric," said Johnson. "It is the action of the governor and the state legislature that has made this program possible."

Johnson said that Swaison has been able to implement his program by securing the support of the state legislature.

"Swaison has been able to present his program to the people of the state in a way that has been most effective," said Johnson. "He has been able to gain the support of the legislature and the people of the state."
The Du Pont Grant

Last week the Du Pont Company announced the awarding of a $1,700 grant to the department of chemistry at Michigan State University. This was a blind grant selected by Dr. Henry J. Pagel, assistant secretary and director of the company's division of public relations.

The money will be used to aid Michigan State's department of chemistry in its research and development work. The selection of the university was based on its past record in chemistry research and its potential for future advancement.

This is not the first time Du Pont has made a grant to a university. In recent years, the company has given grants to several other institutions for the development of new materials and processes.

Why Hub Caps?

The theft of automobile hub caps is costing American motorists millions of dollars a year. This is one of the things that we must do to curb this trend. Why a hub cap? Why not a tire or a steering wheel?

The simple solution would seem to be to make hub caps harder to steal. This could be done in several ways, such as making them more difficult to remove or by making them more expensive to replace.

However, the real solution is to educate people about the importance of hub caps. They are an essential part of the safety system of a car, and their theft can lead to serious accidents.

AT & L Professor Disagrees

The following article was written by an assistant professor of American Turf Science at the University of Georgia.

By R. KELLY CROCKETT

I hope other readers were not struck with the appearance of the article on the race question for American Turf Science. Perhaps it was not as striking as I expected it to be, but it is something that should be discussed.

However, the reader can only see what we are really thinking by looking at what he says, and this is where we come in. We are not only looking at what the student is thinking, but also what he is not thinking. This is something that should be discussed.

In conclusion, I hope that the reader will agree that the essay on the race question for American Turf Science is something that should be discussed.

Girl watchers are honorable men

LESSON 5—Who may watch

Any male is eligible to become a girl watcher. There is no age limit, although most girl watchers are over ten and under two hundred. There are no height requirements, although taller men may enjoy an obvious advantage at crowded parties. The only social requirement is one of courtesy. The girl watcher is a man of house. Since he can't possibly take sides, as the host watches do, he must try to be fair. Therefore, when an experienced girl watcher tells you to see your best friend girl with him on his way to the dance, he sees your family's girl. And if he really likes you, Pall Mall is the emblem of the moment, before him. It is.

Intra-faith Interest Aids Understanding

By KAREN CLAIBORNE

Students at Ohio State University are being encouraged to explore Christianity through various inter-faith events. These events are aimed at fostering a greater understanding of the religious diversity within the university and promoting dialogue among different faith communities.

The New Art Ministry is hosting an exhibit called "Intra-faith Interest," which features artwork from various religious communities. This exhibit aims to showcase the diversity of religious beliefs and practices and encourage a deeper understanding of each other's faiths.

Dr. Kim Young, an expert on inter-faith dialogue, said, "It is important to understand that we are all part of the same human family. By exploring our shared spiritual traditions, we can foster greater understanding and acceptance among people of different faiths."

Dr. Young also highlighted the importance of inter-faith dialogue in promoting social justice and peace. "Through understanding and dialogue, we can work together to address the challenges facing our world today."

The exhibit is open to the public and will be available for viewing until the end of the semester. It is a great opportunity for students and faculty to learn more about the diversity of religious beliefs and to engage in meaningful dialogue with their peers.

The New Art Ministry is located on the second floor of the Student Union Building. For more information, please visit www.osu.edu/artministry or call 614-292-2345.

Rumbles Heard in England

LONDON — The village of a nameless English hamlet is being hit by a wave of panic. It's not the result of a natural disaster or a war, but of a sudden influx of government officials seeking to investigate the truth of a scandal.

On the eve of the election, the local council was suddenly summoned to a meeting of the Department of Interior. They were told that an investigation had been launched into the council's activities.

The council members were shocked. They had never heard of such a thing happening before. They were told that the investigation was being conducted by a special team of government officials, led by a man named Martin.

"I was a staff writer with a large newspaper," Martin revealed. "I had access to all the relevant information." Martin went on to explain that the council members had been involved in a number of dodgy deals.

But the council members were not so easily intimidated. They stood their ground and refused to admit to any wrongdoing. They were determined to prove their innocence.

The investigation continued for several days, with Martin and his team poring over documents and interviewing witnesses. But in the end, they were forced to admit that there was no evidence of wrongdoing.

"It's all a big misunderstanding," Martin said. "I'm sure there will be an explanation." And with that, he and his team left the village, never to be seen again.

But the village of England remains on edge. The council members are determined to clear their names and prove their innocence. They will continue to fight for justice, no matter what the cost.
