GLENN CLIMBS ABOARD—Astronaut John Glenn climbs into the "Friendship 7" Mercury capsule stop the Atlas rocket at Cape Canaveral Tuesday. The plastic covering over the "Friendship 7" was removed before the launch. Moving across, the Atlas rocket leaves its launch pad and landed safely while the rocket is already back open.

‘Morale Booster,’ Profs Say

As scientific data and human interest about the space race builds, the lessons learned in the Mercury flights will be crucial to understanding the era. The space race ignited the imagination and sparked the minds of scientists around the world. It showed the possibilities of space exploration and the potential for human travel and discovery. The Mercury flights were a significant step in the development of space travel and laid the foundation for future missions. They demonstrated the feasibility of human spaceflight and opened the door to further exploration and research.

‘Friendship 7’ Back, World Cheers Glenn

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., known internationally around the world, today landed safely while the rocket is already back open.

They Wanted Out of Capsule

While Col. John Glenn was preparing to make his final trip in the Mercury capsule, he was urged to stay aboard the space capsule. He was expected to deal with the following questions:

1. Was it his first visit to the moon?
2. Was it possible to get him out of that capsule?

Freedom Rides Affect Both North and South

The merits of freedom rides are now being discussed in both the North and South. We have been following the statements of President Kennedy's statement last week that the rides did little for the rights in the north or south.

Kennedy was probably unaware of his opinion would trigger such a debate but we are sure that if he was aware he would be very disappointed with the results. U.S. Civil Rights Commission made his comments on this subject.

Although Kennedy did not specifically level his comments against the South, Miller felt that the President was referring to freedom rides. He went on to say that if the Civil Rights Movement was to be successful in the South, a campaign to finance Smith's trial expenses had just opened this week. While Kennedy's experience certainly qualifies him to evaluate such events, we disagree that the freedom rides had the value. Their merits are evident here when they are now telling their story to citizens of the nation's ten largest corporations when

The students we worry about are not those who do not care about anything, but the image of the United States often seems when they are unimpressed with it. The students are not the only ones who feel strongly enough to come to Washington, but we cannot wait idly either. Everyone, we can dent the segregation movement by bringing in new legislation. The effect of the Civil Rights movement has been so great that it cannot be destroyed. The law's way of bringing in new legislation is as necessary as ever. It is in the best interest of the United States. At this time and age it is essential that the United States move on this issue. The United States cannot be left behind in this issue.

The students were not worried about the matter but the image of the United States. The students were not worried about being too concerned with the issue. The students were not worried about being too concerned with the issue of segregation. They have helped make America a nation of opportunities for all on public vehicles.
Kennedy Loses Senate Votes No On Floor Debate

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy was handed a sharp defeat yesterday when the Senate voted 45 to 37 against his urban affairs plan. The measure now will return to the House for possible action of the Congress.

The Senate defeated a vote of 37 to 45 against the President's proposal, which would have provided federal grants to cities to promote downtown revitalization and urban renewal.

Kennedy Telephones Friends, Remains Optimistic

In Washington, President Kennedy continued his round of telephone calls yesterday toàn people, friends, and dignitaries, to keep them informed of the situation in the Senate. He remained optimistic about the outcome of the vote, saying that the defeat was not a total loss.

United Nations Workers Plan March

UNITED NATIONS—A workers' organization is to march in support of the workers' demand for a better labor code on the 113th anniversary of the May 1st International Labor Day, May 1st.

The march was held under the sponsorship of the Workers International League for Peace and Freedom, which has been leading a campaign for improved labor conditions in the industrial world.

Donald Trump Says He's Running Again

WASHINGTON—Donald Trump, the controversial businessman who recently announced his intention to run for president, said yesterday that he is considering running again.

Trump, who has been known for his outspoken views on a variety of issues, said that he is still intrigued by the idea of running for the presidency and is weighing his options.

Trump's announcement comes a day after he announced that he was dropping out of the race for the Republican nomination.

The Morning After

NEW YORK—The morning after the presidential election, the newspapers were filled with stories about how the outcome would affect the country and the world. The mood was one of uncertainty and apprehension.

The New York Times reported that the election had been a turning point in American history, and that the country was facing a new era.

The Washington Post noted that the election had been a close one, and that the outcome would have far-reaching implications.

The Associated Press said that the election had been a victory for the incumbent, and that the president would be able to rally his supporters to continue his policies.

Astronaut Aboard Carrier Two Hours

ABROAD THE CARRIES

WASHINGTON (AP) - Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. returned to earth early after a six-day space flight to measure the effects of weightlessness on old bones.

The capsule landed in the Atlantic Ocean a few hours earlier than expected and a special recovery team was sent to the area to retrieve the astronaut.

Glenn was well and in good condition when he was picked up by the ship's helicopter and brought aboard the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier USS Enterprise, which will take him to New York for a four-day stay.

The flight ended a record-breaking journey for Glenn, who orbited the earth 1.7 times in 66 hours, setting a new record for the longest space flight by an American.

The mission was part of a series of flights designed to test the effects of space travel on the human body, and Glenn's return marked the end of one of the most significant periods in the history of space exploration.

JFK Asks U.S. Pay Raise

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy asked Congress Thursday to vote on a pay increase for 4.5 million white-collar workers.

With a view to putting them on a pay plan equal to that of other federal workers, Kennedy proposed:

- A 15 percent pay increase for white-collar workers in the executive branch, which would be phased in over three years.
- A 10 percent pay increase for white-collar workers in the legislative branch, which would also be phased in over three years.
- A 5 percent pay increase for white-collar workers in the judicial branch, which would be phased in over two years.

Kennedy's proposal would bring white-collar pay levels closer to those of blue-collar workers, who have received significant pay increases in recent years.
