Luau May Be Fun But Is There Room?

Tropical flowers and the soft strands of island music seem destined for increased MSU activity now that spring is being planned to add to spring term events.

Unfortunately, the spring schedule leaves little room for such activities. Last year the major events were reasonably well scheduled for one day: Spring Weekend, March 29-31. Park Day and Greek Week are traditionally followed by a bunch of minor activities on the last day. This consolidation is intended to free up enough room in the schedule to add substantial events like the spring luau planned for April 11.

The effect of this, however, only increases the problem.

One major criticism of the luau is the time and place of it. It will involve 500 students and many hours from each student. The question is whether we want the luau but whether we want to turn spring term into one endless hammer-and-saw session and Palo party.

Perhaps we haven't had the answer. MSU must read this new form of entertainment. Being different, it may have the sparkling uniqueness which our students lack.

U.S. Action in Congo Lost Many Friends

The following article dated November 26, 1962, was submitted by Earl H. Lech, a graduate student at Michigan State University. It was printed in the East Lansing Daily Chronicle.

Today Miss Julia Hoel gave me a letter to read, and I feel I should not hold back with what little I can say. I have lived in Katangas for over ten years. All of these years I have enjoyed the people, and feel that if the United States backs a "crushing" of Katanga, it may never again say a foreign word about Katanga. "crushing" This year many years ago, we lived in a comfortable house, and we found that the people of Katanga were, because we were with the U.S. government, and knew them personally. In fact, when we moved to our new house in Katangas, we personally knew one of our men on our company.

The war started in December 1959, the U.S. began to send over a lot of people into Katanga, and our company also decided to send people into Katanga. We were there but we were not living in Katanga. The U.S. government sent over some of their men, and we were and sent word out for U.S. men not to.

H O E S
Spartans Lose, 71-64

By GARY RUNNINGS
State News Sport Writer

Michigan State played right back into the Big Ten basement Sunday night on north-campus basketball against Indiana here Saturday.

The overzealous, foul-plagued court was barely close to the score indicators, as the Wildcats boasted a 70-43 score as of 11 minutes to go. The game's end, 11 minutes to go.

The Wildcats finished with 27 fouls on the court and 20 fouls, six points, Dick Logan, 11 and Bill Wooden hit 11 points.

Michigan State's Ted William played one of his finest games despite the deficit, scoring 14 points and rebounding through the General.

The Spartans, after sparkling in the early stages of the Wildcats offensive, were never leading second.

The closest score ever came was four points, when Williams

The Spartans, who had led 39-33 at half, took a slim win on one of the rare occasions when the Wildcats had less than 10 points under their belt.

The game's end, 11 minutes to go.

Michigan State's Mike Burda was the most distant scorer of all, 8 points, Dick Logan, 11 and Bill Wooden hit 11 points.
