Needed: Liberalized Housing Regulations

The Faculty Committee on Student Affairs meets Wednesday to consider the relaxation of off-campus housing regulations.

While this committee has only advisory powers, its recommendations will be carefully studied by the Academic Senate and the Board of Trustees, who make the final decision.

Thus, it is of the greatest importance that this committee favorably recommend that off-campus regulations be simplified and liberalized. United student sentiment clearly indicates that the reforms are much-needed and long overdue.

The present housing policy states that men must live in a University residence hall for their first year. From their sophomore year to 21 years old, they can live in approved and supervised housing.

From the ages of 21 to 25, men are allowed to live in approved and unsupervised housing. After 25, they may live anywhere.

Women may live in off-campus status to 21 years may live in approved and supervised housing. Women graduate students 25 years old, may live anywhere.

Last spring, the Student Congress Welfare Committee made a study of MSU's off-campus housing policies.

The committee recommended that men and women students over 21 years be allowed to live anywhere they chose. Men under 21, if parental approval, could live in approved but supervised housing. Women under 21 would still have to live in approved and supervised housing.

If the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs adopts the above recommendations, some of the housing problems, off-campus regulations must be liberalized.

Several years ago the Michigan State Brother-Sister Program was formed as an attempt to bring together American and oriental students. The emphasis is on the delegation of the program, and it was hoped that the communication between the peoples of different cultures and societies could be broken down and replaced by a community of understanding.

Not unlike the League of Nations which became the indispensable part of President Wilson's platform for a peaceful world, there was no such organization before it had been formed in 1934. Every American should make a personal effort to find out more about the people and their problems. Then, the opportunity to do just that may come in the form of an individual by an individual basis.

To Swim
In Calif. Meet

Chris Kluter, Swimmer of Hjortaas, To Swim
In Calif. Meet

In the swimming world, there were some new names created early this season when Michigan State's basketball team jumped in the school's new pool and through the first leg of a race.

"Swimmers," according to J. Hjortaas, were working out for the first time when he picked up a piece of paper and slipped out the door. "Said," he explained, "I've always wanted to swim with the best teams in the world and this is the chance I've been waiting for.

Hjortaas dabbled in swimming when his father and brother were on the local team. He's been working out for the past year, living in a dormitory, training with other swimmers.

"I've never trained so hard," he said, "but I'm determined to make the team.

The Swimmers, however, little used him in practice and he was sent home with a cramp. His coach and his parents said he was too young and shouldn't be training so hard.

"I knew I had to improve," Hjortaas said. "I'm going to train harder and get the best out of my body.

He'll be back in the water next week and is expected to be ready for the team meet in November.

Jim "Mudcat" Grant

Jim "Mudcat" Grant's career began in 1945 when he joined the Boston Red Sox.

His career spanned 20 years, ending in 1964 when he retired for health reasons.

Grant, a left-handed pitcher, was known for his spitball, which he mastered when he was young.

He pitched for the Sox for 13 seasons, winning 215 games and losing 105.

Grant's career was marked by a string of injuries, including a broken arm that kept him out of action for several years.

Despite his injuries,
Grant managed to win 20 games four times, including 21 in 1958.

He also set a record for most strikeouts in a season with 286 in 1959.

Grant's career was honored with a number of honors and awards, including induction into the Baseball Hall of Fame in 1983.

Golfers Face
Shake-up
Despite Wins

Golfers face a shake-up in their rankings despite some impressive wins recently.

Despite winning the Pittsburgh Open and the National Open,
the top golfers are expected to face a shake-up in their rankings.

The shake-up is expected due to the high number of upsets in recent tournaments.

However, the top players are expected to remain at the top of the rankings, with the exception of one or two surprises.

The top golfers are expected to face a
difficult year ahead, with many tough
tournaments
expected.

Klemco Tosses No-Hitter

Klemco, a pitcher for the Hawaiian team, tossed a no-hitter in a recent game.

Klemco, who has been playing baseball since he was young,
was expected to pitch well in the game.

Despite the tough competition, Klemco managed to pitch a no-hitter, with the only runs coming on two unearned runs.

Klemco's triumph was expected to boost his career significantly.
