A tired, but happy MSU couple paddled into Mio Campground Park around noon Thursday after making a 23 day 900 mile trip from the East Lansing campus for the opening of the Great Lakes Forestry Exposition.

Dud and Carol Mabury put their canoe in the Red Cedar below the dam on south campus July 7, paddled to Kalamazoo street and portaged around Lansing.

They continued down the Grand River and then portaged around the dams at Grand Rapids and paddled to Lake Michigan. In Lake Michigan, Manistee and has East Lansing school teacher wife met high waves and unreasonable weather.

After coming up the coast 100 miles to the mouth of the Muskegon, the couple attached a three-horse power motor to the canoe.

ELEPHANT TUSKS—Deanne Beegovich, Pontiac junior holds one of two 65 pound ivory tusks the MSU Museum received this week from Jess Touberg, wildlife hunter and photographer. Touberg also sent along 4,000 pounds of bones and hides which belong to the bull African elephant he shot in Kenya this year.

The MSU Museum officials are puzzled. They have received by donation the bones, tusk and hide of an African elephant shot in Kenya, Africa early this year, and haven't decided what to do with it yet. The six-ton African specimen was shot by and donated to the university by Jess Touberg, Tevumesh, Mich., wildlife hunter and photographer.

Officials have not decided what to do with the animal which arrived last week in five large packing boxes weighing 4,000 pounds.

"We can sale it several ways," said Russell Baker, director of the Museum. "The bones can be used to compare with tusks or bones of the elephant's cousin which roaming Michigan at one time—the mastodont. The elephant has value for both teaching and research."

Baker is considering reconstructing the elephant using the bones, the lide "which weighed several hundred pounds and the 50-pound spine tuba, but finding enough room is a problem."

Touberg's donation gives the MSU museum a bragging point. Baker said his museum is the only complete African elephant in a Michigan museum. Touberg, described as friend of the Museum, has also donated the South American jaguar, and two India tigers.

Zerby Leaves For 2 Years In Nigeria

U.S. and German Embassy officials, July 12, discussed two years of negotiation to begin talks on the social sciences at the University of Nigeria at Nsukka.

Michigan State, under a contract with the Agency for International Development, is providing technical assistance in a numer of areas at the new university in Africa. Zerby will be responsible for the general studies program in the social sciences at the Uni-

Campus Housing Shortage Expected

A critical shortage of rooms faces the university this fall despite the opening of a new coed dormitory, reports from the housing office show today. Eleven thousand students have been assigned space in housing originally designed for 9,200 residents, including 1,400 in the new Wilcox Hall, MSU's second coed dormitory, and Tom Dutch, director of university housing. The housing office is building up applications of sophomore, junior and senior men who want to live in one of the eight men's halls until all male freshmen are assured a room.

Freshmen must be assigned rooms first because of university regulations stating they must live in on-campus housing their first year of school, Dutch said. Some Upperclassmen who want to live on campus might have to find off campus housing, it appears.

So far, 5,000 men have been placed in housing designed for 4,000, necessitating three men in a room in many cases.

"This is the first time since I've been here we might have to turn down applications from upperclassmen," Dutch said. "It was in his 100th year as housing dean. "This is the most crowded the housing has been as far as men are concerned that I've seen."

Women's housing is not as crowded. Around the corner, the couple attached a three-tone power mower to the boat to paddle around the campus. The couple, who were paddling, said they had been allowed to use the boating facilities.

Regional Nationals Are Here

In March

Michigan State has been chosen as host for the 1963 NCAA regional basketball playoffs, the association has announced.

Picture below.

Kansas, Maryland and West Virginia will be the other states. MSU will have the mid-eastern playoffs in the Fieldhouse on March 13 and 16. Clarence "Bragg" Mixon, University athletic director said Sunday.

Commenting on the NCAA decision, "Bragg" said, "I think we've been chosen because it has been a big basketball fan to see a lot of teams play. The Big 10 championship teams will be playing and the winner of the regionals will go to the playoffs in Louisville.

The high school tournament will be played the following week, March 22 and 23," Bragg said. "This is the first time in the NBA, the NCAA history that MSU has been chosen to host the regionals, he added.

Bruce Feenem, MSU basketball coach, said: "Fred and I were in Chicago on Tuesday and we're happy that the regionals will be here. It is quite an honor,

"We're going to be a big job for everyone concerned," he added.

Feenem said that the role of tickets for the regionals will be in the hands of local people.

He further commented that "the fairest of the top teams in the country will play here, it is very possible people in this area will get to see the national champion."

Cooed Dining Set For Fall

Cooed dining comes to the firsty group this fall, Braddy officials announced last week.

Women move into Rather and Butterfield Halls at the firsty area for the first time since the buildings were completed. According to Ted Smith, Braddy manager, officials will eat in the southwest dining room with Rather women and Braddy men.

Smith said there would be revised food choice policies, modified from both women and men menus used in other dorms,

What is the importance of winning elective office in the United States? Paul Chien, 35-year-old naturalized citizen from Shanghai, will give the American system this test.

A philosopher, a happy little man, Chien feels that it will stand well against the American democratic system if he pulls over 50 votes in the race for the Republican nomination from the 11th senatorial district.

Chien said that it is a compliment to the American system that a person naturalized two years ago is allowed to run for public office.

An outspoken management consultant, Chien has had plenty of experience with the American system.

A year ago he was found innocent of involvement in a large bank fraud in Japan, lack of a nine part series on the proposed new Constitution.

A series of "first" characterizations: MIU radio station WKAR throughout its 40-year history.

Broadcasting activities began when some ingenious students rigged World War I wireless sets to transmit slightly ribald songs between 4th and Wells halls. A wider audience overheard the broadcasts, however, and they were speedily replaced by more orthodox programs.

Students using equipment from the Electrical Department transmitted programs over a station with call number WYU. President David Frary spoke to alumni groups over the station in 1922.

WKAR's first broadcast an MRE's official college station originated in March, 1923, from fourth-floor offices in the Home Economics Building.

Under the direction of James B. Hasselman, WKAR became America's first radio station to broadcast college basketball games.

One could hear broadcasts during the 1920's such as "Farmers' Shares" by Mrs. Dana H. Stockman or G. A., Erash's "Ten Minute Talk on Turtles." The early 1930's saw WKAR broadcasting restricted by the Federal government to one-half hour at noon and one hour during the afternoon.

By 1937, the station was broadcasting during daylight hours six days weekly. Programs ranged from child development to soil management. Direct broadcasts from J. T. Wall's garden showcased the schedule.

"Adventures in Music," America's first program designed for listening by rural schools, premiered in 1934.

Previously connected with the Cooperative Extension Service, WKAR was recognized as a separate department in 1940. Its present increase, to 3,000 watts, the station boosted new station in the University auditorium and an antennae where blowfalls now stand.

WKAR added an FM station in 1946 to extend its broadcasting range beyond Ionia.

Celebrating its 40th anniversary this year, WKAR broadcasts an average of 18 hours per week. Its cultural and education programs reach audiences in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and farther, Canada.

WKAR presents educational and public service features, including sports, news and guest shows. Programs range from a symphony concert to African news reports. WKAR was awarded radio's highest honor, the George Foster Peabody Award, for outstanding service in public broadcasting, in 1957.

WKAR operates a sign service which supplies readers with...

Farming is Risky Life

Farming is one of the most dangerous occupations in the United States today. Accident reports rank it right behind mining and construction as a hazardous occupation. These farming matters caused over 1,000 deaths and a disabling accident every 25 seconds on the nation's farms. These startling materials are also a "farm problem."

Ice Show Set
For Wednesday

The 14th annual summer ice session being held at the MSU Ice Arena will put on its second show of the summer on Wednesday, Aug. 1, at 8:15 p.m. and Morris Wild, manager of the Ice Arena.

The show, featuring skaters from all over the country, will consist of 22 acts including solos and group numbers. The skaters, all of amateur rank, range in ages from 16 to 18. The acts will be highlighted by spotlights, music and costumes, said Wild.

Some of the performers, holding many gold medals from all over the world, are Joys Unell. Allerton, Attila Nepsz and Myrka Soder.

Admission will be $1 for riser-side seats and 75c for seats in the balcony.

The summer ice session is sponsored by the Lansing Skating Club and Michigan State University, and is sanctioned by the United States Figure Skating Association. It consists of eight weeks of training under such instructors as Eugene Mokler, Montgomery Rolfe, Jack Lan, Inez Kruset, Hurler Williams and Wild.

The 125 registered skaters participating in the session are training to build a skating team to represent the U.S. in international competition. All the members of the American figure skating team were killed in an air

New S&IT Board For Uof M Daily

It appears that the controversy between the student editors of the Michigan Daily and the publications board has been resolved in favor of the students.

The dispute arose last spring when the publications board attempted to dictate to the students who was qualified to be an editorial editor of the paper and to switch around the recommendations of the senior student editors.

The editors rebelled and refused to accept the positions as offered by the board.

After lengthy debate, the board has appointed seven of the eight student recommendations and changed only minor points, according to Fred Kramer, mathematics major, and former senior editor in the fall.

As a result of the dispute, a new publicity board has been appointed. Jack Cooper, a mathematics major from New York City, who is senior editor and will take over as co-editorial page editor in the fall.

Kramer said he felt that the dispute had brought out the need for better communications between the student newspaper staff and the board and that efforts along this line were being successful.
