Why, It's Just Downright Radical!

Paul Goodman, book reviewer for the "New York Times" and first guest speaker at Michigan State's Provoct Lecture this fall, may never be invited back to this campus. Although he was used in the November issue of Harper's magazine.
We are, of course, of the opinion that the speaker's committee must work to the fullest extent. Surely, the administration would apply pressure to bring about the right kind of speech by the committee.
In the article, Goodman radically proposes that in order to correct the ills of education, students and teachers should secede from their universities and set up their own schools. Goodman, author and teacher, who, having visited nearly four colleges and concluded that they were in a state of paralysis, which made any drastic changes in his impression.
"A small succession from a dozen colleges should be allowed to be nowed, that the college administration will resist, for the executive's excuses for existence and promote the revolutionary idea in any way.
It seems to us that Goodman is advancing the overthrow of educational administrations and universities in this country.

Letters to the Editor

On Cuba, Paternalism, Parking

To the Editor:

Let's face up and think for an instant. Let's take this constant endless and rest-at-work at the expense of our so-called "enemies." We feel that the time has come to let the student body be allowed to speak on the campus where he might come to know the minds of Michigan State students (and members of faculty) in the United States, the constitution and all we hold dear.

Dear readers of Goodman's views vis-a-vis those of our Administration, we feel that the time has come to let the student body be allowed to speak on the campus where he might come to know the minds of Michigan State students (and members of faculty) in the United States, the constitution and all we hold dear.

Nature Wins Again

After 30 years or so of crying, we've got our trees back, and you and I can build a country to be proud of, what with "affordable" housing, etc.

Eating Our Way to Ruin

We used to command only a fraction of the populace of the planet, but now we are the ones who are threatened by a world of discontent. Perhaps we used to be guilty of a great overgrowth of our lands.

Scholarships Given

Creative Students

As an expression of gratitude to the many creative students who give such brilliant attention to their work, the Design Dept. has pooled its resources to offer scholarships in the arts. These scholarships are open to high school seniors who show an outstanding talent in any one of the arts.

The students who enter the competition should submit a portfolio of their work to the Design Dept. at the University of Michigan, 1100 State St., Ann Arbor, Mich. The winners will be announced on May 15th.

Honesty Noted

In Bookstores

Local bookstores personnel have noticed that the honor system, when coupled with proper signage, can be an effective method of controlling the theft of books. The counselors at the University Bookstore have often noticed that the number of books returned has increased since the signs were put up.

Deer Problem Is Universal

Several problems, such as deer, have been reported in the area. These problems include deer crossing highways, eating crops, and causing accidents. The University of Michigan has been working on a solution to this problem, but so far, the results have been inconclusive.
