The Michigan State Board of Control has approved an agreement on academic freedom which the faculty members of the university has passed on to the students. This agreement defines and delivers the scope of the faculty's responsibilities. The document is signed by the members of the Board of Control and is subject to the approval of the legislature. The agreement is dated February 7, 1963.

Chicago ’63 conference

In this location developing in-"M S U has always proudly maintained a tradition of excellence in research, industrial development, and education. This conference reflects our commitment to these principles. The conference will be held on the campus of Michigan State University in East Lansing, Michigan, on April 11-13, 1963.

President Charles G. Kroll, provost of engineering, will open the conference. He will be followed by the Executive Vice-President, Dean of Engineering, and Vice-Presidents of Engineering and Business Administration. Other speakers will include representatives from the...
Crossing Streets Is Exciting Pastime

The campus has developed three distinct types of pedestrian and motor traffic violators. Loosely labeled, they are a special breed of "ambulator" and "vehicular" with destructive impulses - either suicidal or homicidal.

Broken down into subgroups, they can be classified accordingly:

1. "The Indifferent," a pedestrian who assumes that since he can and will stop to allow him to cross the roadway, whether it be 3rd Avenue and River Avenue or Circle Drive.

2. "The Roadrunners," that breed of pedestrian who would rather tear through the traffic than stick to the sidewalks.

3. "The Tank Drivers," the motorists who will speed up to prevent a pedestrian or another motorist from legally crossing the roadway.

In the first two cases, the pedestrians are directly violating University traffic ordinances. "Pedestrians shall not cross the road at a marked crosswalk," says the regulation, in the name of safety into a world of uncrossable sidewalks.

The "Tank Drivers" are also covered by University ordinance. The University, in effect, yields the right of way to a pedestrian crossing the roadway within the marked crosswalk, "stains the ordinance.

Labor Flexes Muscles

By Jack Shea

A new wave of work by Nap. Sheider, to broaden the range of American labor, is being embraced. Nap. Sheider's slogan has been "solidarity with the worker who is going to get the wrong end of the stick."

"The Sharp" is a new weekly labor paper owned and published by Nap. Sheider. The Sharp is the first paper in the country to feature labor action, labor news, and the labor movement in small towns, rural areas, and across the country. The Sharp is a newspaper for the American worker, by the American worker, and about the American worker.

The Sharp's goal is to provide a forum for labor activists to share their experiences and ideas, to promote solidarity among workers, and to build unity in the labor movement. The Sharp is a voice for the working class, a voice for justice, a voice for freedom.

The Sharp is published weekly and distributed to labor activists across the country. It covers a wide range of topics, from labor organizing to workers' rights to political action. The Sharp is a vital resource for labor activists, and a powerful tool in the fight for a better future for all workers.

The Sharp is owned and operated by Nap. Sheider, a labor activist and organizer. Nap. Sheider is a leader in the labor movement, a tireless advocate for worker rights, and a dedicated fighter for social justice.

BEERIER SAYS SCIENCE Must Continuously Discover

Benjamin Franklin might have been convinced that the scientific method can be taught. A University science lecturer, however, who took this view, was strongly criticized by a group of students who felt they had not been taught the method.

The lecturer, who was a physics professor at the University, had given a lecture on the principles of the scientific method. He had explained the importance of observation, experimentation, and analysis in scientific research. But the students were not satisfied with this explanation.

They felt that the lecturer had failed to show them how to apply the scientific method in their own work. They claimed that the lecturer had not given them enough practical examples of how to use the method.

The students' criticism was not without basis. The lecturer had indeed failed to show them how to use the scientific method in their own work. He had simply explained the principles of the method, without showing them how to apply it.

The students' criticism was a reminder that the scientific method is not just a set of principles, but a way of thinking. It is a way of approaching problems in a systematic and logical manner. It is a way of testing hypotheses and evaluating evidence.

The students' criticism was also a reminder that education is not just about teaching facts, but about teaching how to think. It is about teaching how to use the scientific method in all areas of life, not just in the classroom.

We need to learn how to apply the scientific method in our daily lives. We need to learn how to think critically and creatively. We need to learn how to use the scientific method to solve problems and make decisions.

We need to learn how to apply the scientific method in all areas of life, not just in the classroom. We need to learn how to use the scientific method to solve problems and make decisions. We need to learn how to think critically and creatively.

Student Cracks Newswriting Market

Success Rewards Writer

Two students recently received recognition in the form of scholarships and awards for their writing talents. The students were among the first to enter a contest sponsored by the Michigan Daily, the university newspaper. The contest was open to all university students, and the winners were announced last week.

The contest was designed to encourage young writers to explore newswriting as a career option. The winners were chosen based on the quality and originality of their entries. The first prize winner was awarded a $500 scholarship, while the second prize winner received a $300 scholarship.

Both winners expressed their excitement about the recognition and the opportunities it might bring. They plan to use the scholarships to help fund their education and pursue their writing careers.

This newswriting contest is a great opportunity for young writers to showcase their skills and gain valuable experience. It also serves as a reminder that there are many opportunities available for those who are passionate about writing and journalism.
Cafeteria Takes Much Planning, Work, Food

By ROY BROOKS
The cafeteria workers, a group of 11 cooks, a head cook, and a group of 900 daily cafeteria employees have much planning, work, and coordination to do in order to serve each day's 2,000 daily meals. The men are divided into three groups of about 300 each and each group is responsible for a certain number of meals.

Scheduling Exams Tricky

The scheduling of exams is a difficult task, as the exam schedule must be assigned to the different departments and courses in a way that is fair to all students. The first day of each term, the exam schedule begins with the first of the alphabet, the examination schedule begins with the MWF 8:00 classes on the first day of the term. If the schedule begins with the middle of the alphabet, it begins with MWF 1:00 classes. If the schedule begins with the last of the alphabet, the exam schedule begins with MWF 4:00 classes.

In rotating the schedules this way every term, no instructor need be doomed to last place on the schedule, if he teaches the same hours several terms in succession.

There are five, two hour testing blocks each day: 8-10, 10:15-12:15, 1:30-3:30, 3:45-5:45, and 7-9 P.M.

The first exams to be scheduled are the University College examinations. They are assigned one period a day for four days, each meeting from 10:15 to 12:15.
