Students, Teenagers Involved In Collision

A hurried drive to a University road to her dormitory before classes brought about a collision and severe injuries at 10:15 a.m. on Tuesday, April 23, when Miss M. A. Burns, a 19-year-old senior in the School of Business Administration, was struck by a red 1964 Ford station wagon as she crossed the street near the intersection of Harrison and Pennsylvania Avenues.

Miss Burns, a student at Michigan State University, was walking to class when she was hit by the car that was traveling west on Pennsylvania Avenue. The car was driven by Miss G. M. Burns, 17, also a student at Michigan State University.

The accident occurred on the west side of the intersection, and the driver of the car was not hurt. Miss Burns was taken by ambulance to the Michigan State Hospital, where she was listed in critical condition.

Student Drinking: Realistic Approach Is Needed

The tragic accident which claimed the lives of three students and narrowly spared eight others this weekend provides a graphic example of an area in which a little more student control is needed.

Officers at the scene of the accident reported that the players were drinking heavily and that they were being driven to the scene in a car with no license plates. The driver later admitted that he had been drinking heavily.

It's that old story again—alcohol and driving—driving under the influence of alcohol.

The University is realistic in dealing with student drinking violations. Student drinking, as long as they don't call attention to themselves, are left alone. The Administration emphasizes that it does not "go out hunting" for student drinkers, but deals with them through Student Judicial machinery when cases come to the Dean of Students office.

Where there are students, 25,000 of them, there is bound to be drinking. That is a fact, it is part of college life. And there is nothing wrong with it, if it's done sensibly.

But tragedies involving drinking and driving don't have to happen. A student with a few beers under his belt is in no better condition to drive a car than an other adult, and he's kidding only himself if he thinks otherwise.

The University handles the problem of student drinking maturely and realistically.

The student must be as mature and realistic in realizing his limitations when 'under the influence,' too.

This and That

Israel—Not Very Big

But Lots Of Action

"Let's go to Israel; we're only for two minutes. We'll take the kids along, too."

That's what came through the mail the other day. In some ways, it seemed more like a letter from Monty Python than a letter from some newspaper.

"Monty Python," it seems, is the name for a group of people who are doing some interesting things in the world of entertainment. They've made a few movies, done some TV shows, and generally been making people laugh.

But it seems that they're not just doing it for fun. There's some serious work being done here, too. They've been using their humor as a way to make a statement about the world we live in.

The Red Sea isn't really cut. It's very much part of the Mediterranean Sea, and the people of the region have always felt that it's a part of their history and culture.

There's one particular region in Israel that's been getting a lot of attention recently. It's called the 'Red Sea' region, and it's located on the eastern side of the Mediterranean. It's home to a lot of people who are concerned about their future and the future of their region.

There's a lot of development going on here, and there's a lot of hope for the future. But there are also a lot of challenges to overcome. The people of the region need to work together to make sure that their voice is heard.

Ocean of Trouble

We heard the other day that the world situation is no fluid that the world is in danger of going down the drain.

Letters To The Editor

Defending DeGaulle, Drinking

To the Editor:

I was very pleased to see the article in the February 3 News about Defense DeGaulle's participation in the current world crisis. I feel that it is important to support our government's efforts in this crisis.

I agree that it is crucial to maintain a strong defense in order to protect our country. However, I believe that there are other ways to achieve this goal besides military action. DeGaulle's idea of negotiating with other countries seems to be a more peaceful and effective approach.

It is important to remember that peace is not just the absence of war, but also the existence of justice and equality for all.

Sincerely,

Frankly Speaking

To the Editor:

I was interested in your recent article about the importance of education. I completely agree with your viewpoint.

Education is the foundation of a strong society. It provides the tools necessary for individuals to become successful and productive members of society.

I think it is important for schools to focus on teaching critical thinking skills, rather than just memorization.

Sincerely,

New ‘S’ Offense Almost Dumps Illini

By John H. Denholm
The State News

State’s basketball team threw up a 23-point lead against Illinois before giving up a late rally that cut its margin to one point in the final minute.

State was on top, 87-64, with 7:35 left in the game, but Illinois rallied to cut the lead to 88-85 with 26 seconds remaining in the game.

State, which held a 9-point lead with 8 minutes remaining, was led by a career-high 20-point performance from guard Jimmy Williams, who was named the game’s Most Valuable Player.

The game was a tight battle throughout, with the score tied at 88 with 26 seconds remaining. Williams hit a 3-point shot to give State the lead, but Illinois came back to tie the game again with 17 seconds left.

Williams added a free throw to put State back on top, 91-86, with 14 seconds remaining, and the game ended on that score.

Williams finished with 20 points, 5 rebounds, and 5 assists, while guard Mark Sanders added 19 points and 6 rebounds.

The game was a defensive struggle, with State holding Illinois to just 86 points, its lowest total of the season.

State improved to 11-3 overall and 7-3 in the Big Ten, while Illinois dropped to 12-3 overall and 7-3 in the Big Ten.

State will face its next challenge on the road against Ohio State on Saturday.

American diplomats and aid workers, who have sought to shield the government from self-appointed vigilantes and bloody revolution, say there is little the United States can do to stop the fighting.

The United States, which has maintained a military presence in the region for nearly 30 years, has already pulled out of Jordan and is expected to withdraw from Iraq and Kuwait soon. But experts say the American presence in the region is likely to continue for some time.

The American military presence in the region has been a source of controversy, with some critics saying it has helped fuel the regional wars and others saying it has helped maintain stability.

The American military presence in the region has also been a source of conflict, with some countries, such as Iran, saying it is a threat to their sovereignty.

The American military presence in the region has also been a source of economic benefits, with some countries, such as Saudi Arabia, saying it has helped their economies.
