Military Gets Pay Raise;
Will Not Affect ROTC

WASHINGTON—The Senate Tuesday extended the life of the Civil Rights Commission for another year, the vote being 62-22. The measure, which the Senate adopted, authorizes hearings and a permanent status for the Civil Rights Commission, would extend its life for another year and would require it to hear cases until the end of the current Congress. The measure was introduced by Senator Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) and co-sponsored by Senator Strom Thurmond (D-S.C.).

Senators Bronson and Reynolds voted against the extension, saying the commission had outlived its purpose and that the money should be spent elsewhere.

ROBERT D. REYNOLDS (D-N.M.)
Mr. President, the Civil Rights Commission was designed to stop discrimination in the use of interstate facilities. In the fifteen months that it has been in operation, it has heard over 250 cases. To continue it at the present level would cost $1,200,000 a year, while $250,000 would be adequate for an effective program of public education. The funds are needed in other areas where they will be of greater value than in the extension of the life of a commission which is no longer effective.

Senator COPLEY (R-Calif.)
This commission was conceived as a temporary institution to deal with discrimination in the use of interstate facilities. It was never intended to become a permanent agency. It is not an efficient way to handle the problem of discrimination, and it is not the best use of funds.

Senator OLIVER (D-Mo.)
The extension of the Civil Rights Commission for another year is unnecessary and unwise. The commission has already demonstrated its inefficiency and is now a sop to the Civil Rights group, the so-called "old Negro organization." The Federal Government has many other agencies that are more effective in dealing with discrimination.

Senator COPLEY (R-Calif.)
We have heard from the Senate majority leaders that the commission is needed to stop discrimination. I think this is a misstatement of the problem. The commission has not been effective in stopping discrimination. It has been a glorified hearing board that does not have the power to enforce its decisions.

The extension of the commission would result in a misuse of funds. We should be spending these funds on better programs that will actually stop discrimination. The Civil Rights group has failed to convince us that the commission is effective. We should not give it another chance to fail.

The extension of the commission is a waste of money and a misuse of funds. It is a failure and a disgrace. We should not extend it for another year.

Senator COPLEY (R-Calif.)
I want to repeat that the extension of the Civil Rights Commission is unnecessary and unwise. The commission has already demonstrated its inefficiency and is now a sop to the Civil Rights group. The Federal Government has many other agencies that are more effective in dealing with discrimination. The extension of the commission would result in a misuse of funds. We should be spending these funds on better programs that will actually stop discrimination. The Civil Rights group has failed to convince us that the commission is effective. We should not give it another chance to fail.

The extension of the commission is a waste of money and a misuse of funds. It is a failure and a disgrace. We should not extend it for another year.
One Year Lease

The current round of Senate debates on the very controversial Civil Rights Commission proposal, brought about its defeat in the Senate. It is therefore pertinent to bring to the attention of the readers the reasons for its defeat.

The Senate bill, which was introduced by Senator Robert McNary, a Republican from Oregon, has been under consideration for several days now. The bill provides for the establishment of a new federal agency, the Civil Rights Commission, to investigate charges of discrimination in employment, housing, education, and other areas.

The commission would have the power to issue cease-and-desist orders and to seek injunctions and damages for violations of its recommendations. The bill also contains provisions for desegregation of public schools and for the appointment of a special master to carry out its judgments.

The Senate has been divided on this issue, with the Republicans supporting the bill and the Democrats opposing it. The Senate vote was close, with a margin of only a few votes.

The Senate debate was marked by heated arguments, with proponents of the bill arguing that it was necessary to protect the rights of minorities and to combat discrimination, while opponents of the bill argued that it would infringe on the rights of businesses and individuals.

The Senate bill was defeated on a vote of 79-17, with only a few senators changing their votes on the final vote. The bill will now go back to the House of Representatives, where it will be considered again.

Pigskin Safari Lost; Game Air Trip Off

The Pigskin Safari planned by the Alumni Office to make a short journey to the University of Florida and the University of Southern California has been canceled. The Safari was a proposed trip for MSU alumni to the three Southern California teams, the University of Southern California, Arizona State, and UCLA. Four days, October 2-6, were planned in which alumni could enjoy themselves in Las Vegas after time out for the Spartan game on Friday night.

Only about one-half of the required number signed up for the trip, and other arrangements have been made to complete the remainder will be made by the Alumni Office. Special arrangements were made by the office for those who still wished to attend the game.

The only other Dodger in preference to Bob Friend is left-handed reliever Ron Perranoski. The Dodger manager, John McVay, will be in charge of the entire Dodger pitching staff. Perry will be sorely missed.

The collapse of the Dodger hopes in the World Series will be a great disappointment to the fans, especially those who invested heavily in the World Series.

The Los Angeles Dodgers are apparently well on their way to the World Series. They have won 9 of their last 10 games, and they have a good chance of winning the World Series.

For the first game, the Yankees are slight choices at 6-5. A perfect day is promised for the opening game, with short forecasts and temperatures in the low 90's. The first two games will be in Yankee Stadium, and the third in Los Angeles with a return trip to Los Angeles for the last two.

The Spartan coach, however, was pleased with the spread. Sophomore made seven or the nine spots available, with the starters filled out by freshmen.

Dick Sharkey, the punt returner from Delton, Michigan, was the punter as he handled the punt on the return, a touch down, and punt.

Punter Ken Judkins of the Houston Oilers, who has more experience in both punting and field goal kicking, was bottled out each position.

Dean’s Office Is Now Streamlined

Editor’s Note: This is the first of a two-part series on the new committees created by the reorganization of the Dean of Students Office.

RHY JACOBY
State News Staff Writer

In keeping with Michigan State University’s commitment to reorganization of the Dean of Students Office, a number of changes have been made which should produce significant functional improvements in the organization. The reorganization, which is being carried out under the direction of John F. Hekhuis, is intended to make the central office more efficient and capable of better serving the needs of students.

The reorganization of the Dean of Students office is part of the University’s effort to improve the services provided to students. The reorganization of the Dean of Students office is aimed at making the central office more efficient and capable of better serving the needs of students.

Several committees have been created to help carry out the reorganization. The committees are:

- Student Organizations Bureau of Development
- Student Affairs Committee
- Student Leadership Committee
- Student Organizations Bureau of Information
- Student Organizations Bureau of Programming

These committees will be responsible for carrying out the reorganization of the Dean of Students office. The committees will be made up of students and staff members who will work together to implement the reorganization.

The Student Organizations Bureau of Development will be responsible for developing and implementing new programs and activities for students. The bureau will also be responsible for providing financial support for student organizations.

The Student Affairs Committee will be responsible for coordinating the efforts of the various student organizations on campus. The committee will also be responsible for developing policies and procedures for student organizations.

The Student Leadership Committee will be responsible for recruiting and training student leaders. The committee will also be responsible for providing training opportunities for student leaders.

The Student Organizations Bureau of Information will be responsible for providing information to students about the various student organizations on campus. The bureau will also be responsible for maintaining a central database of information about student organizations.

The Student Organizations Bureau of Programming will be responsible for planning and implementing programs and activities for students. The bureau will also be responsible for coordinating the efforts of student organizations.

These committees will work together to implement the reorganization of the Dean of Students office. The committees will be responsible for making the necessary changes to the Dean of Students office in order to make it more efficient and capable of better serving the needs of students.
