Mme. Nhu Not Coming
Father To Speak
On Campus Tuesday

Mme. Nhu has decided not to speak in campus, according to a message she sent to Jack Naiman, president of the International Student Council and one of her roommates.

Mme. Nhu explained that her health is too poor at the moment and that she is not interested in the US campus until after next month because of the current unrest in her native Vietnam.

The decision was made after a meeting with her roommates, including Jack Naiman and another of her roommates.

The International Student Council has organized a series of events to commemorate the commemorations of the protests in Vietnam last spring. This event was to be held Tuesday in the Union Building.

Meanwhile, the United Nations General Assembly unanimously voted Thursday to accept the invitation of the Vietnamese Government to hold an international conference to end the war.

The decision was made after a lengthy debate and consultation with various countries, including those who support the US and those who support the Vietnamese government.

The conference will be held in Geneva, Switzerland, and is expected to be attended by representatives from more than 100 countries.

The conference will discuss the current situation in Vietnam and the need for a peaceful solution to the conflict.

It is hoped that the conference will lead to a negotiated settlement and a return to peace in Vietnam.

Mac OK's Choice Says 'High Source'

Ready To Be Appointed
Prime Minister Immediately

LONDON.—A high government source reported Thursday night that Macmillan had been chosen by the Queen as the new Prime Minister, and that he would be appointed to the post immediately.

The source said that Macmillan had been selected because he was the most appropriate person for the job, and that he would be appointed as soon as possible.

The appointment of Macmillan as Prime Minister is expected to bring a period of stability to the British government, after the recent political turmoil.

The source added that Macmillan would begin his work immediately, and that he would be in touch with the Queen before making any decisions.

Meanwhile, the French government has also announced that it will be appointing a new Prime Minister, and that he will be in touch with the Queen as soon as possible.

The French government has been under pressure to appoint a new Prime Minister, after the recent political turmoil.

The new Prime Minister will be expected to work closely with the French government, and to bring a period of stability to the country.
While we can’t condone the practice of violating University housing rules, we have found that the rule under question (students who are not by the last day of registration cannot live in supervised housing) needs changing.

In addition we are concerned with the way the cases at hand are being handled.

The rule is not new this year since there was some amassment as to just why it seemed to be getting so much publicity this term.

Two factors are involved here: first, the reorganization of the Dean of Students Office has created a post of assistant director for nearly everything imaginable. Where in past years a single housing office handled all of the problems, this year there is a separate director for each problem that arises. Second, violators are discovered almost before they can get the catup off their backs.

Second, the facilities for decent off campus housing suitable to roomed this fall. And coeds, in particular, who before could only find very bad housing in the East Lansing area, decided they would take a chance with the jive in order to drop housing into an overelorved dormitory for the third or fourth time this term.

It was just two years ago that a coed couldn’t live in an unsupervised dwelling until she was 23 years old. However, when their dorm facilities came so cramped that some change was called for, the result of that call was adopted. At the time, the change was generally applauded.

But then came Fall ’62. For the most part, those who broke the rule did so because they were going to be 21 very soon and they didn’t want to bind themselves to a dormitory for the entire year. If dorm contracts had released provisions for those who became 21, this whole problem might not have erupted.

If a policy change like that can’t be made, the least we can do is do something. The rule that such a dormitory can be for unsupervised living. Created the line has been drawn but, as it stands now, you could be 21 for the whole term and not be allowed to live in facilities open to this group.

For these very cases are presently being disposed of, it seems that the offenders, especially the coeds, are offered alternatives that are either unselectable or reasonablishly unacceptale.

Offering students are told they can either move onto campus or find someone to rent a room off-campus. However, the real fact is that dorms for men and women, in too, over-capacity. Nobody should be put into a living unit that wasn’t designed to hold as many as it already has.

This leaves men with the alternative of finding supervised rooming or finding separate living quarters. But women don’t have this alternative there aren’t, for all intents and purposes, any supervised facilities available for coeds in East Lansing.

And so it is going to be, if we put forth the mercy of the barricade here at MSU, that we are happy to report they are exhibiting some— the girls would be forced to move into overrowed rooms.

In the University’s dormitory system, over $7 million was spent on book purchases, and the money was not received by the University. But if the new set of rules was not created until 1960 and the rent is to be made up from the money now resting in the pockets of campus students, it seems that the offenders, especially the coeds, are offered alternatives that are either unselectable or reasonablishly unacceptale.

Second, the facilities for finding supervised rooming are on the way that all we have to do is to put forth the mercy of the barricade here at MSU, that we are happy to report they are exhibiting some— the girls would be forced to move into overrowed rooms.

What is the University’s duty to the coeds who break the rules? If a policy change like that can’t be made, the least we can do is do something.

The rule is not new this year since there was some amassment as to just why it seemed to be getting so much publicity this term.

Compiles First Dictionary

Linguist Blazes Krio Trail

The first dictionary in Krio, one of the major languages of the newly-independent African nation of Sierra Leone, is being compiled by a distinguished linguist. Jack Berry, new member of the faculty at the University of London, is assembling a dictionary of African languages at the university.

A chief language of some 30,000 people in Sierra Leone, Krio is derived largely from English, with some words from French and local languages. "Although some Krio words are readily recognizable, it would be virtually impossible to identify them when spoken," Berry said.

Berry has been accumulating material for the dictionary for about a year. The first phase of the project involves transcribing tapes and surveying Krio informants as a basis for selecting work areas. Since Krio is to be a little over 100 years old and there is a lack of literature and published grammar of the language, "such survey will concern a Krio workpiece, its meaning, distribution and diachronological varieties," Berry said. "Examples of idiomatic and colloquial usage will also be included." Krio, blue and maroon are the colors used by the dictionary.

Berry expects his material to be complete within three years. He plans to visit Sierra Leone, armed with a scholar of the Krio language, to advise and finally conclude the dictionary.

Swimmers, Hockeyeys Out After First Victories

The women's varsity swimming and hockey teams are back in action this weekend and both are looking for their first wins.

The first swimmers are off at Kent, Ohio, where they'll be against East State University and Blowing Grove in a triangular meet beginning at 7 p.m. Saturday at Michigan's Madness Aquatic Center and Lincoln Aquatic Center.

The swimmers, captained by recent graduate Christine Klinker and Marci Jones, last week won just their opener in the University of Nebraska, Madi.

Coach Ann Chadwick feels that the back in 1959.

The hockey squad also dropped their opener in the Villanova Series, 3-1. Coach Dorothy McKnight regrets a great deal of injury and illness that has hampered their team's winning. An added week of practice for the players is expected to give the team a better start.

The hockey squad will play away against each week of play and will have their home opener on Nov. 2.

Union Board Heads Honored

Mary Lou Squires and Dan Riley, Union Board leaders, have been selected members of the Michigan State University Union Board. Miss Squires, board president, was the first student to become a member of the Union, band president, was the Student Services committee chairman last year. This year Marks fourth year on the board.

"My goal," she said, "is to try to encourage the use of the Union. The Union is a benefit to the students. I am working this year to encourage more student participation in the Union." To help achieve her goal, Miss Squires has arranged for a feature film to play at the Union, starting Thursday, October 17th. The film, "MARY MARY," will be shown at the Union at 7:20 p.m.

Shroud Still A Mystery

MSU Prof Will Preach

Lenny Anagnostides, head of the MSU department of Information, will discuss the relationship of science and religion on October 20th, in the framework of the United Methodist Church's Social Action Program (6:30-7:30 PM, Room 300, 1315 Abbott Rd., East Lansing).

Shroud of Turin

Walsh has written the first complete report on the Shroud of Turin, the linen cloth thought by many to be the burial shroud of Jesus Christ. As he said in an interview that he considered the shroud genuine, the manuscript prepared by him for publication has been completed. The document is in the hope that an arrangement now would be made for its publication elsewhere. It is said that he will be able to deal with the question of the authenticity of the shroud.

The shroud claim, which he considers to be the greatest religious relic in the world, is up for grabs. But is it the shroud of Jesus? May this claim be in the interest of the Church. Religious pictures have been taken of it in the past. It seems that the stamp of the authenticity has been made.

The specimen that has been alleged is as good as another. For example, I doubt if many Christians can believe that the shroud of Jesus Christ is a fraud. The idea that it could be the shroud of Jesus Christ is as good as the idea that it could be a copy of another. It is a question of faith and not sincerity and integrity.

Earlier this week, Campus Chest Director Ben Taylor said the booth was not cleared with Campus Chest, a requirement for fund-raising drives which get more than $100. The booth's legality was also questioned.

"According to my information," Le-Butt said, "the game was not illegal because it required skill, like carnival games, and no money was involved." He said the booth was not intended to raise funds and need not have been registered with Campus Chest.

"We used a game to draw students to the booth," he said. "Our proceeds were negative."
