'Tanks Brought On Viet Nam Crisis'

By SUE McCABE
State News Staff Writer

Government tanks, not Communist bombs, caused the deaths of six Buddhist women and children in the May 3 incident which precipitated the current crisis in Viet Nam, according to Than Van Chuong, former South Vietnamese ambassador to the United States.

Chuong refused the government explanation of the massacre in a campus address yesterday, Tuesday and gave no indication of budging in his determination to delay the opening of Parliament.

One of four college, Educational, Cultural, and Religious Events is a forum for students and faculty to exchange views.

Prime Minister Chuong was different from his political opponent Tuesday and gave no indication of backing down in his determination to delay the opening of Parliament.

The Prime Minister waned the students' two-week delay in the opening of Parliament was a constant threat and not a constant element.

Have Determined To Delay Opening Of Parliament

London, --Prime Minister Lord home convened with his political opponent Tuesday and gave no indication of backing down in his determination to delay the opening of Parliament.

The Prime Minister waned the presentation of the bill could be delayed because parliament was not in session and therefore, he could not call it to order.

Although Armstrong has made a challenge and asked the House to reconsider the bill, he has not reached that point.

Blood In, Blood Out

If there is one important fact missing in our university's education, the lack of which leaves us less prepared to take our places in society, that fact must be the absence of the inner-directedness in our outlook. On the whole we seldom if ever go beyond our own pre-occupations and attempt to learn about the world around us by participating in it.

Instead we study society in much the same way as visitors study the animals in a zoo. We read philosophy textbooks for its influence on life outside the university's walls. In effect, while we may joke about the ivory tower until the phrase has become a stale cliche, we never realize that our failure to go beyond it turns us into a bunch of self-satisfied spectators to other human beings. They should give us a sense of duty, a sense of responsibility for the welfare of their fellow men.

Ambassadors Need Courage

To be asked to serve as the President's representative is more than an honor. It is an obligation, by which we are expected to be servants among the students, to participate in the giving of blood, to become the second in our development—and, more importantly, to become second in our thinking. The ability to think critically is an essential part of knowing; if we can never think critically, we have nothing to give to the world.

In the university's walls, we discover the animals in a zoo. We learn about the world around us in a classroom. If we are never forced to think critically, we never realize that we are only one link in the chain of thought. The key to the whole system is the ability to think critically, to be a servant among the students.

On Behalf Of The Student Body....

To the Editor:

After having read the "Parent's Guide" to the current issue of the Student, I find myself wondering how the writer of the letter in the city of Lansing can be so naive as to think that the student body will believe anything that she says.

M. H.

Dear M. H.,

I am writing to you because I have heard that you are suffering from a serious case of hypochondria. I hope that you will recover soon.

Yours sincerely,

The Coed System

Coed System

It is now easier to move to Snyder dormitory because it is not necessary to get permission from the Dean of Students to change your residence. Students may move to Snyder from Brody, Snyder or Phillips. Even members of the faculty are moving to Snyder.

One girl who is doing so is Ann Kirk, whose father is a professor of geography. "I've wanted to move to Snyder for two years," she said. "I think it is a lot better."

Another student who is moving to Snyder is Jerry Sanger, Des Plaines, Ill., another found he likes living in Snyder much better than in Brody. "I like the coed system. It is a lot better."

Director To Attend Counseling Meet

The coed system has been a very nice change for students. "It takes about four minutes to walk from Brody to Snyder, junior, found he likes living in Snyder much better than in Brody. "I like the coed system. It is a lot better."

Because of the nature of residence halls, it would be impossible to avoid coed living in a coed dorm. Mrs. Ruth Sand, supervising director, said: "It's the girls who have to do the heavy work."

The Director of Counseling, Norman V. Johnson, said that through the coed system, counseling and living rooms make due allowance for the needs of men and women students.

Very few problems have arisen with the new coed situation and rules have undergone little reorganization, the dean said. "Now I don't have to leave for classes unless I want to," he said. "The girls are right in the building."

Mary Ann Andrews, Leslie Borthwick, Marina Kostow, and Phillips-Snyder dormitory. And students in the coed dormitories have been treated equally with those in the men's dormitory.

Many late night problems, such as noise and the rules which are to be followed, are being handled by the coed system. "When a problem arises, it is handled by the coed system."

The only drawback is that you have to dress decently at all times," she added.

Lewis To Work On Defense
In Hopes of Stopping Myers

The Spartans will be facing a strong Northwestern defense, which has allowed only 40 points per game so far this season. The Wildcats have compiled 5-2-1 in their last four games, and are considered to be one of the best defenses in college football.

The steady improvement of Ken Myers has made him a threat to the Spartans. Between them, Myers and Dewey Lincoln have compiled a respectable 9-5-2 in their last four games.

Lewis is hoping that the Spartans can remain focused and not let down against a stronger opponent. The game will be held at 1:30 p.m. and is expected to be an intense matchup.

The Spartan defense will be up against a tough challenge, but they are confident in their ability to hold their own.

Every day this week in October is D-Day for the Spartans, with the B-29 dropping for defense.

Besides the usual problem of putting in time for the Northwestern defense, the Spartans will have to concentrate on getting their offense going against a tough defense.

The Spartans hope to capitalize on their strengths and put together a solid performance against the Wildcats.
During the Fall term, students may use the classrooms listed below as study rooms at the hours designated.
