Soviets Arrest Yale Prof On Espionage Charge

MIAMI—As Prof. Frederick Charles Barghoorn, a Yale University Slavic specialist who has been touring the Soviet Union, was arrested Tuesday, he said he was told by authorities that he had been arrested on charges of espionage by state security men.

The arrest, the first such case involving an American, occurred during an investigation in order to clarify the status of one of the Russian diplomats accredited to the United States who claimed diplomatic immunity. There were no reports of a similar Soviet personnel when the Soviet Union, the New York Times, a Washington, D.C., American citizen engaged in espionage.

Barghoorn is a professor in Russian at Yale University and a member of the council on international relations at the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

The foreign ministry denied the U.S. government of the possibility that the professor had been arrested. The last of the professor's activities were last week. The arrest of the professor was announced by the Soviet government. A Moscow police official said the professor had been arrested because he was allegedly carrying a camera.

There was speculation that the professor was being held as a hostage. The professor was arrested in Russia last May on a visit to Russia. The professor was arrested in Russia. The Russian government has denied the professor's claims of espionage.

Scientist Stands Alone

Not long ago the sober Süddeutsche Zeitung newspaper of Munich pointed out that Americans have asked Bonn time and again: "What are you going to do to accomplish the reunification of Germany?" And it went on to say that all the good ideas were offered, the Americans had no alternative but to accept the will of the German people.

German Perilous Logic

The author of the editorial suggested that it is unreasonable for the Western powers to raise the issue of German reunification at a time when developments in the world are tending to reinforce German unity. The U.S. should be the chief supporter of German unity because this is the only way to solve the dilemma of the American front-line, the author said. Letters To The Editor

New Facilities Boost International Work

Many related programs are operating out of the International Programs Building. However, the most notable recent achievement will be the new under construction west of Jenison Hall.

The building, set for completion May 15, will house the various international programs offices, additonal areas, meeting rooms, and laboratories.

Dean G. L. Taggart, director of international programs, said that most foreign students and programs now have offices in various colleges on campus, they will have offices in the International Programs Building.

"The new building will give us a chance to have all these offices in one location. That will enable international programs to work together more effectively.

Essentially an office and research facility, the International Programs Building will also have an activity area in the front entrance to display the university's investment in international education. Furthermore, Michigan State's International Connections program will be moved into this building.

Taggart said that a small room for foreign students will also be included in the new building. For instance, some foreign students activities will remain in other buildings on campus. "We don't want to lose all our activities," he said. "We want to be more organized in this area and that is why this building will be such an important part of our efforts.

Keeping some offices in the building will let us have a more organized space for international programs. We will also be able to expand our program space as needed.

Tags The Univerisity of Michigan, which has a large number of foreign students, will also benefit from this building.

The new building will be a welcome addition to the campus and will improve the overall international program experience for students and faculty.

Booth plans to open the new building for classes in the fall.

"We will be able to expand our program space as needed. This is especially important with the growing number of foreign students on campus.

Another interesting aspect of the building is the MU study showed that students usually graduate at the fourth year and this number is expected to increase in the future years. However, the MU study also showed that the graduation rates by subtracting the number of students who graduated in 1957 and in 1962 showed that 50 per cent of the students graduated in the first two years, 20 per cent of the students graduated in the second two years and 10 per cent of the students graduated in the third year. Then they bring that they have very new figure documents when they may actually be very high.

The idea that students are staying longer in the same college and universities because of the MU study is not true. Our study indicates that the students who graduate in the same college and universities are not getting a more advanced education.

Editors Say Kennedy To Win Re-Election

November 13, 1963

The editors were in Miami Beach for the annual Associated Press Managing Editors meeting. The editors named Nixon as the probable Republican candidate. Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona received 12 votes. New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller received the remaining votes.

Other areas to be discussed at the meeting include cooperation of student personnel services and admissions. The meeting is the last of a series which has included program in education and student personnel services.

There may be a joint session or a separate gathering with the National Student Congress.

The editors emphasized the need for a strong and unified line of action and that the resolution on the subject of student personnel services and admissions be presented to the University of Michigan with sufficient flexibility to accommodate any reasonable adjustment.

Nelson A. Rockefeller will return to New York and Nixon will return to California.

Nigeria Project

Two To Aid Study On Students' Role

November 13, 1963

Ehie R. Nnamaker, assistant professor of education, and Walter J. Johnson, professor of education, will leave Saturday to commence the Nigeria Project. The University of Nigeria has needed students for the first time this year. It now has 1,650 students and is expected to grow this year.

Four junior members from two African countries are of importance in the Student Council. We are trying to devise a program to our respective students. The Nigeria Project is one of the two vital areas to be discussed at the meeting.

The editors emphasized that the National Student Congress should not be restricted in its activities.
