Nation, World Pay Tribute To JFK

K Cables Personal Grief, Red China Alone Silent

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — A stream of world leaders, fronted by Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Great Britain, today paid tribute to President John F. Kennedy. However, Red China was the only Asian country of any importance to acknowledge the President's death.

China's acknowledgment was made by the official Chinese news agency, Tass, which reported that Premier Chou En-lai had sent a message to Premier Chou En-lai of the People's Republic of China to convey the Chinese government's deep sympathy and condolences to the American people and their President.

The message was conveyed by Premier Chou to the Chinese embassy in Washington, which was closed for the day.

Premier Chou said in his message: "The Chinese people deeply feel the tragic loss of President Kennedy, whose death has caused great sorrow and indignation.

The world will note well Ralph Waldo Emerson and remember long the 36th President of the United States.

He led his country in the tradition of an American. He left no stone unturned in his efforts to parbuck into this country of ours a vitality that so long had been missing.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy came to office on a bitter cold day in January, 1961, with the message that it was time to begin anew, and begin he did.

Nothing was beyond the scope of his attention. Nothing was too small to be carefully considered.

In his inaugural address he spoke of a torch that had been passed to a new generation of Americans. Then he proceeded to show us what he meant by producing a greater effort in every aspect of our lives.

No President ever assumed more leadership roles. And it is for this reason that we mourn him in a personal way.

We all found some wisdom with him. If we didn't always agree with his demands for physical fitness, or his encouragement of the arts, or with his way of maintaining a lively family.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy had a tremendous respect for history. If he did come under some trouble over the Cuban affair as some others, it was because he felt the loading of history upon him, and only solace in his perspective—the historical perspective.

Time and again in his inaugural Address he spoke of replacing suspicion with cooperation. He said: "Let us never negotiate out of fear, but let us never fear to negotiate," again. "Let both sides explore what problems unite us instead of belaboring those problems we have.

His concern for the political future of Cuba was reinforced by his concern for the entire border area—"...here the two nations are shut between two walls," in his words. And he recognized that military preparedness, only, will not win the war once and for all. And that one should never cast away a bushel for the sake of a single orange apple.

It is for us the living to dedicate to the task we have inherited and the tragic death has left undone. It remains for us to forge a grand and global alliance against the common enemies—tyranny, poverty, disease and war itself.

It remains for us to eradicate our own ignorance and blind prejudice, to turn our selfishness to selflessness, to carry on the task which he has "thus far so nobly advanced."

His own words, which will find place in our living history, are fitting to end:

"In the long history of the world, only a few generations have been granted the good fortune to reorder their society in freedom's hour of maximum danger. I do not shrink from this responsibility. I welcome it..." Just in that historic effort!

John F. Kennedy has placed his epitaph by the sword of his predecessor. President Lyndon B. Johnson has performed a public duty just as well as Kennedy's. Yet, he will be judged by the country. Let the test be fair. Let him judge it, and let him judge it well.

...it wept down from Calvary's heights upon A ther, forgive them, for they know not what they do.''

"...and now, dear Lord, I con­ ance in our social behavior. Wherever the bubbling First Lady is or anywhere the booming First Lady is...will you join in that celebration?...And remember long..."

Cancellations On Campus

Due to the assassination of President John F. Kennedy on Friday, Nov. 22, many campus events and activities have been either canceled or rescheduled.

The killing Center State Rooms will not be available for the evening presentation of "Hannah," a play that was originally scheduled for this evening. The College Theatre will hold an open forum at 8 p.m. in the Academic Auditorium to discuss the impact of the assassination on the campus community.

The Michigan Farm Bureau, Farm Service Agency, and the American Farm Bureau Federation have all postponed their annual meetings scheduled for the week, including the presidential dinner at 8 p.m. in the Auditorium. The evening performances at the "Legends" will be canceled.

The performance of "Legends" by the New York City Opera Company, originally scheduled for Monday night, has been postponed until further notice.

Friday, November 29, marks the end of the fall term and the beginning of the winter break for many students. The campus will remain open for the weekend, but all offices and facilities will be closed on Monday, November 30, for the holiday weekend.

The university will return to normal operations on Tuesday, December 1, 1963.

The regents of the university have also announed that a special meeting of the board will be held on Monday, December 2, 1963, to discuss the implications of the assassination for the university community.

In addition to the cancellations, the university will provide additional resources and support for students and faculty who are experiencing distress or trauma related to the event. The counseling center and other support services will be available to all students and employees.

The university community is invited to come together to reflect on the significance of this event and to support one another in this time of mourning and healing.

Political Pot Boiling

What Are GOP Chances Now?

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The odds are long that President Lyndon Baines Johnson will be the dominant presidential nominee next year, according to some political observers.

They say personal factors, such as the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, have made the field much more uncertain.

One of the challenges for the Democratic Party is to find a candidate who can unite the party and appeal to the broadest possible base.

The most likely candidates are former Vice President Hubert Humphrey and Sen. Edward Kennedy, who has been mentioned as a possible contender.

Humphrey, a moderate Democrat, has a record of working for civil rights and economic justice, and is seen as a uniter within the party.

Kennedy, on the other hand, is a liberal who has been a strong critic of the Vietnam War and other aspects of the Johnson administration.

The final decision will depend on a number of factors, including the outcome of the primaries and caucuses, and the political climate at the time of the convention.

For the Democrats, the challenge is to find a candidate who can appeal to both the liberal and moderate wings of the party, and who can win the general election in the fall.

For the Republicans, the challenge is to find a candidate who can unite the party and appeal to the broadest possible base.

The most likely candidates are former Vice President Richard Nixon and Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Nixon, a conservative Republican, has a strong record of achievement in the government and is seen as a uniter within the party.

Goldwater, on the other hand, is a liberal Republican who has been a strong critic of the Vietnam War and other aspects of the Johnson administration.

Billikens Knock Booters From NCAA Tourney

St. Louis' Two Goals Stop State
By DICK SCHWARTZ

During Monday afternoon's NCAA Tournament play in the second round at the University of St. Louis, Michigan State's football team was stopped cold by a combination of the better St. Louis defense and the ordinary which led a small group of Michigan State fans to their feet in enthusiasm.

After an early goal by Michigan State, St. Louis had no further trouble in its 2-0 victory. They now face a newly formed team, the U.S. Military A.C.A., in the quarterfinals.

The Spartans made a good showing in the first, but never threatened St. Louis, which dominated the game. The Spartans did not score, but they did manage to hold their chances of advancing to the semi-finals by holding the booters to two goals.

The Spartans' strategy was to bring the ball back to the line of scrimmage and then to try to score. However, St. Louis' defense was too strong and the Spartans were forced to make long passes in order to get the ball to quarterback Carl Gentile.

The Spartans were penalized five times, and they also fumbled the ball twice. St. Louis took advantage of these mistakes and scored both of its goals. The Spartans' defense was also weak, and they allowed St. Louis to score on a long pass and a short pass.

The Spartans' mistakes and the St. Louis' defense allowed the booters to score both goals. The Spartans' chances of advancing were slim, but they were not giving up hope. St. Louis had scored two goals and had the momentum, but the Spartans were not ready to give up just yet.

The Spartans' defense was not up to par, and they were penalties for holding and illegal procedure. The booters' teamwork was evident in their ability to score both goals. The Spartans' mistakes and the St. Louis' defense allowed the booters to score both goals.

Turkey or Pigskin Dilemma
Faces 20,000 State Students

Students today are faced with making the difficult decision between a turkey dinner and a championship football game. The issue which began last week when President Kennedy was assassinated, is still unresolved in many homes. It is believed that "if other teams had stayed home, we would have had a turkey dinner," according to Richard Wilhelm, a junior at MSU.

Several hundred football fans made their way to the stadium Thursday afternoon. A report said that 20,000 fans were expected to watch the Michigan-Ohio State game. However, no estimated attendance was available. "We also took this consideration into the students' schools," said Munn.

Several high schools in the Lansing area have had their Thanksgiving Day games canceled because of President Kennedy's death. "We notified the schools' students," said Munn.

Student ticket managers have been notified that all ticket policies will apply to Tuesday's scheduled games.

Pigskin Dilemma

There is a conflict of interest between the Turkey and the Pigskin. Michigan State University's Athletic Director Clarence Wolfram has been notified of the situation and has told the students to make their own decision. "We are not responsible for the decision," said Wolfram.

After much thought, the students decided to watch the football game. "We want to support our team," said one student.

Injured Spartans Get Better

Several injured Spartan football players have been making good progress in the Hospital. "The team is much better today," said Coach Duffy Daugherty.

Several players have been discharged from the hospital and are expected to return to practice in the near future. "We are going to have a great team this year," said Daugherty.

The Michigan-Ohio State game will be played at Spartan Stadium Saturday. The game is expected to be a close one, with both teams playing at their best.

Intramural News

Football Schedule
In the absence of public safety officers, the Intramural football schedule will be played on Tuesday. All games will be played at 7:30 p.m. at the University Park Recreation Center.

The Intramural basketball league will be held on Tuesday evenings. All games will be played at the University Park Recreation Center.

Tickets for the Michigan-Ohio State game will be available at the Box Office today. The game is expected to be a sellout.

Assassination Stuns Campus Halts Activity

Campus activity came to a grinding halt Friday at the news of President Kennedy's death. A tragedy for students, faculty and others on campus, the death of the President of the United States -- the leader of the free world, the beacon of hope for all mankind -- must be true, but can't be.

Rene Silve, Columbus, Ohio, and Tanya Moreatitis, Chicago, Illinois, both ex-MSU students, planned to go to Red Square to pray and to believe in a living that could end in Jesus Christ.
