Panama Negotiations Deadlocked

Panama City, D.C. — The international meeting in Washington to review the 1903 treaty that gave the United States sovereignty over the Panama Canal was suspended yesterday because of a dispute over whether the United States was ready to remove three U.S. soldiers from the Canal Zone.

A Cabinet-level meeting Monday concluded that three U.S. soldiers must be removed from the Canal Zone, but the United States maintained that it was not ready to remove the soldiers. The United States also requested that the three soldiers be removed immediately, but the United States said it was not ready to remove them.

The meeting was adjourned until Monday, March 28, at 10 a.m. E.S.T. The United States said it would not attend the meeting if the United States was not ready to remove the soldiers.

The United States also requested that the United States be allowed to review the 1903 treaty before the United States would be ready to remove the soldiers. The United States said it was not ready to remove the soldiers.

Tickets-For-Two Gets OK

By SUE JACOBY

The Annapolis Ticket Office announced today that tickets for the first round of the new controversial basketball ticket system will be available to faculty and staff.

The new system, which was announced last week, will allow faculty and staff to obtain two tickets for each game by presenting their faculty or staff ID cards.

The ticket office will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

As of today, faculty and staff who wish to obtain tickets must present their faculty or staff ID cards and the ticket office will issue them two tickets per card.

Traffic Signals Tackle Congestion On Campus

A major push toward easing Michigan State's traffic problem will be realized this weekend with the opening of two new traffic signals at the intersection of East Michigan Avenue and Michigan State Road.

At the intersection, two signals will be installed, one for each direction of traffic, and the signals will be programmed to allow traffic to flow smoothly through the intersection.

The signals will operate on a red-yellow-green cycle, with the red signal indicating that no traffic can move through the intersection.

The yellow signal indicates that vehicles should prepare to stop at the intersection, while the green signal indicates that vehicles can proceed through the intersection.

Traffic congestion on East Michigan Avenue and Michigan State Road has been a problem for years, and the new signals are expected to help alleviate the problem.

City Questions Rent Increase

Assessor Suggests Tax Burden Low

East Lansing's tax assessor has estimated that the city's property tax rate would rise by 5 percent if the city imposes a new rent control ordinance.

Dean Varg Cites Responsibility for Liberal Arts Need Remains

To the Editor:

As a graduating senior and captain of my college's literary magazine, I was pleased to see recent comments in The State News regarding the liberal arts. However, I was concerned that such comments would be interpreted as an attack on the liberal arts, rather than a defense of them. I believe it is important to consider the role of the liberal arts in higher education and to promote their value.

Elizabeth Conrad, Former Dean, Dies

Miss Elizabeth Conrad, dean of women students from 1929 to 1943, died Monday in Washington, D.C. Miss Conrad came to MSU in 1929 from the University of Wisconsin in Madison, where she had taught for two years. Miss Conrad was president of the Associated Women Students of the University of Wisconsin and of the American Association of University Women worked for the accreditation of MSU as a women's college.

"The mood of the night will carry on from the previous evening's meeting, according to Elliott's letter. "The public is invited."

As the 1963 season winds down, the swimming team practices in a relaxed atmosphere. It's no old formula, just a new one.

Editor's Note: Each week one of the State News' sports reporters will be writing for this column. Today's is the first.

The MSU swim team, and the key to their success, is the chemistry of the swimmers.

Coach Charles McConnell's philosophy is that the atmosphere around the team is critical for success, and the team needs a relaxed setting.

The same goes for individuals, and the MSU swim team is built on a strong foundation of mutual respect and understanding.

Basketball

There's an economics professor here who refers to students in his class as "kiddies," a somewhat degrading label for any college student. But many basketball fans, presumably students, who attended Saturday's game with Indiana felt precisely like "kiddies.

In the closely-fought contest, there was much excitement and tension, but this was no excuse for the way these "kiddies" conducted themselves.

Roaring and throwing trash on the gymnasium floor, inexcusable in itself, was coupled with the rude counting of driblets before an opposing player shot a free throw. The situation became intolerable, or, in the words of Assistant Sports Information Director Nick Vitas, it was " intolerable.

This problem has been a concern of the presidents of Big Ten schools, who are urging players, coaches, and fans to devote a little extra effort toward increased sportsmanship.

Basketball Coach Edith Anderson said, "We've never had anything but good reports on our student fans. This type of thing has to stop.

The Big Ten is not bush league, nor is Michigan State, but the episode last Saturday left much doubt as to the maturity and "civility" of some of this University's sports fans.

New Trial For Curtis Publishing

Unless Butts Takes $400,000

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A U.S. District Judge has asked the jury to reconsider punitive damages awarded to Curtis Publishing by a jury in Morgan's charge to the 12-man jury and that bias was introduced to influence the jury.

Lawyers for the publishers are now claimed that the punitive damages awarded were set by the jury "without consideration" and unconstitutional because such awards are prohibited by U.S. Court law.

Counseling Patients Now See Selves

Thoughts and emotions felt in an interview can now be recalled through a new technique that promises to enhance the effectiveness of counseling. The technique, called the Student-Teacher Education Project, was developed by Michigan State University.

The technique involves the use of television cameras to record the interview, allowing both the patient and the counselor to view the recording. The project uses two television cameras at a time to record the conversation, with one camera focused on the counselor and the other on the patient. The interviews are then replayed on a television screen, allowing the participants to see their own reactions and hear the other person's perspective.

The idea behind the technique is to encourage clients to express their thoughts and emotions more freely. By allowing them to see their own reactions, they can better understand their own behavior and thought processes.

The project has been well-received by both clients and counselors, with many reporting a greater sense of connection and empathy during the interviews. The technique is now being used by counselors at a number of clinics and hospitals across the country.

The use of this technique has been met with enthusiasm from both clients and counselors. Many have reported a greater sense of connection and empathy during the interviews. The technique is now being used by counselors at a number of clinics and hospitals across the country.

Taiwan Ties Land Use To Needs

By CHARLES C. WELLS
State News Staff Writer

Chinese and Taiwanese were the last stops President John A. Hannah made on his multi-country trip to MSU's overseas projects.

MSU has supplied two advisors each to the University at Taichung and at Chung Hsing University in Taiwan. They have been closely connected with development of agricultural and natural resources in Taiwan in recent years.

"The main purpose of the Taiwan program is to help relate needs," said Maurice F. Perkins, cost of extension programs at National University.

"We have our problems against Japan," said President John A. Hannah. He is proud of the University of Okinawa as a first-rate educational institution. The university's efforts there. MSU started MSU's first venture into overseas educational cooperation was in 1951 with next to nothing and a fraction of the world's population," Hannah said.

"One of the failings of American education is that it is not realizing its potential to give its students a comprehension of the culture of others," Perkins added. "Successful education is that it is not neglecting to give its students a cultural understanding, he indicated."

"We understand the Chinese culture," Perkins said. "Our success in all of Southeast Asia is dependent on how well we understand the Chinese culture."´

The problems in that area are that the people is as important as the soil. New ideas in drainage, development of new crops, and soil conservation have been among those necessary to be shared with MSU's work there, Perkins said.

"The MSU mission has been so successful that agricultural extension among the TVA Ties are not just over armed might, but over communication and cultural understanding," Perkins said.

MSU OVERSEAS PROJECT-An administrator at the University of the Ryukyus stands before a hilltop campus on Okinawa. The school has developed into a first-rate educational institution with the aid of the MSU Overseas Projects.

"The 600 million Chinese on the mainland represents a large fraction of the world's population," Perkins said. "One of the failings of American education is that it is not realizing its potential to give its students a comprehension of the culture of others," Perkins added. "The people at Taichung have been quite successful, Hannah said. The Department of the Army, government of Okinawa provided $621,000. The rest came from the U.S. government, $300,000, and through private sources.

This week marks the completion of remodeling and a new addition that adheres to the original English Tudor styling. A total of over 13,000 square feet will provide the modern day ideal of one study room for each two students. There are now two separate sleeping dormitories, all new and greatly expanded social and recreational rooms and new, centrally located, housemothers living quarters. Indeed an outstanding facility devoted to fraternal association and the growth of college men.

30 years ago this January distinguished alumni from chapters in the various States and Canada gathered in East Lansing and installed the Michigan State Chapter which as a matter of record has established itself through accomplishment as one of the outstanding links in the "Bond" of this respected international fraternal organization. The Delta Chi Building Corporation comprised of dedicated alumni has added much to the financial stability and social progress of the local chapter.
