After reading with interest how the State News staff can use the library card system for basketball tickets, I would like to state that this is exactly what we are doing at the University of Michigan. With the advent of the new library card system we are now able to automate the process of ticket distribution. We are able to keep track of all tickets issued and to prevent the circulation of invalid tickets.

The Michigan State University library card system has been a great success, and I believe it will continue to be so.

Internship Plan Assists Teachers

Editor's Note: This is the third in a four-part series on education and preparation of future teachers.

By KAREN GILLILAND

The internship program at Michigan State is one of the most practical and effective teaching programs in the country today. The program is designed to provide new teachers with more practical experience.

Ten years ago MSU's student teaching program consisted of two parts: half-day sessions. The students lived on campus and spent mornings in area schools. The rest of the day was spent attending in-service classes. The internship program fits the normal four-year load of an elementary education major. It begins with third-year summer sessions.

U-M and Minnesota are leading the way in the WCAC
for a different reason - both teams are nearly tied for the league lead. Each school has a 5-1 record and is tied for first place in the league standings.
