Cupid Takes Aim Today

As Sexes Declare Truce

Today marks the regularization of the annual 35 hour truce of the battle between the sexes.

The tradition of Valentine's Day is believed to go back 3,500 years. In 1300 B.C., the Pharaoh of Egypt, in order to end the fighting between the sexes, issued a decree that sex was to be forbidden for the entire 35 hour truce. The decree was enforced by a committee of 100 men who monitored the battles between the sexes. The committee was made up of the Pharaoh's most trusted advisors, and they were given strict instructions to ensure that the truce was observed.

The Pharaoh's decree was widely obeyed, and the fighting between the sexes was greatly reduced. The Pharaoh's committee was so effective that it was eventually replaced by a permanent council, which continues to enforce the truce today. The council is composed of 100 members, each of whom is responsible for ensuring that the truce is observed in their respective areas.

The tradition of Valentine's Day is still observed today, and it is believed that sex is forbidden for the entire 35 hour truce in order to ensure that the battle between the sexes is not reignited.

Housing Change Is Reasonable

All University student Government has come up with a proposal that has merits, although we disagree with its reasons and tactics.

There is no reason that students under 21 who have resided in University housing for three terms and have their parents' permission should be excluded from living in off-campus unvistered quarters.

The three terms in University housing would give the student the opportunity to help make the transition from high school to college. If the student has not made a decision to stay in the University residence halls then he is not equipped to handle college work. The University needs to loosen the parental protection it holds over the students. Is it fair to the students who supposedly are the cream-of-the-crop, or to the University which has to play watchdog to 27,000 students?

Such a move would enable the student to mature and give him the responsibility for himself, as the University has asked him to do in the past. It would reduce the University a terrific burden.

Freely the greatest pressure for University parenalism comes from the parents. The home would realize that their children are their responsibiltiy and not the University's.

Rights Bill Weak

To the Editor:

The civil rights bill now on its way to the White House is not really what the country needs. It is going to be just another empty gesture and just weak enough to acceptably delay Negro actions.

It is a safe bet for present and future generations. Mere, through November, and then "liberal" newspapers will publish articles like the one you publish and will seem to be pressing their own press freedom and expression and economic discrimination.

This is all far more plausible and rational than theoretics, but at some point—"sacrifices," if you will—must be made and the majority must bear the economic and social costs of individual men.

The press was never looking through what Negroes staged demonstrations which they could not be called murders for their cause and rights.

It was in some degree an unanswerable "sour" answer to the Negro's demonstrations and economic pressures.

State News News Sources

To the Editor:

In the Feb. 3 State News paper's section, "Letters," two articles appeared. One was entitled "A Organic" and the other "One MSU."

Both articles are based on the remarks of "an official." The editor of the State News, in the Feb. 3, a front page article with a picture of two students, one student talking and the other student listening, said this was not "The true story of MSU." In the Feb. 3, a front page article in the Feb. 3 State News, the editor of the State News said: "The true story of MSU is that . . . "

Hungarian Finds Religion Declining

A former Hungarian priest who now lives in the United States has said that the number of Hungarian people who are religious has declined.

"In Hungary, the number of religious people was high," he said. "But now, in the United States, the number of religious people is much lower."

Famed Violinist Overcomes Acoustics

Ricci Performance Proves Virtuosity

By LEON WHEELER

News Review Writer

Ruggiero Ricci played before an appreciative audience Thursday afternoon in the Union Ballroom. Many of the violins in the audience were owned by the world's greatest violinists.

Despite the less-than-ideal acoustics of the Union Ballroom, Ricci turned in a memorable performance.

In the Allegro movement of the Paganini Caprices (five, No. 20), Ricci overflowed into capriciousness. In the Adagio movement, his playing was expressive and luminous.

The Ricci violin is 100 years old and was made in 1743 by German violin maker Antonio Stradivarius. Ricci received it in 1924 from his father, a professional violinist.

Ricci's interpretation of the studied and challenging Mendelssohn Caprices (seven) was precise and flowing. The third movement was more boisterous.

Fencers Make Final Home Show

More like a special mission than a dual meet, Michigan State's men's fencing team will meet Wisconsin Saturday, the final home appearance at 1:30 Schmitter in Homestead Field House. The Spartans will take on Wisconsin and Iowa in their final meet, their first appearance at Schmitter since February 8, 1964. Wisconsin is always a tough opponent, but the Spartans have never been too successful at delivering a successful home game of fencing.

More like a special mission everybody will be attending. It will be the Spartans' seventh encounter with the Badgers this season. The Spartans have won one meet and lost three, with one tie. The Badgers are one of the hottest lines in college hockey. They beat Duluth, 8-0, last week which was highlighted by a 5-0 shutout and won the Big Ten championship. The meet came after MSU's win over Navy Pier last week which was highlighted by a 5-0 performance by NCAA champion Dale Cooper in both games. The Spartans have one shutout victory which is an advantage from losing 4-0 to Minnesota. Wisconsin, Michigan, and Minnesota have such dominating centers against the Spartans. This time, the Spartans hope to deliver a better performance.

LAST WEEK BOYNE. THIS WEEK 7 - State Ski Club members Charles Henley (L) and Lowell Dobson were at Boyne last weekend. This weekend they probably will try skiing another slope.

The next entry will be to see how many states they can ski. Many country skiers are using this time to sharpen their skills on cross-country courses. Some states have other trails available.
