For 4-Year Medical School

By DYARS BALCERS

State News Staff Writer

President John A. Hannah, head of the Michigan legislature, Tuesday that Michigan State did not intend to provide a four-year medical program. The president made the statement at the University of Michigan's State News office, as the third floor of State News was being opened as a four-year medical program. The president said that the budget for the 1955-1956 school year would be $80,000. He added that the plans for the medical program would be submitted to the university board of trustees for approval.

The College of Engineering at Michigan State University is in the process of training students for industrial positions. The college offered a two-year program in engineering technology, which is designed to meet the needs of industry. The program is approved by the American Society for Engineering Education and is accredited by the Accrediting Commission of Engineering and Technology.

Emmons Asks MHA Review Of Dress Vote

For the fourth time this term, Michigan State's student body has voted on a dress code issue, resulting in a dress code that is in place for the current academic year. Emmons, who has been the head of the dress code committee for the past three years, has asked the Michigan House of Representatives to review the dress code issue. He said that the current dress code is not in compliance with the city of East Lansing's ordinances, and that the university is violating its own policy.

Over Library Problems

President John A. Hannah, head of the Michigan legislature, Tuesday that the library problems are not a matter of the university's policy, and that they are not in conflict with the university's policies. He said that the university is committed to providing a quality education for all students, and that the library is an important part of that commitment.
Wallace Articles Misunderstood

The State News article and editorial published Wednesday about Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama was grossly misunderstood and misinterpreted by many readers.

The State News agrees that Governor Wallace’s philosophies and behavior are unjust and very much in error. It was not our intention to express any sympathy for his philosophies or the actions. We intended to show a side of his personality that is not often seen, and nothing more.

Negotiators Deserve Praise

The campus looks a little friendlier now to the many students who a few days ago thought they were going to have to stand around during the threatened bus strike.

Given the choice of riding the buses or walking, students will look at the far side of campus, wherever that may be, in a more friendly manner to their own dorm, with a slightly happier look. They may walk, but the security of knowing the buses and monitors are there will remain a comfort.

The threatened bus strike was averted Tuesday after a successful meeting and a conscientious gathering of Lansing city and bus company officials.

The city has agreed to finance the bus companies’ gasoline and oil in order to relieve the financial strain they were going to foot their way through Spring Quarter.

Wait ‘Til Next Year

Seniors and graduate students, and a distinct group of undergraduates, will be plugging through the MSU 13 Building registration lines again for Spring Quarter.

The registrar’s office announced that early registration, in addition to a successful registration session last term, will not be instituted as a permanent policy this term. It may appear that the University is going back on a promise it made to make early registration a regular practice following winter term’s trial run.

This is not the case.

The University never promised anything of the sort to any student body, merely assured them that a simple and practical registration process is planned now for 1965.

As suggested, the University would suspend any one of four registration officials.

Rhino Party

Such satire, it charged, was justified for the “rhinoceros is a type of animal that symbolizes the University.”

During the past spring and fall semesters, the University can get to work cleaning the red tape out of its schedule book, so early registration can be an easier and more simple and efficient process, can become a permanent fact.

Use of the library is strong for students enrolled in many courses, yet the library is open only for the additional hours that students to use its facilities.

Medical Program

A Doctor’s Decision Has Wide Impact

The decision of the Michigan State University Board of Trustees Tuesday to grant a medical degree to one of its students, Frank Smith, will have a definite impact on the medical program at MSU.

The Michigan State University Board of Trustees, on a recommendation of the medical school, voted Tuesday to grant Dr. Harold J. Spaeth, political science professor here from the University of Detroit, said that the decision indicates the position of the Board of Trustees toward accepting applications for medical degrees.

The Board will be discussing the procedure it plans to follow in order to make sure that those granted medical degrees will be properly qualified.

The decision will promote civil rights programs.

There will be a definite impact on such an liberalization in registration laws and perhaps to other states for which the Board of Trustees has always been considering the idea.

In a recent interview with the Michigan State News, Dr. Spaeth said that the decision indicates the position of the Board of Trustees toward accepting applications for medical degrees.

Matmen Plagued By Injuries

Earlier this season, wrestling coach Percy Penninger felt he had the most rugged group, the figures could have had a good time with it.

They are injuries, not injuries, and they are pecuniary, not pecuniary.

But since the beginning of the season, half have gone out of hand-wringing, including headmat Bill Novak, who had only one hand to wring.

The lower, the worst hand I have ever had to wring.

First, Fred Angelos, Jr., headmat, underwent minuscule knee surgery. Unconsciously, a ligament had twisted around his knee and was torn from the knee edge. Hopefully, he will be back next year.

Next, Allen Egan, another headmat, underwent an operation for the removal of a stomach cancer and was lost for the season. Weight was a manlight for headmat, Tom Miller, 1961 headmat, underwent an operation on his stomach.

The exploratory little penguins, seeking for the first time in their lives a home other than the sub-Antarctic waters where they were born, set sail from the frigid reaches where they were nurtured.

The trip is expected to be long and grueling, as the penguins are not particularly well adapted to the warm waters of the tropics. They will have to rely on their innate swimming skills and determination to make it across the vast ocean.

The expedition is led by Dr. Jane Goodall, a renowned primatologist who has dedicated her life to the study and conservation of chimpanzees. Dr. Goodall has been instrumental in raising awareness about the plight of these intelligent and highly social animals.

The penguins' journey is an important step in the ongoing effort to protect and preserve marine life, especially in the face of climate change and habitat loss. Their success will depend on the support and efforts of all of us.

The expedition is expected to last several months, during which time Dr. Goodall and her team will be monitoring the penguins' progress and collecting valuable data on their behavior and ecology.

Stay tuned for updates on the penguins' adventure as they make their way across the open sea.
