It seems MSU's is the only campus in the country with problems of student opinions clashing as they did here last week. The question concern¬ing the State News articles on Gov. Wallace of Alabama.

Several aspects of the same problem have shown up recently in editorials from colleges throughout the nation. The State News' conviction that publication of controversial student views under the name of a registered student is reflected in an editorial in the University of Wisconsin Daily Cardinal.

On a page facing the editorial page, the Daily Cardinal department had published an ad from the John Birch Society. On one of the columns on editorial, "Our readers will not have much trouble un¬derstanding that we do not endorse these principles, but we are proud to present this view free from re¬flection or superimposition." This is in the nature of our system that conflicting, even offensive, ideas continue to be heard.

There is a good deal of dis¬cussion of the question of picketing when unpopular opinions are voiced.

The Daily Orange of Syracuse University came out in favor of students picketing for improve¬ments in student life after all attempts by the student legislature to change the situation had failed.

The newspaper said, "If votes are red, violets blue, I'm for pickets, how about you?"

U-M's Sour Song

Life and love is petty with a single resolution; the University of Michigan was groaning Monday, 'Down On The Farm'" the first time around.

But U-M's medical school dean, William X. Hubbard Jr., has a need for grooving Monday when he told the legislature that the value of MSU's two-year medical school is questionable.

He said that the medical schools at U-M and Wayne State University will not accept up to 50 MSU two-year graduates with their present facilities.

In the second verse, Hubbard expressed a terminal two-year program has no support in terms of national medical school accounting policy.

For a final hue, U-M President Horatio Hackett is that MSU is playing a four-year medical school.

Hubbard's first song note—an ominous pitch for U-M's and Wayne's programs—"is not in harmony with either the state's needs for medical doctors or plans for expansion of U-M's and Wayne's medical programs for teaching.

Moreover, he said, "It seems to be the only alternative to the constant run¬around given the student body who presented the recommendation for food service revenue increase.

A somewhat opposing view showed up in the University of Minnesota Daily's editorial.

The newspaper agreed with the university administration in re¬jecting the picketing of the Minnesota Daily as well as University officials who attempted to quell unrest with the opinions of the picketers.

This mildly differing view of the Minnesota Daily is about the most radical public and that students should be encouraged to voice their opinions in whatever way they see fit.

The only limitation most students and representatives see for this activity is willing to set is that all action be based upon maturity and con¬sideration of others, with safety, a primary factor in any dispute.

The State News staff, it seems, will be seeking any alteration in which colleges in our society are entirely without freedom when they practice freedom of speech. We rest our case.

Picketing seems to be the only alternative to the constant run¬around given the student body who presented the recommendation for food service revenue increase.

Letters To The Editor

Individual Counts More Than Group

To the Editor:

Jackie Kelen's article on Gov. George Wallace explained the whole problem of integration at the University of Alabama. We have an opportunity now to work with Mississippi in a fashion which is sure to be of great benefit.

It is people like this who, in the face of the world and race, are not only leading the way, but are unwavering in their methods.

To the Editor:

For those interested in learning what happens when small groups engage in extremist activity, please turn to the next page. Venus is expected to visit South Vietnam to examine the proposals. Since the coup of Jan. 30, the military and civil service have had to bear burdens of purges. No matter how many additional forces are ordered, the people of the world will continue to ask for freedom and the right to pursue their own happiness.

On Majors

Campus Major Night today.

A major, or an area of study, is a broad subject that students choose to study in depth. This allows students to develop a specialized knowledge base in their chosen field. Majors can range from traditional disciplines like science and business to more specialized fields like computer science and environmental studies.

Committee Studies

The Committee on Studies is responsible for overseeing the academic programs offered by the university. They meet regularly to discuss and recommend changes to existing programs, as well as to develop new programs that meet the needs of students.

Case Action Offers Travel, Maid Service

The Case Action Committee has set up a travel agency and maid service on campus. This service is available to any student who needs assistance with travel or household tasks.

Panel Will Discuss Challenge Of Revolt

The panel will discuss the Challenge of Revolt in the United States. This is a topic of great importance in the current political climate, and the panel will provide insights and perspectives on how to address this challenge.

Campus Gets Heavenly Sight

The heavens will be visible on campus when the Abrams Planetarium, left, is dedicated at 2 p.m. today.

Taking part in the ceremony will be Leslie W. Scott, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Development Fund; President John A. Hannah; and Talbert A. Abrams, chairman of the board of directors of Abrams Aerial Survey Corporation.

Victor H. Hogg, curator, is shown making a minor adjustment on the projector (2). On display is the Spitz school model of one of the first inexpensive commercial planetariums, designed in 1949 (3).

A black-light gallery featuring fluorescent "spacescapes" showing artists' conceptions of the moon's surface and the earth as seen from the moon lines the outer wall of the planetarium room (4).

A model of a proposed unmanned lunar-roving vehicle, which was loaned to the Planetarium by Bendix Systems Division of Bendix, Inc., is displayed (5).

During today's ceremony, two plaques will be unveiled. One honors Dr. and Mrs. Abrams, who contributed $250,000 to the $530,000 structure. The second cites all other contributors.

The public will be able to tour the new facility beginning next month. Opening date and visiting hours will be announced.

We Get Letters
By JEROME CAPLAN

NATIONAL RESIDENCE HALL ALLIANCE

We get a lot of letters, and we (almost) always read them. But there is nothing quite like the two that followed below....

We work hard to make sure that each and every student has the opportunity to contribute to our lives. Whether you are a student at Michigan State University or one of the many local high school students who attend our events, we want you to feel like you have a voice. That's why we have created this forum where you can voice your opinions and share your thoughts.

In the beginning, when I was first starting my journey as an educator, I was inspired by the stories of my students. They were all so different, yet they all had one thing in common: they wanted to make a difference in the world. That's why I decided to start this column, and it quickly became one of the most popular parts of my newsletter. But now, I want to hear from you. What are your thoughts on the current events happening in the world today? What do you think about the state of education in America? Do you have any stories you'd like to share?

We welcome letters from anyone who wants to share their thoughts and ideas with us. Whether you're a student, teacher, or just someone who cares about the future of education, we'd love to hear from you.

And don't forget to check out our website for even more resources and ideas to help you make a difference in the world.

We look forward to hearing from you soon!
