Apartheid Firm S. African Stand

Editor's Note. This is the third in a series of articles on the actions of parapathism and apartheid. The previous articles appeared on March 26. The series is sponsored by the Michigan State University and the Michigan Federation of Conservative Students.

HARRI J. DEBILJ

The Union of South Africa has passed new anti-black laws which are intended to enforce a system of apartheid and segregation. These laws have been condemned by the United Nations and many other international bodies as a violation of human rights.

The new laws

- Forced labor: Blacks are required to work without pay for whites.
- Forced relocation: Blacks are moved from their homes to designated areas without compensation.
- Ban on mixed marriages: Marriages between whites and blacks are prohibited.
- Segregation in public places: Separate facilities are required for whites and blacks.

The implications of the new laws

- Economic exploitation: Blacks are forced to work for wages which are lower than those paid to whites.
- Social isolation: Blacks are deprived of access to education, healthcare, and other essential services.
- Political discrimination: Blacks are denied voting rights and other political freedoms.

Conclusion

The new laws violate the fundamental principles of human rights and equality. The Michigan State University supports the international efforts to oppose apartheid and promote justice and peace.

Apartheid Being Enforced

Apartheid is a system of racial segregation and discrimination that was practiced in South Africa from the late 19th century until 1994. The system was enforced by the South African National Party government and was characterized by the separation of races into distinct social, economic, and political groups.

The Michigan State University

The University of Michigan is committed to the principles of justice and equality. We condemn the implementation of apartheid and segregation in South Africa and support the struggle for human rights and freedom.

Red Cedar Report

By Jim DeForest

With the news that there has been a political and medical advance in the war against apartheid, many hope for a better future.

This week, the apartheid regime has announced new measures to enforce segregation and discrimination.

The regime's actions

- Segregation policies: New laws have been introduced to enforce the separation of races in public places.
- Repression of protests: The police have been ordered to use force to suppress demonstrations against apartheid.

The implications of these actions

- Increased repression: The regime is using force to quell opposition to apartheid.
- Human rights violations: The laws violate the fundamental rights of all South Africans.

Conclusion

The Michigan State University supports the international efforts to oppose apartheid and promote human rights. We call on all people to join the struggle for freedom and justice.

Bike Increase Seen As Traffic Concern

The increase in bike usage on campus has raised concerns about traffic safety. The number of bikes on campus has doubled over the past year, and this has led to increased congestion and safety concerns.

PATH OF DANGER—Sometimes considered a nuisance, sometimes a traffic hazard, and always in danger of being struck by a moving vehicle, bicycle riders on campus may get special travel lanes in the coming year.
