Nigeria Economy Gets MSU Boost

Editor's Note: This is the last of a series on the University of Nigeria. It is by P. H. Henderson, associate professor of economics, who is now completing a post-doc research fellowship at the University of Michigan. He was in Nigeria in March in the capacity of research assistant to the Fogelman Group, which is attempting to reflect the activities of all MSU officials to the University of Nigeria.

Reflecting on just the emphasis Nigeria must place upon economic development, and the problems associated with it, the time seemed appropriate to end with a description of the Fogelman Group, which is attempting to reflect the activities of all MSU officials to the University of Nigeria.

General Studies Program

Headed by Glen L. Johnson, the department of agricultural economics, this program is open to students wishing to work closely with research and teaching directed toward making some specific contributions or improvements in agricultural economics. Research is being carried out in other related production economics, policy, production, and institutional, the use of control instruments, the role of export, export control, and the determination of the economic relationships that exist between agricultural production and the existing demand for agricultural commodities. The work is being done in conjunction with other research activities in the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the Agricultural Economics at Michigan State University, and with the Fogelman Group.

Job P. Henderickson, the second successor to the general program, is working on a program that is more specialized than those at the University. His work is being done in conjunction with the University of Michigan and the Fogelman Group.

At present there are over 150 students and workers in the Fogelman Group, including 30 students in the University of Nigeria. A summer school program is being planned for the University of Nigeria and the Fogelman Group.

Studying Student Affairs

A very large percentage of the students who enter the University of Nigeria come from the United States. The Administration of the University of Nigeria is particularly interested in the students on campus and in the state of the state of the students. Those who enter with the GCE in humanities, for example, are not always well prepared for the work upon which the University of Nigeria is focused.

The Fogelman Group is an organization of several dozen students who work closely with the Fogelman Group in the University of Nigeria. The Fogelman Group is particularly interested in the students on campus and in the state of the state of the students.

Must Fill Vacancies Before Tennis Match

The Spartans are hoping that the combinations that will enable them to again win the seventh spot in the Conference are not too far off. Joe Matuszak, and Mike Matuszak have both been working on the team at a steady pace and are expected to be called into service when the number six spot will be filled.

The process of deciding who should fill the number six singles spot will remain intact before the upcoming match against Notre Dame. The decision is expected to be made at the end of tonight's match, and it is hoped that the team will be able to get the position filled before the start of the new season.

Leaders Meet

The news in sports on Friday, April 17, 1964, involves the annual tennis match against Notre Dame. The team will be faced with the task of defeating Notre Dame Friday at South Bend. However, the match will be a close one, and the outcome will depend on the performance of the number two doubles team.

It is expected that the doubles team will be able to hold down the posts. Warner Click stands 2-5 in the number two duo. Jamieson and Wolff remain strong in the number two spot.

Tough Pitchers To Test 'S'

The Spartans will be tested by two tough pitchers this week. They don't have the stars of the past, but they have the depth. Michigan State News, East Lansing, Michigan

In a twinbill against the University of Michigan, the Chippewas will face powerful batting against the University of Michigan. Coach Fran Dittrich from the Chippewas will be hoping to get to grow stronger during the season and boast perhaps one of the best high school teams in the state.

The Spartans will be testing their pitching against a clock for the number one spot. The number one spot will be held by the Chippewas, and the number two spot will be held by the Spartans. The match will be a close one, and the outcome will depend on the performance of the starting pitchers.
