ELECTIONS RULES-Look at sufficient anomaly of the State Central Elections Board and the results of voting machines, the board decided that no elections be held.

Two students were arrested during the bitter student-government elections.

Tom Thompson, Detroit sophomore and one of the ballot counters, said some fraudulent ballots had been cast.

The registrar's office checked voting machinery and found that we may have the opportun-
No Winner, AUSG Loser

The election commission's call for a new election for All-University Student Government parliament appears to be the only hopeful way in which the commission can make up for the farce perpetrated Thursday night.

Election rules and common ethics were neglected and easily may have been sabotaged in the atmosphere of the Thursday's election and during the first counting, before the violations began, and might have avoided the need for the belatedly-convened commissioners meeting Friday.

Many measures might have made the election a less bitter pill to swallow, but only one can make it.

That one measure is, of course, re-election, as the commission has decided.

But a date for the re-election should not be chosen carelessly, and requires that student congress representatives at the meeting Wednesday, which should call a special meeting specifically to settle the re-election.

AUSG elections have already been dragged out for too long. The whole thing should be immediately, strictly according to rules.

We do not in any way condemn either candidate for James Jones for president.

But, like the rest of the University, we are concerned with this issue very strictly if it is not cleared up quickly and efficiently.

The candidates could not do anything original to the candidates, or any more, but elect.

AUSG's official advisor was not involved in the means used in counting ballots. A word from him at the start might have arrested the mess which developed.

Union Head Backs United Nations

"Ams Race May End Man'—Reuther

By AUSTIN SNYDER

Either in the United States or on the armistice line now may be the time when man learns that he cannot win another war, Walter P. Reuther, United Auto Workers president, told a United Nations conference Saturday in the Logan Center.

"There exists the possibility of total destruction for the arms race and the scientists at the other end of the complex," he said.

Reuther said some_slices from the first arsenal spent by the world in the past century were as much as in the next 10 years.

"Many think the arms race must continue, as otherwise the peace will not be worth living," he said.

"We have to find a path that will end man's a

"If we took the initiative on this peace front, we would put in the hands of world leaders a tool that could be used to create peace," he said.

"The United States must be the first to step forward. We must not let Russia or China think we are not willing to talk," he said.

"The United States has the tools and the power to lead the way to peace," he said.

Reuther noted the United States has a strong military, but it also has the resources to create a peaceful world.

"We must lead the way to peace," he said.
The "Progress Corps" comes to the Fair

General Electric men and women have been giving tours at the New York World's Fair. From day to day, they have answered the wonderful questions of fairgoers.

How did they make their plant - a town - a television set - a refrigerator - a circuit board - a transistor - a high-speed computer - a television show, etc., etc.

But more than that, it's their chance to show, in no other place in the world, what General Electric is doing in the future. Two thousand people are helping millions of people throughout the world progress into a better life.

One thing that comes out in all the plants is the progress General Electric is making in the development of products they never dreamed possible.

The Progress Corps at the Fair

The Progress Corps is a group of General Electric men and women who have been stationed at the New York World's Fair to answer questions about the exhibits and to show the products of General Electric.

The Progress Corps is made up of employees from all over the world, and they are stationed in various areas of the fairgrounds. They are there to answer questions and to show the public what General Electric is doing in the field of science and technology.

The Progress Corps is a great opportunity for General Electric employees to share their knowledge and experience with the public. It is a chance for them to show what General Electric is doing and to answer any questions that the public might have.

The Progress Corps is divided into different teams, and each team is responsible for a specific area of the fairgrounds. They are there to answer questions about the exhibits and to show the public what General Electric is doing in the field of science and technology.

'Dashboard' Shows Errors

Driver Ed Students Learn From Film

The contents of the instructor's car are not the standard controls of the car, but a series of driving exercises designed to simulate almost every possible error.

The lesson on the screen are reactions to various driving situations that may be expected to occur in the driving simulator.

The films were shot on four occasions of the driver's education program in the school of Police Education 429, student teaching Robert Gustafson, an assistant professor of criminal justice, Michigan State University, East Lansing.

The films show the incorrect signs, signals, and maneuvers people make, and the errors they might make under different conditions.
