Shophlifting Increase Troubles Local Stores

The theft rate for local stores has increased over the past year due to a number of factors. Local store owners have reported a rise in shoplifting activities, which they attribute to a combination of factors including increased demand for goods and a decrease in law enforcement efforts. The rise in thefts has led to an increase in losses to local businesses, which are estimated to have amounted to over $1 million last year. Local detectives have been working to combat the rise in shoplifting, but the increase in thefts has continued. The local police department has also reported an increase in thefts, with a rise in the number of cases reported.

Harris Set To Alter Cabinet

University Student Government President Bob Harris reported that he is working on a plan to restructure the Cabinet. Harris said that he is looking to move the cabinet from a centralized to a decentralized structure, which he believes will be more effective in handling the large number of issues that the cabinet has to address. He also said that he is looking to increase the number of students involved in the cabinet, which he believes will help to ensure that the cabinet is more representative of the student body.

Student Gives Version Of Shiawassee Arrest

The student gave a version of the events leading up to his arrest. He said that he was watching something on the ground when he heard police sirens. He initially thought they were responding to a car accident, but when he saw the police officers he was surprised. He then heard one of the officers ordering him to drop something. He did so, and was arrested for possession of marijuana. He said that he had been using marijuana recreationally, but did not believe that he had done anything wrong.

Roy, auxiliary Bishop of the New York Archdiocese, appeared, the nurse said what she did and could be reached. The suggested that "The Nation's Pledge" be restored the words "In God We Trust." Immorality In Mass arrests of 117 college students, most of them from MU, at "grassroots" last weekend has prompted a Detroit legislator to call for a committee investigation of state alcohol laws violation at state-supported schools.

Rep. D. W. West wants a committee, with power to administra-stive, subpoenas witnesses and examine books and records, to an- swer some questions.

"I want to know what the student says are going on," he said. "I want to know who is be- hind this, I want to know who is sup- plying the liquor and to whom it is going.

It seems a little unnecessary to form a state governmental committee to examine questions or to handle liquor law violations.

In answer to West's questions, we ask in return, what anyone-student or even legislator--is trying to prove by drinking at a party? We doubt that there is a plot or conspiracy behind the grassroots' action. But the older brothers and sisters and parents, often get together and to have a good time. And that is what the students over 21 buy beer and liquor for their dates and friends who are minors so that they will have something to drink, too.

And the Shillawsee coun-

Intelligence and justices of the peace do not seem to need any help from Lansing in handling the violations. Civil laws already on the books have proved adequate to cover the situation, at a tune of over $3,000 in fines.

None of these perennial spring "grassroots" have occurred on state supported campuses. The obvious reason that campus police and administrations are not as efficient as the Shillawsee sheriff in mowing down these parties, West has indicated that the committee would go further that checking college drinking parties, into investigation of married living units and off-campus housing.

The proposed investigation and another statement by West, that "these recent shooting events and violations are much like the campus Monday provided an on-campus, hint at an "immorality hunt" on college campuses. "It is a strangely echo the hysteria of the "tied rants" of the McCarthy investigations 10 years ago.

A Lesson

With the upsurge of the past month's election interest clearly qui-tuated, it is appropriate to give credit for an efficient, ethical and soundly-balanced election to the Elections Commission and the University Data Processing Center.

The 'Right' Atmosphere

An atmosphere unusual for Michigan State has pervaded parts of the campus area this week. There are many active in civil rights movements perfor-ming here.

The conversation of folk singer Joan Baez's appearance in Lansing on Monday and comedian Dick Gorman's benefit performance on campuse Monday provided an opportunity for students to bear some strong arguments in favor of support of the civil rights struggle in this country.

The good forum for both shows indicates that students are at last appreciating in favor of dedicated entertainers working for civil rights on stage.

South African folk singer Miriam Makeba, who performed here Wednesday, is also a worker in rights movements. She devotes all her energies to the struggle for freedom of oppressed people in her native country.

Considering the relative silence of MSU students and faculty in the civil rights fights, it is perhaps slightly ironic that performers who subordinate their talents to moral fight should be so popular here.

Dr. Martin Luther King's gift gives Ms. Baez, Gregory and Miss Makeba is a sign that the civil right fights will not remain silent, the tense situation on campus and in East Lansing, perhaps.

Red Cedar Report

By Jim DeForest

We know of at least one student who would like to give sharged for "outrageous Conduct" in the dining hall. She told me she has a man with her who will abuse her.

I've never seen such shameful conduct! All other students were watching that helpless girl take a bath.

The students who were not actually committing the crime, but were being very vocal in their support of the victims, were stoned by using the hate laws. This is what the Woodwork is about--activism.

I hope this remains one of the few instances of this kind of thing at Michigan State. It should not happen again.

The war in Vietnam is just one example of how we can use our might to help those who are oppressed.

Arrest May Bar Jobs

Arrests for civil conduct during a student's college career are potential hindrances to a person's professional future, University officials warned Tuesday.

The officers of Saturday's "grassers" Etchans, which resulted in the arrest of 11 students, discussed the effects of arrests on their professional careers with the Michigan State News.

University officials warned that arrests can hinder a student's career. A student in applying for jobs or promotion can practically disqualify a person from advancement.

"If you are involved in a minor parking violation, the peace officer has to write a ticket, which is on record," said Professor Thomas of East Lansing. "Legal trouble is not a career enhancer."

"There are some types of employment where a security clearance is necessary. Whether they are for government or business, a student would have trouble getting hired," he said.

Police officers agreed that the police administration would be greatly affected by arrests on their records.

"If you are arrested, you lose your respect in the community," said Professor Thomas. "You can lose your job and reputation."

Lewis Quits Track Team

Sherman Lewis, football All-American and track team captain, has ended his athletic career at Michigan State.

Lewis, according to track coach Fred Dimock, decided to quit after he was unable to get in shape for the track season, "I've been bothered by injuries," Dimock said and "with only two weeks of practice left the decision was made to end it all now." Dimock has approved several other transfers and cross country standbys for running entering track.

During this track season, Lewis had twice won the Big Ten track jewel crown and once won the indoor 300-yard dash title. "I've registered a 78-63 triumph when the squads met at Columbus tomorrow's meet than they were able to do," Dimock said. "I'm sorry that I couldn't help Sherman this year but the decision was made to give it the best shot," Dimock said. "I hope to play him again in the future." Dimock said.
