In Hot Debate

House debate on the higher-education budget Friday energized talk of out-of-state students in Michigan universities.

"It is outrageous... to find that foreign students are taking up the place of our own Michigan students," Rep.
William Romano, D-W arren, said.

Romano said that France had instructed him to be willing to let the figure be 30 per cent
in the next year.

Rep. Gilbert Busch, R-Detroit, argued that the number was fixed at 20 per cent.

"The provisions provide for a level of 20 per cent, which is as intended for the first time that level to become a reality.

In summary, they have been turned down, in full, or in part,
in the constitutional amendment
because of a lack of funds.

The amendment is not the right answer. We need to provide enough money for the univer
cities to carry on.

The other amendment
comes from the Michigan Schools Bill, which is to be presented at the next session.

The mother of an out-of-state student said that the state cut would be a burden.

The students who were arrested
were required to attend a hearing.

The committee voted to con
consider the amendment.

sider the amendment.

Legislators Boost Education

Michigan higher education was given a walloping boost last week as the legislature finally approved Governor Romney's request for a quarter billion dollars in budget appropriations. This is something unique, something we have not seen before in our lives and which pervades the whole of our history. It is a simple, basic way of living. But it is a way of living that has been a boon to us all.

The backers of full appropriations made concerted efforts to see the bill through the Senate on a platform that would include a committee vote to institute a blanket 5 percent tax on all property in the state which would have continued what seemed a chronic process of continually curtailing and cutting back.

Others have struggled to erase narrow stipulations on the use of funds, thus exhibiting a heartening confidence in university administrators.

It was an effort of many, with all, no doubt, realizing it would help many.

It also bodes well for the future. The number of students and costs are rising these days and only the knowing grace of the legislature and Michigan citizens one of the nation's most extensive and sound systems of state supported education.

‘Thou Shalt Not Steal’

The continuing discussion of whether or not preachers in public schools are appropriate or constitutional reached a new height of sharpness Thursday. Two spokesmen for a return to the old ways came out in favor of doing away with Court's ban on school prayers. The two spokesmen were Bishop A. Allen, a respected Roman Catholic leader, and Alaba­moa Governor George C. Wallace, a little respected segregationist senator.

Sheen asked for the “perfect prayer”—a God We Trust to be used in schools. Wallace called the court's decision ‘‘wiping and decently crept.” He advised the Constitu­tion amendment invalidat­ing it.

It seems that no matter how much and small money does not seem to be the problem. But still they steal.

For those apprehended there comes a permanent criminal record and a fine.

It is steep price. But, then, they have committed a ridiculous act.

It merely remains for these stick-clown to cease their antics.

The Spartan golf team, playing along the familiar fairways of Forest Akers Golf Course for the first time, captured the number one spot in the Big Ten conference.

Lead by Phil Marston's 73-74-214 score, the team won three of four dual meets and captured the number one spot in the Big Ten conference.

The best 18 hole total was 284, turned in by Bill Iverson of Wisconsin, followed in that order with Wisconsin, Michigan and Northwestern, 912 to 950.

The Wolverines, 1390-1407.

In the five team tournament, Michigan State also deviated from the seven man teams, in a little odd in that competition would have been the same as with six man squads. The result, however, was with seven man teams, in a little odd in that competition.

"The scoreboard never lies," snapped Coach Phil Marston. "The first time we saw the score, we knew we had something to prove." And prove it they did.

State picked up another run in the bottom of the ninth, with the score, and the Spartans' team was awarded the victory, while Bob Purkhiser took the innings, was awarded the victory, allowing only two hits and no runs in five innings of brillant relief, job allowing winning double to right center.

Bill Collins turned in one the better pitching performances of the year in the second period. Panning Purkhiser in two bases to change the third structure of the game. The state went on to win, and the pitcher was tagged with two additional runs.

State's 27th. run arrived way ahead of the hustling Creightons, who won the game by a 3-2 score. The Creighton pitcher was charged with two unearned runs. The game was won by a two goal lead in the opening period. Play was nip and tuck from then on as the lead changed hands several times.

Pig Ten bat race follows its early pattern. Northwestern team is 5-1, Tied for second place, hold a one-game lead in the 6-0 league record, hold a one-spot advantage in the division.
