Oakland's Error

Oakland University's president, in a candid admission that the university newspaper is expected to be a key player in the rights of college journalism in this state.

The uproar caused by a survey of student proposals taken by editors of the Oakland Observer has resulted in the firing of the editor and the forced resignation of most of his staff. His only issue after being named editor was burned. It contained an editorial opposing censorship of the university newspaper, which was never printed.

The strong-arm tactics used by Oakland administrators to enforce a uniform conformity of university policies among the student body are in no way admirable.

Cease Fire At Capitol

The legislature came through. It would be nice to think that it was our editorial arguments that had convinced legislators to approve almost all of DeC, Romne

What probably did convince the good men in Lansing is the over expansion of educational facilities, one of the most urgent needs of our nation.

The arguments for education come from all sides, and evidently are strong enough to sway the mind and legislative will of nearly every state officer.

Only NBC's proposed Highway Traffic Safety Center grant of $250,000 didn't pass, but the salaries center probably will be restructured with funds from the report total of nearly $30.4 million appropriated for the University.

The budget will allow for the needed expansion of University facilities, and will provide a better working atmosphere between the University and the legislature.

It is not pleasant to have to fight for funds for a project universally acknowledged to be necessary and worthwhile. If the legislature's speed and determined passage of this budget is any indication, perhaps this feeling is beginning to take hold in the capitol.

This is the spread of a "four part" "Our Man Over­sea's" series written by Frank S. Ross Jr., who is Michigan's official observer in Paris.

"We have an inordinate fascination with academic revolution. It is more fascinating than the similar events in Communist China. This fascination stems from the period, both political and economic development.

The motives of these kinds of revolutions has been the rise of a mass media and the extremes which it has brought about in terms of values and means. After the Japanese have been pulled into the current, the political and economic events of the period seem to reflect the earlier philosophy.

The creation and development of the University has been a slow process, and continues to be a difficult one. As a result, there are few examples of the University in the world today.

The purpose of the series, however, is to chart the progress of the University in the world today. We have included a few examples of the University in the world today.

Letter to The Editor

"Wise Talk"

In the Editor’s cut (June 11), we have only a few points where we agree with the viewpoint expressed by Mr. President during the discussion of the university. We do not agree with the President's position on the university's policies and procedures, or the way in which the university is run. We have made our point clear in the past, and we do not feel that the university is running smoothly. We feel that the university should be streamlined and that the university is in need of a change.

$5,000 Tax Exemption Bill Reaches Governor’s Office

The student fight against personal property taxes in East Lansing reached the governor’s office Tuesday. A bill, which grants tax exemptions to owners of personal property in the city, was introduced by Mayor Gordon L. Thomas. The bill would provide a $5,000 exemption to the personal property taxes in off-campus residence areas. The bill was introduced to support the efforts of the Sigma Xi scientific honorary international club.

France Seeks Reforms In NATO Structure

PARIS - France is moving profoundly toward a revision of the NATO Charter to permit the French to have a greater role in the military command structure. Paris sources said French officials will insist on the right to withdraw alliances and set up their own alliances with other countries.

President Charles de Gaulle sent a message to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization foreign ministers' meeting in Hague, saying that reforms were needed. He said France would participate in the meeting but would not sign any agreements.

France has already made changes in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and full emphasis on independent, military command structure to put France on a par with the United States. France has also refused to sign any agreements that would allow the French to withdraw from the alliance.

French officials said the changes in the alliance were not a cover for the United States. They said the United States had not made any changes in the alliance to match the French changes.

De Gaulle's message was expected to be discussed at the NATO foreign ministers' meeting. De Gaulle called for changes in the alliance that would reflect his own thinking, but the informants said French officials would not make any suggestions at that time.

France is simply want the notion of NATO leadership to be changed. It is at the same time more important that countries be left to their own national strength. The situation in Eastern Europe has changed greatly and the Soviet power is not as great as it once was. Thus, suggested changes in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization are needed to reflect this change.
