The WINDS of ANGEL—Or even the wings of a plane will get you high enough to see this view of our rapidly growing campus. This type of view is one which must be familiar to members of the Michigan State University spirit. There is no problem that this sight is not visible to all. It is a daily reminder of the progress made in the past few years. The winds of an angel are carrying us to new heights and new horizons.

Doctor Answers Critics Of Lecture On Rhythm

Recalls Death Of Former Student

It is ironic that the title of the late student, "The Return," should be the subject of a lecture on rhythm. Mr. Jones, a former student of Mr. Caruso, passed away on November 1, 1964. The unfortunate event occurred during the worst day of his life, when he was supposedly giving a demonstration on rhythm, as he was known to be an expert on the subject. The students who were present that day have expressed their grief and sorrow at the loss of their esteemed teacher and colleague. The faculty and staff of the university have also extended their condolences to the family and friends of the deceased. Mr. Jones was a great teacher and a great friend to many, and his loss will be deeply felt by all who knew him.

It is with great sorrow that we announce the passing of Mr. Jones, our esteemed professor of music. He was a beloved member of our university community, and his contributions to the field of rhythm will be deeply missed. Our thoughts and prayers are with his family and loved ones during this difficult time.

It is also important to note that Mr. Jones was a dedicated and respected member of our community. He was known for his passion for teaching and his commitment to his students. He was a true mentor and a role model for many, and his legacy will continue to inspire us all.

DEATH IN NOVEMBER

Items for consideration:

1. The Department of Music has decided to honor Mr. Jones by holding a special memorial service in his honor. The service will be held on November 15, 1964, at 3:00 PM in the university auditorium. All members of the university community are invited to attend.

2. The university has also decided to establish a scholarship in Mr. Jones' name. The scholarship will be awarded annually to a deserving student who shows exceptional promise in the field of rhythm.

3. The university has also decided to hold a symposium on rhythm in Mr. Jones' honor. The symposium will feature guest speakers and discussions on the latest developments in the field.

It is a sad day for the university community, and we extend our deepest condolences to the family and friends of Mr. Jones. He will be greatly missed, and his legacy will continue to inspire us all.

Graduate in Rumania Has English Classes

One of the hundred of American students in Rumania is James M. F. Jackson. He has been busy teaching English at the faculty of law in Bucharest. Few students have learned English faster than Jackson. But the learning of English is only part of the story. He has been working on a project to help the Rumanian people learn English. Jackson has been working on this project for over a year. He is now teaching English in the law school. He has been teaching English for three years. Jackson believes that English is a great language and that it is the language of the future. He hopes that the Rumanian people will learn English and that they will use it in their daily lives.

Pros and cons must be weighed against the advantages and disadvantages of the NFL's supplemental draft. The draft is designed to provide teams with additional players from the college ranks, but it also places an added burden on the teams. The draft is not a replacement for the team's regular recruiting efforts, but it can be a valuable addition.
