BRILLIANT, Col. — President Clark Kerr had paused earlier this week to a four corners of a campus event in honor of enrollment of the Michigan University. The event was held in front of the University of California campus. The offer was eagerly accepted by the president and hundreds of students in attendance at the event. The president expressed his gratitude to the students for their participation and support.

On Tax Charge

Rep. West Arrested

DETROIT — Federal agents Monday arrested Rep. John F. Parker, a Detroit Democrat member of the Michigan House of Representatives, as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, as part of the House tax law investigations. The charges against him are tax evasion.

Previously, the arrest took place at 2:30 p.m., and the investigator was carrying out an investigation of a suspected fraud charge being tried in Detroit federal courts. The tax evasion charge involves Parker's tax returns for the years 1966 and 1967.

The investigation began last January, and when completed the charges will be referred to the House Ways and Means Committee for possible action.

Psychology Building Due For Completion

A $600,000 psychology research building is being planned by the University of Michigan, and will be an important addition to the university's facilities.

In accordance with the plans, the building will be constructed on the southeast corner of the university's campus, and will be completed by the fall of 1966.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Under growing pressure from his band of conservative Republican lawmakers, House Minority Leader Charles Halleck has announced he will resign his post as minority leader. The resignation, which takes effect immediately, is expected to end the Republican minority's nine-year reign in the House.

Mississippi's Opening Society

The closed society of Mississippi, which is rapidly becoming a cliché of American sociol, omy, may be opened by grad-persuasions to the murder of three civil rights workers in Philadelphia, Miss., last summer.

The FBI last week arrested 20 people, including Sheriff Lawrence Rainey and Deputy Sheriff C. L. Hunter of Neshoba County, where the murders took place for the murder of two black men and one white man. The arrests were made on charges of conspire-ting to interfere with federal rights and bringing accessories after the fact of a crime.

It is obvious from the list of those arrested that justice, even the double-standard of Missis-pippi justice as proclaimed by the state's defenders, was severely lacking in this instance. The law enforcement officers of Neshoba County not only weren't on the track of the right man, but James Chaney, Andrew Goodman and Michael Schwerner died in the years they were acting with the other murderers.

The account of the murders written by Negro author Louis Lowry appears in a specialized supplement on Mississippi in Sports Magazine, entitled "Mississippi Eye. ness." It is particularly revealing to note that everyone in Neshoba County, white and Negro have known the exact circumstances of the three murders for a few days after the occurrence.

Lowry claims that the random murder of some of the several hundred civil rights workers who resided in Mississippi in 1963 summer was planned months before the workers arrived. The three specific victims may not have been chosen or even known, but Lowry claims that residents of Neshoba County were aware in the 1960s of black violent murders. He had planned a burial funeral.

MSU, NCAA: Names In The News

The soccer team has begun in an admirable performance in the NCAA's championship.
At Providence, R.I., coming to the conference as a favorite, not only is Mississippi a particularly with a 1-0 score.

The MSU 1-0 score in the first round cements its place as a team ranked first in the nation.

This year's record is the best the team has ever had, and there is something of which every member can be proud.

An interesting comment on last weekend's tournament is that it marked the second time this fall that the names of Navy and Missis-ippi state have turned up in the news in connection with the NCAA.

New Dorms Have Faults

Akers For People, Not Mice

The new dorms, Forever Hall, recently designed for students, the study, the dorm, and the living space, MSU is surrounded by one of the most exciting spaces in the country. The dorms are under the guidance of Dr. Harold Jackson, the man behind the plan. Yet, does it mean that the new dorms are going to be all that is good for the new dorms? Are they well designed, or are the occupants well prepared to cope with the problems of dorm life?

The answer is no. The students, many of whom are new to the dorms, are eagerly awaiting their time to start theorm and look for new dorms. The dorms are likely to be a disappointment to the freshmen who have expected a more comfortable environment. The dorms have failed to meet the needs of the students, and there is a definite gap between the design and the reality of dorm life.

It seems apparent to me that the new dorms are designed for parking problems. Not the expected "sleeping" problems. To go with your bicycle while you are at class.

I received an article, or rather a picture, of the new dorms, panting to see new rules to announce that the dorms are more legendary place to the students.

It is quite fascinating to note that close to a hall, and realize that the new dorms have created a certain atmosphere which is not conducive to the learning environment.

I was so impressed by the teenage students in the west part of the dorms that I spoke with them about the problems they were facing.

We all live well, and we are ready to help each other wonder how we can best be in touch with you,

Carol Vincent

Akers Dorms Strain Eyes, Backs

In the Editor

It appears that the Akers Hall residents are suffering slightly in the right of light because of another dorm's recent renovation.

A dorm renovation is not the same, however, as the one done in the dorms, which is the only dorm on the campus.

The dorms are the only dorms that have been recently renovated, and the students are suffering from the loss of good lighting.

The problem might be relieved if the dorms were renovated. The students are looking forward to this two-step renovation, and are nn the process of renovating the dorms to improve lighting in the dorms. The dorms should do this renovation, not the students, who are working on the west part of the dorms. The dorms should be renovated, not the students.

I would like to point out that the dorms are not the only dorms that have been renovated in the past month. The dorms have been renovated in the past month.

I am writing this letter not to complain about the dorms, but to express my concern about the dorms.

Lack Of Fresh Air Causes Study Fatigue

Dormitory residents find that the day is somewhat unproductive and that they have little interest in study. The problem is not that the facilities are inferior, but that the large numbers of students make it impossible for anyone to work on a project. The situation is made worse by the fact that the dormitory is located on a main road, and the traffic noise is very loud. The students are encouraged to use the library for their study needs.

Nonfarm Bias Discussed

In the recent debate about the economy, nonfarm workers have been given less emphasis than their counterparts. This is because the nonfarm sector is more important in terms of employment and economic activity. However, this bias is not justified, as both sectors play a vital role in the economy. The difference in emphasis should be balanced to ensure a more accurate representation of the economy.
