Community College Vote-
'Yes' Need for Progress

Voters in an area approximately equivalent to Ingham County will go to the polls next Tuesday to decide the fate of the eight-year-old Lansing Community College (LCC).

The issue, in essence, is whether the college will be allowed to expand and meet the growing needs of the area for two-year programs or whether it will be kept to its current size, keeping the college's facilities the way they are at that very early age it will be inadequate.

The Lansing Community College, like similar institutions around the state, serves two main functions. First, it takes some of the base of the larger colleges and universities by providing two years of education for students who will either stop after two years or will transfer to universities.

Second, and perhaps more important, the community college provides programs of technical training and courses of terminal programs in specialized semiprofessional fields. In addition, Lansing Community College contributes to the area by providing services to those not attending college as well.

The presence of a large university as Michigan State College within a radius of miles from Lansing cannot be understated.

The issue at stake next Tuesday is whether to establish a community college district covering the same area as the existing Ingham Intermediate School District. With the purpose of expanding the college's physical facilities for student housing, as to whether to approve a tax levy of one mill ($1 per thousand dollars) of assessed valuation to help pay for the proposed building program.

The college's enrollment has increased from 222 in 1957 to more than 3,000 in recent years, so the college's facilities, the old Central High School building, are now obsolete. Every classroom in the building is in use continuously from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. six days a week, 12 months of the year.

The proposal is to build a new large building near the present one, in the area of the proposed campus, a new, larger, modern, and to continue using the old building.

The reorganized college would accept students from the entire Lansing area, not just from Lansing as at present.

A "no" vote next week will mean that the college will not be put on a permanent basis at its present enrollment, and estimates are that if facilities are not increased, part-time work programs could drop to as small as 7,000 by 150, possibly drawing from an extended area covering all of Ingham, Eaton and Clinton Counties.

There is a great and obvious need for a college in Lansing, as the excellent reputation the city has for education since its opening clearly demonstrates.

Voters in Ingham County and the several fringe areas outside the county included in the Ingham Intermediate School District should keep in mind the need to build the college which is the only public university in the Big Ten, as well as in the larger state universities.

The Big Ten universities, MSU and many others have realized, represent concentrations of research, teaching and research facilities which in themselves are resources of the area they serve, even aside from the vital educational function they perform.

Let's Do The 'Fist'

"Community College vote- 'Yes' Need for Progress" is the largest organizing committee. Every sitting member of the board has asked to be a member of the committee. William McMillan, said, "If this is going to be a community college vote, we want to do it right. We want it to be done by all of the people who need it, and we want it to be done by all of the people who have the responsibility to do it."

Two distinguished MSI professors of history will read papers before meetings of the American History Association in Washington, D.C., Dec. 27-29. Norman Rich, who specializes in European diplomatic history, and Stuart Bruchey, specialist in American economic history, will appear before the annual meetings of the society at the Sheraton Park and Shoreham Hotel.

Bruchey plans to discuss his paper throughout the country. He says the paper will deal with the German's motives in fostering an incident which led to the war between the French and the Prussians, in the face of his having called for a long policy of peace. However, he suggests in his paper that the bank may have hindered as well as aided the realization of Hamilton's objectives of promoting economic growth through revitalizing credit.

Bruchey began writing the paper in 1953, when a group of scholars, turned by the Jai York Institute to study the Wetterman collection, and outlined his own approach to a history of the First Bank.

Air Force Officers Enrolled On Campus

During the latter part of each month, a national department store carries an ad for a campaign which would see thousands of ROTC cadets in Air Force uniforms. It is not a widely publicized campaign but one of the many that Air Force officers and their families have supported for many years.

The Air Force Cadet Corps Program is as example of an educational effort aimed at recruiting young men and women to the Air Force. In recent years, the program has been successful in persuading many young people to consider military service.

In the past, the Air Force Cadet Corps Program has been supported by numerous educational institutions, including Michigan State University. Michigan State University offers a four-year program for ROTC cadets, and many students who participate in the program go on to become officers in the Air Force.

State Participates In Robins Awards

The program is designed to provide educational opportunities to students who are interested in pursuing military careers. It is sponsored by the Air Force and is open to all students who meet the eligibility requirements.

The Air Force Cadet Corps Program is an example of how the university can work to support military service and prepare students for leadership roles in the military.

California Sit-In

Rebel Students Claim Victory

Recently passed legislation in California provides the University of California with the authority to declare strikes illegal and to impose fines on students who engage in them. This legislation has been controversial, and there have been several protests against it.

The legislation was passed in response to a series of sit-ins and other forms of civil disobedience by students who are protesting the university's policies on student fees and other issues.

The new law has been criticized by some as an attempt to suppress free speech and academic freedom, while others have argued that it is necessary to maintain order on campus.

The legislation is expected to take effect in January, and it is unclear how it will be implemented.

Ski Club Following Swells
As Winter Activities Near

By PHILIP'S HELPER
State News Staff Writer

Winter is almost here, and the ski season in Michigan is heating up. With the recent snowfall and the promise of more to come, the ski resorts across the state are gearing up for a busy season.

The ski club at MSU has seen a significant increase in membership this year. With the introduction of new programs and activities, the club has become more popular among the student body.

One of the key factors contributing to the club's growth is the demand for skiing among MSU students. With the increase in popularity of winter sports, the ski club has seen a significant increase in membership.

The club offers a variety of programs and activities, including ski lessons for beginners, ski trips to nearby resorts, and social events such as parties and movie nights.

The ski club at MSU is a great place to meet new people and make lifelong friends. Whether you're a seasoned skier or a first-time skier, the club has something for everyone.

Dunham and attended St. Aloysius College, where he was graduated in 1879.

Dunham was the son of a farmer and lived on a small farm until he was 18, when he entered Abilene Christian College. He later attended the University of Chicago and received his Law degree from the University of Illinois in 1883.

Dunham was admitted to the bar in 1883 and practiced law in Abilene for 20 years. He then moved to New York City, where he continued to practice law until his death in 1943.

Dunham was a member of the Abilene Bar Association and the American Bar Association. He was also a member of the New York State Bar Association and the American Society of International Law.

In addition to his legal career, Dunham was a prolific writer and published numerous legal articles and books. He was a member of the American Bar Association's Committee on Legal Education and was a member of the American Bar Association's Section on International Law.

Dunham was a member of the Board of Directors of the Abilene Chamber of Commerce and served as its president in 1911. He was also a member of the Board of Trustees of Abilene Christian College and served as its president in 1913.

In 1881, Dunham married Mary E. Duke, and they had three children: Charles, Mary and John.

Dunham passed away on March 12, 1943, in his home in Abilene, Texas. He is buried in the Abilene Cemetery.

Little-Known Program Offers Unique Education

A small but significant program that offers unique educational opportunities is being conducted at the State University of New York at Buffalo. The program, known as the "Nursery," is a unique educational experience that combines a variety of academic disciplines with practical hands-on experience.

The Nursery's primary focus is on providing opportunities for students to gain real-world experience in a variety of fields, including agriculture, horticulture, and environmental science. Students enrolled in the program work alongside experienced professionals in these fields, gaining valuable insights and knowledge.

One of the key features of the Nursery is its commitment to sustainability. The program encourages students to think critically about the impact of their actions and to develop strategies for improving environmental sustainability.

In addition to its academic offerings, the Nursery also provides opportunities for students to engage in community service and outreach. Students have the chance to work with local organizations and businesses, helping to address real-world challenges and contribute to the betterment of their communities.

Overall, the Nursery offers a unique and valuable educational experience that prepares students for success in a variety of fields while also contributing to the betterment of their communities.
