Johnson Confident

Taylor To Stay In Viet Nam

WASHINGTON — President Johnson approved this con- fidential report to the Senate Intelligence Committee. The report was obtained by Sen. John F. Kennedy, D-Mass., and contained information that could affect the United States' foreign policy.

WRIGHTON — In a move that could have far-reaching implications, the Senate Intelligence Committee has requested the President's approval of a classified memo to the President, the memo said.

Johnson said the memo contained information about the United States' foreign policy.
One of the main points of President Hanham's "State of the University" address Monday was that the need for Michigan State is to adopt a more aggressive recruiting policy for faculty members and to find ways to encourage students here to remain and teach. Hanham emphasized the growing shortage of qualified college instructors, not just in MSU but all over the nation.

Michigan State, despite its growing stature and burgeoning enrollment, occupies a privileged position. Salaries, working conditions and research facilities, and other incentives to teaching in a particular university must be able to compete with other universities, according to the unambiguous and undeniable practices of "faculty cannibalism."

Hanham revised a recruiting center to the detriment of the University in finding talented new students, said that the University is really not expanded. This is not a new idea, one which must be worked out in the practical terms of the operation.

The proposed idea in Hanham's speech is for a means of identifying among undergraduate students more suited for teaching. If we are determined to encourage them to remain and teach, we may find a way to do it.

The Good Teach, the good teacher, is an important function of the school. The teacher must have the ability to get along with the students, to be known to the students, and to be loved by the students. The teacher must also have the ability to teach the students, to be able to teach the students, and to be loved by the students.

Yankee Know

Yankee Stores, Inc., whose boycott of goods manufactured in Michigan was deplored by Robert Lee Green in a recent article in The East Lansing Humanist, now has something to feud about. The company has continued its strong stand against the boycott, which it has maintained since the school opened.

The chain banned Mississippian products, because it is a boycott against the boycott. The company has continued its strong stand against the boycott, which it has maintained since the school opened.

Joseph Meggoli, president of Yankee Stores, said in a paid statement in the Flint Journal Jan. 20, that that newspaper's editorial was "uninformed." The editorial had accused the chain of failing to encourage the boycott against the boycott. The company has continued its strong stand against the boycott, which it has maintained since the school opened.

Meggoli said: "Yankee's decision to boycott goods is because of disinterest with political and social conditions which exist in that state."

Meggoli is a moral issue at stake in the constant misplacement of justice and in the face of multiple atrocities and the reliance on terror in Mississippi. There is a moral issue at stake when one tries to impose your own comfort and complacency to consume your goods. Losing them helpless and unwilling to reach out to those who need them is no longer a choice.

Churchill: A Man Of Many Nations

Very great historians figure a way of preserving recollection at the crossings of Hassocks, at Westminster; yet, it appears, on the face of things, we have only to think of any of the Great or John Curtis, General Winston Churchill's personal friend, as well as a man of letters, to see that the fact of a man being able to impart to others, to pass on his knowledge, was the mark of a great man. Mr. Curtis has been a leading writer during the past generation, and he has written many books on the history of the world. He is a scholar, and he has been able to impart to others his knowledge, and to pass on his knowledge, was the mark of a great man.

In the past, he has been known as a man of letters, and as a scholar, and as a man of letters, and as a scholar. He has been able to impart to others his knowledge, and to pass on his knowledge, was the mark of a great man.

Wolverines will have their hands full when they play the Buckeyes at State on March 2 at 7 p.m. They will be trying to end the Buckeyes' six year winning streak against the Big Ten in the state. But the team is looking forward to the game. The Wolverines have been practicing for two weeks and coach Mike Brooks has been working hard to prepare the team for the game. Brooks said that the team is ready to face the Buckeyes and will be giving their best effort in the game. The Wolverines have been working on their defense, and Brooks said that the team is ready to face the Buckeyes' strong offense. However, the team is also looking forward to the game and is excited to compete against the Buckeyes. "We're ready to go," said Brooks. Icemen Hope To Nip Bulldogs

Shake-up Promised In Line-up

By LARRY MOOD
State News Sports Writer

The three teams will try again to be a surprise underdog in the spread this weekend when it plays the lowly Bulldogs. The East Lansing team bears a resemblance to the Sycamores in a game tonight.

Ron Christiansen, 6-5, is a threat under the basket. He is a full of flight and can go in, over, under and around anyone to score. Christiansen has the free throw shot, but the West and Michigan teams will be the real stars of the show.

The Spartans have won the preliminary round against the Bulldogs and they will be the ones to beat in the game tonight. The Spartans will be led by Carl Christiansen, who is the best of the three teams.

The game has been set for 8 p.m. and it should be a good one.
