North Viet Nam Promises To Fight U.S. 'To The End'

Review Of Accreditation
At MSU Due Next Week

A bomb threat from the North Vietnamese Government, which was reported to the U.S. State Department April 18, has been denied by officials of the Department of State. The threat was reported to have been given in a telephone call from a person who identified himself as a representative of the North Vietnamese Government. The caller claimed that the United States would be attacked by North Vietnamese forces and that the United States would be defeated.

The bomb threat was one of several made in recent weeks by North Vietnamese officials, who have been under increasing pressure from the United States to end their support for the Viet Cong in South Vietnam. The United States has been urging the North Vietnamese to agree to a cease-fire and to begin talks with the United States on a political solution to the war.

The bomb threat came amid growing tensions between the United States and North Vietnam, who have been at odds over the war for more than a decade. The United States has been supporting South Vietnam in its fight against the Viet Cong, who are supported by North Vietnam.

Free Speech Challenged

A six-hour-long "teach-in" in the Auditorium Thursday night went on an unscheduled agenda of two bomb scares and the antics of immature hecklers.

The purpose of the "teach-in" was to protest U.S. policy in the Vietnam war, and the presence of the heckling and the bomb scares was presumably to protest the teach-in.

It is difficult to conceive of the type of mentality which invents bomb scares so there were at least two bomb scares and the antics of immature hecklers.

The purpose of the "teach-in" was to protest U.S. policy in the Vietnam war, and the presence of the heckling and the bomb scares was presumably to protest the teach-in.

But some eager members of the "Ad Hoc Committee to support the findings of Malcolm X in Viet Nam" could not wait until the speakers had finished. As the first speaker of the evening began his talk the students interrupted him with "Shut up, you!"

Throughout the evening, impatient boys in the balcony heckled professors as they attempted to speak. A campus police officer finally had to order them to quiet down.

This, too, is an interference with the right of free speech. The speakers were told that they would have an opportunity to express their views later in the program. Their heckling only silenced the speeches was totally uncalled-for.

The merits of the views expressed at the "teach-in" are totally beside the point. The Right of American citizens to express their opinions at a peaceful assembly is the whole point.

Toward Free Expression

A joint committee of the Men's Hall Association and Women's Inter-Hall Residence Council has recommended to the governing board a change in the distribution of printed materials in dormitories which would do away with the present system on the MSU campus.

The recommendations, adopted Thursday, would allow distribution of printed material at reception desks in dormitories by any student group or individual student. The materials must be handled in the efficient directions of the Dormitory officials, both in residence halls and throughout the whole system, would be required to be properly arranged and published by the students of Michigan State University. Before they are distributed, they would retain some responsibility for the contents of the materials. After they are distributed, they would retain some responsibility for the contents of the materials.

The recommendation would have the effect of making campus officials responsible for the contents of the materials. The recommendation would have the effect of making campus officials responsible for the contents of the materials.

Wet Picketers Protest Protest

Over 100 students picketed in the rain at the Peace in Viet Nam Teach-In Thursday night to show their support of President Johnson's policy in Vietnam.

Their peaceful picketing, and a demonstration of a 'stand firm in the rain' badge which they wore, were in contrast to the weather, which included a storm that drenched the picketers, the student union building, and some halls around it.
