Hannah Cites Agitators' 'Exploitation'

Hannah cites agitators' 'exploitation' of Communist North Vietnam by South Vietnam amid misery in the Mississippi Delta.

The Mississippi Delta, with its surging Mississippi River, is a quad-city complex of more than 270,000 people. Flood officials said the crest would be brought high enough to protect the area.

University students are divided over the exploitation by anti-war demonstrators. President John A. Hannah and more than 100 students met in a debate over the demonstrations.

"Once you can find a cure," said a demonstrator, "you get an administrative failure to make sanitation successful.

"Our obligation," said "it is to protect the environment from being exploited by any other organization."
The Calm After The Storm

For the third year in a row, Michigan State News will publish an essay on the National Merit Scholarship program. The essay will be written by a Michigan State University student and will discuss the benefits of the program and the responsibilities of the students who receive the scholarships.

More Faith On Campus

By Larry Tole

There has been a great deal of controversy lately about whether or not there is a lack of faith in this country. Arguments have been advanced that religious groups have been losing members and that the churches are not as influential as they once were.

It seems to me that there are a few things that can be done to help overcome this problem. First, we need to remember that faith is a personal matter and that each individual must decide for himself whether or not he believes in God. Second, we need to work to create an atmosphere in which faith can thrive. This can be done by providing opportunities for people to express their faith and by supporting organizations that promote religious values.

But Seriously . . .

The Liberal Arts Question

By Don Scholl

One of the primary recruiting features used to entice many National Merit scholars to Michigan State University is the opportunity to explore academic opportunities for themselves. With the exception of a few majors, the Liberal Arts program is often viewed as a way to take classes that are not directly related to their field of study.

In my case, I was attracted to the program because I was interested in history and had taken a course in the subject during my senior year of high school. I was also interested in the opportunity to take classes in other disciplines, such as philosophy and psychology, that I had not had the opportunity to study in high school.

The Liberal Arts program was a great experience for me. I was able to take classes in a variety of subjects and to explore my interests. I also had the opportunity to meet other students who shared my interests and to learn from them.

In conclusion, I think that the Liberal Arts program is a valuable opportunity for students who are interested in exploring academic opportunities for themselves. It is a way to take classes that are not directly related to their field of study and to meet other students who share their interests.

Yugoslavian Editor Cites National Economic Traits

Yugoslav editor said he believed his country was making progress in its economic development. Speaking at a meeting in the United States, he said that Yugoslavia was making significant strides in agriculture, industry, and trade. He noted that the country was diversifying its economy, reducing its dependence on exports, and increasing its production of consumer goods. He also emphasized the importance of education and scientific research in promoting economic growth.

New Fossils From Texas

Varied fossils, believed to be about 220 million years old, have been found in north central Texas by the Mineola Museum.

Robert S. Butler, assistant professor of paleontology, had the opportunity to study the fossils collected by members of the Mineola Museum.

The study of the fossils will provide data about the habits of animals that lived in the area several millions of years ago, he said.

The fossils were gathered from a swamp area in the vicinity of Mineola, Texas, and the geology they represent is similar to that of southern Michigan.

"Because the type of fossils found there, they may date back to the time of the Triassic Period, which lasted from about 220 million years ago," Butler added.

Cycling Increases In Spring

Springs at MSU, like most other well-known universities, bring out college riders for the first time. This year, however, there is an unusual number of non-college riders, particularly comics, and the campus is therefore experiencing the problem of riders hooliganism. Most of the comics are on bicycles--and 99% of them are being driven around campus.

In Spring

The introduction and sale of new models has increased this trend. The riders and new models have given the campus the impression of being under the control of a motorcycle army. The non-college riders are usually not likely to be found on the main road, but the campus is often the site of their activities.

The non-college riders are often considered to be a disturbance to campus enjoyment. More and more students are expressing the belief that a motorcycle is the key method of transportation in today's world.

AFROTC Offers 9 Grants
