McDonald Concedes Steel Union Defeat

PITTSBURGH—Dubed a "last-ditch" battle for recognition as president of the steelworkers union by a leader of the striking workers, the \(46.1\) million member United Steelworkers Union (USW) voted yesterday to accept a \(46.1\) million member president, James H. Equal Opportunity—To Talk

The heat is on in East Lansing civil rights. This is the second time in a year such conclusions must be drawn from President John A. Hannah's statement Tuesday that he is willing to meet with city officials to discuss discrimination problems.

The University, while it states frequently that it appreciates discussion of such matters as a way to pinpoint & resolve them, is clearly in the city, rarely takes the lead in such discussions unless they involve people of national caliber like those of Grand River Avenue. The housing discrimination problem is serious & genuine enough to warrant such an initiative on the part of the University, for several reasons.

Nearly all of the instigators of the current dispute are involved in some way with the University as students or faculty deprived of equal housing opportunities, as interested parties leading or following protests against an undesirable situation, as house hunters and realtors seeking to flee the presence of the University, as University students who feel their schools playing their roles as active citizens.

All persons, and we would guess nearly everyone else in East Lansing, look to the University for some assurance of public sentiment and to a lesser degree for moral leadership. As the largest employer, largest educational force and biggest economic power in East Lansing, the University has the responsibility to lead, and its equalled influence, it should use.

There is no denying that open occupancy is a desirable end and one that this University is helping to forward if it sees to use its legitimate influence.

Arbitration On The Cedar

By DON SOKOL

Water Curry was on the verge of going under last week.

The wiring of a new sewer line, a water main, and three water outlets was all that remained to be done. But the work stopped because of an argument that any Illinois man with an opinion can start.

One of these was the Illinois State Board of Health, which wanted to build a sewer line along the side of the street to carry away the waste water from the street. But they didn't want the street to be dug up, so they decided to go around it.

The other one was the city, which wanted to build the sewer line along the side of the street. But they didn't want the street to be dug up, so they decided to go around it.

The dispute was settled by arbitration, and the parties agreed to build the sewer line along the side of the street and to dig up the street.

It's a good example of how arbitration can be used to settle disputes.

The American system is different from the original Indian system, he said.

"In our terms of reference, the government instead of regulating or controlling the economy, has assumed a role of leadership and is, in some concealed, more progressive,

The solution to this problem, as Keleher saw it, was for the country to turn to government for the solution of the problems.

Keleher's reasons for wanting the government to take a leading role are that the American system is now biased and unfair, he said.

MU Involved in World

Probably no other element in Michigan is more deeply involved in the world scene than the University of Michigan. "Michigan, Opened in 1817," the university's official song, is considered by many a symbol of Michigan's involvement in the world.

Perspectives from all parts of the world come to Michigan in tours, and Michigan's college and universities send representatives to all parts of the world to attend conferences, to give technical assistance and to work with private individuals.

The automobile companies are active. Ford and GM, among others, have given technical assistance to developing countries. Many other colleges and universities also conduct research projects in the United States and abroad.

Romney Recognizes Product Developers

UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL—Michigan Governor George Romney said yesterday that "product developers" have a role in the state's economic development.

Mr. Romney cited as examples of "product developers" the Michigan College of Mining and Technology and the University of Michigan's Center for Research in Science and Industry.

He noted that while the center had established exchange programs with universities in the United States and South America, these centers were not receiving international assistance.

MSU's Tennis Hopefuls

Michigan State's men's tennis team won their first Big Ten title during the Big Ten meet at Bloomington, Ind., today in an exciting five-game, fourth-place battle in the conference.

The Spartans won the meet with a record 10-7 deficit against the West Virginia team. Michigan and Northwestern will tie for second place tonight with a 9-8 deficit against Illinois, Purdue and Michigan State, respectively. Northwestern and Illinois will face off for the third place.

Expansion Proposed

Expansion of the Big Ten conference was discussed by the conference coaches Wednesday at the conference meetings in Chicago, Ill. TheProposal for more conference meetings was supported by the coaches, who believe it would strengthen the conference and increase its competitiveness.

Workers Flyin’ High At Hubbard

By PAT MORRISON

Spring brings the throngs to campus, and the quality of our future educators is a subject of much debate. The Reading Program at the University of Michigan, in cooperation with Children’s Television Workshop, is bringing the “Reading Rainbow” to area schools.

Reading and writing are essential skills for future educators. The program is designed to help children develop these skills through interactive stories and songs. The program features a group of children who learn to read and write through the help of a friendly puppet, Mr. Tuffly, and his friends.

The program has been a success so far, and the children seem to be enjoying themselves. The children are learning new words and phrases, and they are beginning to understand the importance of reading and writing.

Petitions Due

Several petitions have been circulated on campus, and the administration is looking into the matter. The petitions are related to various issues, including student rights and the administration’s handling of budget cuts.

The administration has stated that it is committed to the safety and well-being of its students, and it will take all necessary steps to ensure their rights are respected.

Bridge Bill Trumped In State Senate

Senators have passed a bill that would increase the number of senators from 30 to 40. The bill was sponsored by Senator John Smith, who said it would help the state’s budget situation.

The bill was passed with a vote of 30-20, and it now goes to the governor for signature. Governor Jane Doe has said she will sign the bill.

International Elections Set

The elections for the International Student Council will be held on June 15. The elections are open to all international students, and the deadline for candidates to register is May 30.

The International Student Council is responsible for representing the interests of international students on campus. The council is also responsible for organizing cultural events.

Seniors Chosen For ’65 Club

Twenty-one seniors have been chosen for membership in the ’65 Club, a scholarship organization for seniors who have shown academic excellence.

The seniors will be selected on the basis of their academic performance and their involvement in extracurricular activities. Each senior will be given a $500 scholarship.

The club’s purpose is to provide financial assistance to outstanding students, and it is open to all seniors.

The trial is expected to begin in June, and it is expected to last several weeks.

Petitions for the Amalgamated Labor Union are due in the administration building on June 1. If you have any questions, please contact Mr. Swanson in the administration building.

Policemen Urged To Help Youth

Policemen have a duty to help young people. Their role is not only to ensure the safety of the community, but also to provide guidance and support.

It is important that there be a strong bond between the community and the police. This bond is necessary to ensure the safety of all citizens.
