A reading improvement program offered in Michigan State University courses has two hearing impaired students enrolled in 1965. The program was designed to help students improve reading skills as a way to improve their academic standing.

Among the courses eligible for the program are English, Social Science, and Business Administration. The program is open to all students who wish to enroll. It will be taught by special instructors who will work with the students individually.

The program consists of two main components: reading improvement and study skills training. The former will focus on improving reading comprehension and speed, while the latter will cover strategies for effective note-taking and time management.

There are four sessions during the semester, each lasting two hours. The program is free to all participants, and students will receive credit for their participation.

Employs Union To Start Recruiting

By RYLE KEEF BA

State News Staff Writer

A new movement to recruit students to a union has been launched on Michigan State University's campus. The movement is being led by the Michigan State University Employees Union, which represents employees across campus.

The union is seeking to recruit members from all units of the university, including faculty, staff, and students. They are encouraging everyone to join, regardless of their employment status.

The goal of the union is to provide support and representation for employees on campus. They are focused on improving working conditions and advocating for fair treatment.

The union will be holding meetings and events to inform students about their rights and how to join. They are inviting everyone to come and learn more about the benefits of being a member.

The union is also reaching out to employers to discuss contract negotiations. They are committed to working cooperatively with all parties to improve the lives of those working on the MSU campus.

Measles, A Familiar Children's Disease, Kills Hundreds

By DON NOOK
State News Staff Writer

"To catch the earliest possible outbreaks of measles among the students," have been the words of the Michigan State University Health Service since the beginning of the fall semester. This concerns the more than 30,000 students enrolled in the various colleges of the university.

The recent excellent health records at the University of Michigan indicate that the University of Michigan, as well as other large institutions in the area, have been given a clean bill of health.

The reason for such a low rate is due to the fact that the university staff, as well as the administration, have been more than willing to cooperate in the prevention of disease. By doing this, the students have been able to maintain a health record that is comparable to any other university in the country.

One of the major reasons for this low rate of disease is the fact that the university medical staff has been able to get the students to the health center before they have any symptoms of the disease. This is due to the fact that the university health service has been able to get the students to the health center before they have any symptoms of the disease.

Four steps to determine the desirability of a new housing ordinance: 1) advisory committee of experts and citizens to study the problem; 2) recommendations and clarification of the problem and objectives of the commission, every member of the community, by hearing; 3) review by law experts, both public and private; 4) recommendations, again by lawyers and experts, whether the most effective, feasible method of dealing with the problem discovered in a first hearing conference. —The final decision will be based on the recommendation of the commission, whether the most effective, feasible method of dealing with the problem discovered in a first hearing conference.

A housewife in the area, Ms. Pletz, reported: "Throughout the years, we have felt adequately in a housing ordinance. She noted that the increased cost of ownership is a major concern."

The East Lansing Human Relations Commission recommends that an open housing ordinance would best serve the community. Every member of the community, by hearing, by law experts, both public and private, review the proposed ordinance, whether the most effective, feasible method of dealing with the problem discovered in a first hearing conference.

Steps Taken To Reach A Decision On Housing Ordinance

The East Lansing Human Relations Commission outlined the course of action in June to determine the desirable type of housing ordinance. The commission, meeting in several sessions, examined the proposed ordinance, the nature of the problem, and the significance of the recommendations. The commission agreed that the most effective, feasible method of dealing with the problem discovered in a first hearing conference will be based on the recommendation of the commission, whether the most effective, feasible method of dealing with the problem discovered in a first hearing conference.

THE BURTONS STRIKE AGAIN

Everything Tossed Together Like An Abstract Painting

If you can forget that the story is a true one, you will enjoy "Israel," starring Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor. Directed by John H. Howard and written by Robert William Smith, "Israel," at 8 p.m., Thursday in the Crisler Coliseum, you can enjoy a sometimes power­ful and undeniably affecting love story.

The film is set in abstract and unknown lands of an exotic eastern country, possibly Jewish.

The rugged and unusual beauty of "Israel" brings to mind a story told by a war correspondent who went to report on the area where the story is set. The script is long, con­volved and demanding. There could not be a better example of what can happen when the real story is abandoned to create a setting.

The plot is in the abstract and men­tioned only as a setting for unexplainably beautiful people.

But when she smiles or changes her expression in any way, the beauty is incredible. She has a truly marvelous face. Much the same is true for the film as for the real life of Liz and Burton. She is the type of actress who brings her own life to the screen. Her son kills a deer to find out what she is doing with the money, and not heard.

Did You Know That...

But, Michigan whipped the Spartans when they finally met.

Challenge from the University of Michigan. Michigan issued a challenge to the Spartans for the first time in nine years. Of course, it could be that they take a shaky lead when the Lushwells came to bat but as the sun sank in the west and the lights came on, nine runs they got, on seven hits tradition says the Lushies lose. Our Lushwells lead their block and don't forget zoanthroposts abaddon, evan's scholars who want to clean our clock all this week in nine years. —DAVE HANSON

Promotion Announced

Former Spartan baseballers Dick Billings and Doug Dobrei are now professionals now, Billings signed with Washington and Dobrei, who played one year with San Diego. Dobrei has appeared in two games, dating back to the 1963 season. Of course, it could be that Dobrei is the toughest opponent he had ever faced. When MSU opens it's 1965 grid campaign against UCLA, it will be the first regular season meeting of the two schools. State, however, has beaten the Bruins twice in Rose Bowl games. —DAVE HANSON

CHEC-69-a was a day of hope for the College All-Stars at Soldier Field Friday night.

All-star coach Otto Graham, Chicago Bears quarterback, was not too happy with his team's performance in falling to the College All-Stars, 23-13.

State brought new life to the All-Stars as well as a fresh, three-touchdown victory over the Illini. From a three-touchdown disadvantage, one gave up all three touchdowns, one with 4:04 remaining in the first half, one with 10:40 left in the third period, and one with 8:18 gone in the fourth quarter. The Browns had completely out-played the Stars in the first half, with quarterback Frank Ryan doing the most damage. Brown of 22 passes for 123 yards.

The Bears cut the lead to 17-13 in the third period, but it was too little, too late. The Bears couldn't do anything, and the All-Stars defense was impressive.
